100 PER CENT

IS GOAL OF STOCKHOLDERS OF NORTHERN KENTUCKY PRODUCTION CREDIT ASSOCIATION AT MEETING TO BE HELD IN WILLIAMSTOWN KENTUCKY

One hundred percent attendance of stockholders of the Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association at its first annual meeting is the goal announced by Mr. L. D. Richards, Secretary-Treasurer. This meeting will be held on January 10, 1935 at The Grant-co. Court House in Williamstown. "Holders of Class B. stock in the association are voting members, and each one is urged to be present at this important annual meeting of stockholders," states Mr. Richards. "Each farmer who has borrowed money from the association since it was organized last spring is a stockholder, unless meanwhile he has paid his loan in full and sold his shares. At the time loans are made each borrower acquires a $5 share of stock in the association for each $100 which he borrows. In the annual meeting, however, all shareholders have an equal voice and vote, whether holding but one share or a large number of shares. This, of course, is in accordance with the cooperative principle of 'one member, one vote' as required by the cooperative law under which Production Credit Associations are organized. Voting by proxy is not permitted.

"Two sessions of the annual meeting will be held, one in the forenoon and one in the afternoon of January 10, 1935. Mr. Richards announces the forenoon meeting is a business session open only to members. At this session the stockholders will elect a board of directors to guide the affairs of the association during the following year. It is highly important to all stockholders that they should be present at this meeting to help perform the important duty of selecting their directors. The business of the association from its organization last spring to the close of 1934 will be reviewed and discussed, and policies for its future course will be defined."

All farmers whether stockholders or not are urged to attend the afternoon session which begins at 1:30, according to Mr. Richards' announcement. This afternoon meeting will be addressed by an executive of the Production Credit Corporation of Louisville, Ky., which exercises supervision over the several associations of the Fourth Farm Credit Administration District. Local executives will also review their year's work and discuss problems of interest to stockholders. Practices of the production credit system will be fully explained and discussed. Plans already under way for expediting action on loan applications will be announced at this meeting.

Since the Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association of office opened for business in March, 1934, it has closed 130 loans for total of $50,500.00 according to Secretary-Treasurer Richards. Farmers of Boone, Campbell, Carroll, Gallatin, Grant, Kenton, Pendleton, and Owen counties are eligible to apply to this association for

SCHOOL OFFICIALS

MAKING PLANS TO CARRY ON SUBSCRIPTION DRIVE BEGINNING JANUARY 14—MEETING TO BE HELD THIS WEEK TO COMPLETE PLANS

Since the Boone County Recorder is offering the schools of the county a very generous proposition with regard to securing new subscriptions, plans are being made by school officials to carry on a subscription drive beginning January 14. We plan to use the proceeds of this drive to build up a more efficient library for the schools of the county. A meeting will be held this week to complete plans and announcements will be made in the next issue of the Recorder as to the prizes that will be offered and other details of the plan. We hope to enlist the co-operation of all teachers, pupils and parents in the project, as it will enable us to improve our library service considerably.

loans for producing crops, buying, breeding and fattening livestock, for poultry production, fruit production, home modernization, refinancing of current indebtedness and for various other services incidental today for farm operations. Interest is charged at the rate of 5 per cent per year for the time the money is in the possession of the borrower.

A. Threlkeld, of Grant county, is President of the Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association and H. W. Webb, of Grant county, William F. Ebrigg of Campbell and C. Listen Hemphing, of Boone county, are the present directors.

MRS. MINA RYLE

Mrs. Mina Ryle, age 82 years, passed away Monday evening at 5:30, due to infirmities of old age, in the home her daughter Mrs. William Sebree, three miles south of Burlington on the East Bend pike. She leaves three sons Elmore, Ransom and Manley Ryle, one daughter Mrs. William Sebree, all of this county, 10 grand-children, 6 great-grand-children, one sister and other relatives and friends to mourn her passing. Her funeral was conducted from the Bellevue Baptist church Wednesday (today) at 10 a. m., by Bro. Smith, her pastor in the presence of her relatives and friends, after which her remains were laid to rest along side of her husband who preceded her eleven years ago.

Chambers & Grubbs, of Walton, were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

BOONE RESIDENTS

TO RECEIVE SAMPLE COPY OF BOONE COUNTY RECORDER JANUARY 3 AND 10—SAME TYPE PAPER AS USUAL

As mentioned in our last issue the Recorder is mailing out 3500 copies this week and will send out the same number next week. We have attempted to send a sample copy to each Boone county resident who does not now take the Recorder. We are doing this in order that all persons may know that the paper has changed hands and that the present owner is doing his best to publish a worthwhile paper. We believe Boone county is one of the very best counties in the State and we are trying to get out a paper that will be representative of that fact. We have not attempted to publish special editions for these samples. What you see in this and next week's issues is the same type paper we have published since November 1. However, as we broaden our acquaintance we expect to improve the paper.

The Editor is not a stranger to Boone county since he formerly resided here at which time he was principal of the Burlington schools. He knew W. L. Riddell and the high type paper that Mr. Riddell published. It is his hope to continue the paper along the high standards that Mr. Riddell followed.

Boone county needs a good county paper and we want the Recorder to fill that need. In order more thoroughly to accomplish that end we wish the good people who do not now take the paper to become subscribers. If you do, it will help us to be of more service to the county. In return we promise you a good, live newspaper which you will enjoy reading. The price is very little when you realize that you receive fifty-two copies for $1.50. You may send us the subscription or subscribe through any authorized agents acting for us. If you wish to take the Cincinnati Post, Times-Star, or Enquirer in connection with the Recorder, you may receive both for one year for $3.75, providing you do not live in a town where these papers are delivered by carrier.

We trust you will enjoy these two sample copies and will find it convenient to enroll with us as a regular subscriber.

WM. MOORE

CALLED TO FINAL REWARD SUNDAY EVENING DEC. 23—HAD BEEN LARGE LAND OWNER—WAS ONE OF COUNTY'S PROMINENT BUSINESS MEN

It is with deep regret that we chronicle the death of one of the finest gentlemen and farmers of this section of Kentucky, when the Grim Reaper took from our midst Sunday evening, Dec. 23 at 10 o'clock William F. Moore of Walton. He was an exceptional fine man, kind, gentle, honest, with a gift of humor that endeared him to his many friends. If he ever had an enemy we never heard of it. While he was born in Boone county near the South Fork neighborhood, he had lived in Gallatin and Grant county. He owned large farms in Gallatin and Grant counties, but being a good business man, whenever he was offered a profit on his purchase, he sold. At the time of his death he owned a farm in the Beaver Lick neighborhood. The cause of his death was senility and arterio sclerosis, being in his 78th year, past, his birthday being in April.

His wife preceded him to the grave a number of years ago. He is survived by two daughters Miss Corrine Moore and Mrs. Jas. Houston, two sons, Harris and Robert, and one sister, Miss Linnie Moore, of Beaver Lick, and six grandchildren.

The funeral took place from his late home Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, Rev. J. M. Ervin, of the Walton Christian church and Rev. Hampton Adams of the Frankfort Christian church, conducting the funeral services after which the remains were tenderly laid to rest in the Hance cemetery near South Fork. A large number of sorrowing relatives and friends were in attendance.

Funeral Directors Chambers & Grubbs had charge of the arrangements.

FLORENCE HIGH PLAYS

LLOYD HIGH FRIDAY NIGHT
The first basketball games of the New Year in Florence should be one of the best. On Friday night, Jan. 4th on the local Florence floor the Florence High school boys team will play the strong quintet from the Lloyd High School, Erlanger. This promises to be a fine game and should be of much interest to the local basketball fans. In addition, there will be a second game between the Florence Independent Coca-Cola team and the Independent team of Silver Grove.

The first game will begin at 7:30

HEART DISEASE

CAUSES DEATH OF MILTON GAINES, IDELEWILD FARMER—LAST RITES HELD AT RESIDENCE WITH REV. CAMPBELL OFFICIATING

Milton Gaines, age 45, died suddenly at his home near Idlewild, Boone county, of heart disease, Thursday, Dec. 20 at 11 o'clock a. m. He was born in Boone county and was considered one of the most progressive farmers in the county.

He started as a renter and at the time of his death owned a farm of 300 acres in a high state of cultivation. His mother was his life-long companion and help-mate in accumulating the estate. She preceded him to the Great Beyond sixteen months ago.

He was a kind and obliging neighbor and friend to everyone as was manifested in the large number attending the funeral. He is survived by a half brother Felix Gaines, who resides at Philadelphia, Pa., a few other relatives, and a world of friends. His cousin, Mrs. Bertha Davis, kept house for him since the death of his mother, and deserves praise for her loyalty to his interests.

The funeral took place Sunday from his late residence, Rev. J. W. Campbell preaching a most appropriate funeral discourse to a large assemblage of friends, after which the remains were laid to rest in the Bullittsburg cemetery. Mr. Gaines was a member of the Baptist church.

Funeral Directors Chambers & Grubbs, of Walton, had charge of the arrangements.

DIES SUDDENLY

W. R. ROGERS OF WALTON DIES WHILE TALKING AND LAUGHING WITH FRIENDS—CHRONIC HEART TROUBLE CAUSE OF DEATH

Friday morning at 11 o'clock while W. R. (Rupert) Rogers was laughing and talking to Claude Tanner and several others at the Tanner Filling Station on South Main street, at the junction of Needmore street, he gave a gasp and expired before a physician could reach him. The fact he was telling a humorous story at the time and was laughing himself, when the finger of Death touched him. Chronic heart trouble was the cause of his death. Mr. Rogers was 62 years old at the time of his death. He was born and reared in Boone county and previous to moving to Walton he and his sisters resided at Burlington.

He served as county clerk of Boone county filling out the unexpired term of his brother Jameson Rogers, who died during his term. After filling out this term he was elected to that office for a term of four years. And then his sister Miss Elizabeth Rogers ran for the same office, was elected and served a four year term. It was shortly after this he and his sisters Misses Elizabeth and Sallie moved to Walton. During his term of office he made many friends and was very efficient as clerk as was also his sister.

He was a man of quiet demeanor and had many friends. He never married but lived and cared for his sisters with true brotherly devotion. He has many friends who will deeply regret to hear of his departure from this world of care and strife. He was of a kind and gentle disposition, believing in attending to his own business and granting others the same privilege. He was a member of the Presbyterian Baptist church. He is survived by his two sisters, Misses Elizabeth and Sallie, one nephew, three nieces and numerous other relatives.

The funeral took place from his late home on South Main street, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. R. F. DeMolsey of the Baptist church officiating, paying a last tribute to his memory. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, a slight token of the esteem in which he was held.

Burial was in Old Salem cemetery west of Walton, a very large number of sorrowing friends and relatives being in attendance. The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved ones.

Funeral Directors Chambers & Grubbs had charge of the arrangements.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS

Owing to the fact that there were no rural mail deliveries on New Year's Day we failed to receive a number of our rural letters in time to include them in this week's issue. They will be published next week.

It will not be necessary now for our correspondents to write us about envelopes and paper. We will always send a sufficient number of each on the first of every month to take care of the correspondence for that particular month. If we ever fail to do so, kindly advise us.

OVERTON HOGAN

PROMINENT GRANT COUNTY MAN DIES SUDDENLY IN FRANKFORT—WAS ACTIVE IN POLITICAL WORK IN STATE

Frankfort, Ky.—Overton S. Hogan, 60, assistant attorney general for the last fifteen years, died of a heart attack at his home here.

Gen. Hogan, whose home was in Williamstown, in Grant county, apparently was in the best of health when he was host at a Christmas party for members of his family.

Gen. Hogan served as assistant attorney general under Attorney General Frank Daugherty, M. M. Logan, Charles Morris, James Gar-nett and the incumbent, Bailey P. Wootton. His present term of office to which he was appointed by Wootton, would not have expired until next December. Gen. Hogan was first assistant Attorney General under Wootton, and had been entrusted with the handling of many important cases. He was representing Wootton in litigation pending in Franklin Circuit Court over the jurisdiction of the new State police force.

Last August Gen. Hogan unsuccessfully sought the Democratic nomination as judge of the Court of Appeals for the Sixth District. He was defeated by the incumbent, Chief Justice William H. Rees, of Maysville.

96 PER CENT BOONE COUNTY TOBACCO GROWERS FAVOR KERR-SMITH ACT 1935

Eight-hundred and sixty out of 893 Boone county tobacco growers or 96 per cent, voting in the recent referendum on the Kerr-Smith act voted "Yes" to continue the tax on tobacco grown in Boone county during 1935 according to County Agent H. R. Forkner.

Thirty-three growers representing 64.9 acres voted "No" as to the tax in 1935. 17.2 acres thus voted were from contract signers, and 47.7 acres from non-contract signers. Those acres not voted were counted as voting "Yes" according to instructions given on the referendum. Where either the landlord or the tenant voted "No" on the land the acreage was counted "No." Including all landlords and tenants there were 1313 eligible votes in this county for approximately 3000 acres of tobacco.

The vote was considered large under the conditions and shows the growers are strongly in favor of the A. A. program, and in the improvement of their economic position in the production of Burley tobacco.

MAN SUCCUMBS

TO FOUR MONTHS OF HICCOUGHING—HAD BEEN EMPLOYED AS CLERK IN LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE RAILROAD OFFICES FOR 13 YEARS

Walton, Ky., Dec. 29.—Hiccoughs which continued steadily for four months resulted in the death here today of Harry E. Roberts, 54 years old, Dallas, Texas.

Roberts died at the home of his sister, Mrs. B. W. Franks.

Until 13 years ago, he was employed as a clerk in the Louisville & Nashville Railroad offices in Cincinnati. He was traveling freight agent for the Southern Pacific Railroad, with headquarters in Dallas, until his strange ailment forced him to discontinue work.

EDWARDS-BEEMON

The Somerset, Ky., Commonwealth has the following in its issue of December 26:

"The marriage of Miss Elva Edwards to Robert Beemon, of Louisville, was quietly solemnized late Saturday afternoon at the parsonage of the Somerset First Methodist church with the Rev. Dr. R. J. Yoak officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Edwards, College Street. She is a graduate of Berea Normal School and attended Berea College and the Rogers School of Business. Mr. Beemon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Beemon, of Florence, Ky. He is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and will receive his Master's degree this summer from the University of Michigan. He is now a member of the faculty of the Reuben Post Halleck School Louisville. Formerly he was employed on the teaching staff of the Science Hill High School. He has a large number of friends in this county. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Beemon left on a short wedding trip, after which Mrs. Beemon will return here and continue in her position as secretary to County School Superintendent James M. Holt."

The above is of much interest to the many friends of Mr. Beemon in Boone county. He was born and reared here and no young man stands higher in the community. He has had fine success in college and school work thus far and it is predicted by all who know him that he will reach the top of his chosen profession. His many friends in this section wish for him the greatest of happiness and continued success.

P. T. A.

The Hebron P. T. A. will hold their first 1935 meeting next Tuesday night, January 8, at the gymnasium. Everyone be present.

SPECIAL LEVY

WILL NO BE MADE IN BOONE COUNTY, ACCORDING TO OFFICIALS—STRICT ECONOMY MUST BE ENFORCED IS REPORT

At the last session of the Legislature an act was passed changing the fiscal year from January to July but failed to provide for the necessary funds for county government during that period; that is, leaving the counties without means of raising revenue to carry on, not only governmental expenses, but the repair and care of the county roads. The Court of Appeals of Kentucky in a recent opinion decided that under the conditions Fiscal Courts could levy and collect an additional tax for the purpose of paying the expenses of the counties during that period at a rate not exceeding one half of the regular county levy. A joint meeting of all County Judges and County Attorneys was held at Louisville last week to discuss the above conditions. County Judge N. E. Riddell and County Attorney B. H. Riley attended. They are of the opinion and will advise the Fiscal Court of Boone, that no additional levy be made as provided for by the opinion of the Court of Appeals, that Boone may carry on her governmental activities without requiring the payment of additional taxes by the citizens of this county. This will delay repair of the county roads and will require the strictest economy.

The Fiscal Court will have to exercise economy in every branch of county Government. The financial condition of the county is such that the County Judge and County Attorney can so advise the Fiscal Court that a tax levy can be avoided at this time, which will, no doubt meet with the approval of the taxpayers. A large number of other counties in the state will have to make additional tax levies in order to meet their obligations.

A. B. ROUSE MENTIONED FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNORSHIP

The Louisville political reporter for the Cincinnati Enquirer has the following to say in regard to former Congressman Arthur Rouse:

A report has trickled downstate that Arthur Rouse, former Congressman, Covington, may be an aspirant to the Lieutenant Governorship. Rouse undoubtedly would have the solid support of the old Sixth (new Fifth) District, which he formerly represented in Congress. This district is a red-headed stepchild of the Democratic party, long overdue for major recognition. Rouse would have equal claim for the nomination on that ground alone.

We do not know as to the correctness of this report but we do know that Mr. Rouse would fill efficiently any office to which he may be elected. We also feel that less able men are being mentioned for the governorship.

For some time the county jail has had trouble with the flue of one of the chimneys, due to poor draft. J. J. Kirkpatrick and W. P. Beemon corrected the defect this week by adding several feet of brickwork to the chimney.

DEADLINE

IS EXTENDED TO JANUARY 31 FOR KENTUCKY TRUCK OWNERS TO BUY LICENSE PLATES—TO AID THOSE CONFUSED BY NEW TRUCK LAW

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 31.—An extension until and including January 31, 1935, of the time in which truck drivers may obtain their 1935 tags was granted today by Governor Ruby Laffoon.

Last week the Governor granted a similar extension to owners of passenger cars. Only a few days ago he said he would not extend the time for truck owners, but acceded, he said, at the request of numerous owners and operators.

Today's extension was granted, the Governor explained, to aid those truck owners who were confused by the new law requiring County Clerks to keep their offices open at night during January for the sale of licenses.

NEW YEAR'S GREETING

It is a trifle absurd to review the past and foreshadow the future on January first. There is no more reason for indulging on that day than for any other day in the year. The sun goes down every day—and yet there is something to be said for a custom that periodically incites activity.

Logic has not, but sentiment has invested New Year's Day with a character all its own. Many of our steps, especially our earlier steps, are taken at haphazard. Suddenly we are astonished at finding where we are and what we are. On New Year's Day we take our bearings.

It is, however, one thing to take our bearings and another to shape our destiny. It is relatively easy to stand on the observation platform and count the telegraph poles. But where is the train going, regardless of its speed? The annual review depends largely on the stage of life that has been reached. Let the young man make his resolution fearfully; let the old man make his fearlessly; may each find that there is grace enough to transmute his January dream into a June reality.—Ky. Citizen.

JOB OF THE SCHOOLS

Our school children are capable of producing a marvelous advance in our country.

The schools are like a mill that has to take in all grades of material. If the mill must utilize defective wool, cotton and leather, it won't turn out any first class product. The school is forced to take the industrious and the lazy, the willing and the unwilling. It is expected to turn out a uniform first-class product of good citizens, which under existing conditions can't always be done.

Many of those growing minds are like young trees bent out of shape, which the good gardener may be able to straighten out; innumerable children who make a wrong start, are trained by devoted teachers to stand erect in the garden of life.

America plants ambition in the heart of youth. It points to successful men and women who came from humble and depressing homes. "You can also rise," it says to every youth from a back alley.

Some boys dream that their place of fortune can be found over the slippery ways of the crooked path. If they stick to that belief, the school can do nothing for them. Modern education has a job other than that of teaching facts about verbs and fractions. It has to point out the path of industry, and convince youth that only by toiling up that path, which is sometimes steep, can he win life's prizes.

OPPOSITION SOMETIMES

A BENEFIT

It is a matter of record in a certain Ohio court-house that a group of citizens in 1830 protested the building of a railroad for the reason that "if a train ever runs 30 miles an hour as predicted it will be the work of the devil." A writer in 1870 discouraged the use of "new fangled plumbing," pointing out that such things "are a gift of the devil." The writer of the article called fixed wash basins in bed rooms "enemies" and warned people to get rid of them and continue using wash bowls and slop jars. Other instances could be added to show how well-meaning people have fought the march of progress. In this supposed to be enlightened age the path of progress is still the dumping ground of opposition. But opposition has done more to spread the wings of progress than many of its would be friends. Opposition to anything is the best possible publicity. Everybody wants to read a book or see a show that has been censored and forbidden to appear. Opposition helps to awaken the daring in man and he strides to go forward when restrained. Strangely enough, well-meaning people in every age have decided that all advancement had been made with nothing left for the next generation to do.

KENTUCKY'S TOLL OF DEATHS

Kentucky's monthly toll of deaths from automobile accidents at railroad crossings is consistently a tragic figure. Fifty per cent more reported deaths in November compared to October make the past month's record particularly ghastly. This bitter story of sudden death continues despite improved braking and vision for motorists.

Why then, should fatalities increase? The answer is apparent at nearly every grade crossing. Inadequate protection—protection which is really only a travesty—protection which leans too much on the frailty of human senses. A warning is not necessarily a protection. There must be found some REAL protection for rail-highway crossings.

American inventive genius must be able to supply this need. The time undoubtedly will come when some device or plan will be evolved which actually PREVENTS accidents without regard for the will of the motorist.

Until that time comes accidents will continue to increase. As the speed of trains is stepped up and the number of crossings multiplied, the spectre of sudden death will hover where rails and highway meet.

Safety education is not enough. The federal government, the state and the municipality must act. Kentucky and other states with an increasing number of reported crossing deaths may well give serious thought to this safety issue.

Fireside Thoughts

We are not given to making many New Year resolutions. Certainly we do not wish to advise others in this regard. However, there is one resolution that all young people should make and live up to. We refer to the saving of money systematically for old age. The thoughtless find old age has slipped upon them without having saved many dollars in the days of youth to stand between old age and want. Save a little for old age while the years of earning capacity remains with you.

Many people may complain when they do not see in the Recorder certain news which pertains to them or to their friends. If it isn't there it is because we did not learn about it. We are not as well acquainted as we hope to be later and for that reason often miss news items of interest. We hope our friends and readers will send in such items or phone us. We want the news and you want the news, so let us get together in the matter.

We hope the coming year will be a bigger and better year for all our readers. We especially want to see more prosperous conditions and times for our farmer friends. We believe this will come about for general conditions point that way. If so, it will mean much to Boone county for everything here depends upon the success of agriculture. We believe we live in one of the best counties in the state. This paper will do everything it can do to help make conditions still better and to render any service possible. We ask for the cooperation of our readers and will appreciate any interest that is shown in us. Let us all pull together and pull hard for a successful 1935 for Boone county and its people.

During the recent holidays we heard and read many wonderful things pertaining to the Savior. About the finest one we saw was the following brief statement about the life history of the Savior on this earth and whose authorship is unknown:

"Here is a man who was born in an unknown village, the child of a peasant woman. He grew up in another obscure village. He worked in a carpenter shop until he was thirty and then for three years was an itinerant preacher. He never owned a home. He never had a family. He never went to college. He never put his foot inside a big city. He never traveled 200 miles from the place he was born. He never did one of the things that usually accompany greatness. He had no credentials but himself. While still a young man, the tide of public opinion turned against him. His friends ran away. One of them denied him. He was turned over to his enemies. He went through the mockery of a trial. He was nailed upon a cross between two thieves. His executioners gambled for the only piece of property he had on earth while he was dying, and that was his coat. When he was dead he was taken down and laid in a borrowed grave through the pity of a friend.

Nineteen wide centuries have come and gone, and today he is the centerpiece of the human race and the leader of the column of progress.

I am far within the mark when I say that all the armies that ever marched, and all the navies that ever were built, and all the parliaments that ever sat, and all the kings that ever reigned, put together, have not affected the life of man upon this earth as powerfully as has One Solitary Life!

Editorial of the Week

TOBACCO IS KING IN KENTUCKY

(Elizabethtown News)

At a time when the States north of us have nothing to sell from the farm, it is a golden era in Old Kentucky for it is the tobacco market. For the next three months the trucks and wagons from all parts of the State will be carrying the golden weed to the warehouses and a stream of money will flow from those warehouses back into the farmers' pockets. It is the psychological and opportune time for our Kentucky farmers to get money and they are going to get plenty of it. The market opened with prices fully up to the expectations of most of the leading growers and averaged from seven cents a pound to 12 cents a pound higher than last year. This means that the farmers' crop of tobacco will bring between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 in excess of last year's crop. The quality of the crop this year is extra good and the quantity is smaller than for a great many years, but the opinion of the Government in curtailing the acreage is shown in the larger price received by the growers and the satisfaction upon the part of the people who are selling it. The tobacco market with its prices ranging well above $21 is a veritable Godsend to Kentucky growers. Merchants will get their part of it from what the farmer needs to buy, the taxes and interest will be paid and there will be many accounts opened in the banks. Since the tobacco market opened in Kentucky everything is lovely in the old Commonwealth and "the goose hangs high."

CODY FARM PURCHASE WILL BE CONVERTED INTO CEMETERY

Another step toward the building of a memorial park to be known as "Forest Lawn," was taken when a group of Covington business men represented by A. L. Heger, Greater Cincinnati landscaping artist, notified Colonel Thomas I. Cody that the option to purchase his 70-acre farm on the Dixie Highway near Erlanger, Ky., has been exercised. The deal for the property, which has been handled by James E. Gunning of the Fort Mitchell Realty Company, will be completed by January 1, Heger said.

The promoters plan to build a memorial park similar to Rest Haven on the Plainfield Pike, Hamilton county.

The park when completed is expected to be one of the show places of Northern Kentucky. More than $100,000 is to be spent next year.

Engineers have been working on the farm for several weeks. Heger, who is in charge of the landscaping work at Rest Haven, will supervise the beautification of "Forest Lawn."

The present Cody home on the farm is to be remodeled with all the colonial architectural lines retained. The house was erected more than 100 years ago by Cabbott S. Manley. It has been the scene of many social functions.

Colonel Cody was notified that he would be permitted to remain on the property until April 1, when the actual work of remodeling is expected to be begun.

A new entrance is planned. The entire front along the Dixie Highway is to be terraced and landscaped.

Stalwart oaks and elms said to have been planted more than a century ago will be retained Heger explained.

THE FARM AND HOME

Butter keeps best, tastes best and sells best when made from clean, fresh and sweet cream. This means the use of clean utensils, the milking of clean, healthy cows and care to protect the cream from dirt and other contamination following its production.

Improve flock by using vigorous cockerels from bred-to-lay strains. The male birds should come from unrelated flocks, as inbreeding tends to decrease hatchability. It is all right to exchange cockerels with neighbors or buy male birds from them, provided they will improve the flock.

To aid in removing the scurf, in scalding hogs, a heaping tablespoonful of lye should be added to each barrel of hot water. If lye cannot be had, a small shovelful of wood ashes or a pound of quicklime may be substituted.

Oiled cloth is sometimes used on the walls of kitchens. When applied tightly to smooth walls it is easily cleaned, sanitary and durable. Occasional varnishing prolongs its life. It is usually wise to select a light, neutral color in plain or nearly plain effects.

In preparing pork for the table, effort should be made to cook it to the center of the piece without making the outside hard and dry. Moderate temperature is best, after the surface has been seared. It is not necessary nor desirable to add water.

The single-chamber septic tank is generally used for country home sewage systems, unless the amount of space for the disposal line is limited. The single-chamber tank is simple in construction and operation and costs less than the double-chamber system.

A power line 4 miles long will furnish electricity to about 100 farm village families in Boyd county.

WOMAN'S CLUB MEETING

"Jesus Arose" sung by the Club. After the above program was rendered Mrs. Clara Seabee introduced some clever contests. One after the reading of "The Night Before Xmas" by Mrs. Voshell, the one having written the most names appearing in poem (as it being read) won the prize, which was a box of delicious home-made candy. It being a tie, Mrs. Wendall Easton and Miss Estelle Huey divided the honor.

At the close of the program the hostesses served tasty refreshments. All wished the others a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year and hope to meet with Mrs. Voshell for the January meeting. Mrs. James Kelly was a welcome visitor.

By Secty.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for his foster daughter could not shelter her childhood from the hatred of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affairs ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to a baseball game. A ball, hit into the bleachers, struck Penelope on the nose and the neurotic Mrs. Gatlin removed her from the hospital to which her former husband had hurried her. Mrs. Gatlin expelled the child to Europe. Gatlin retired from business, married Penelope all his money, and was about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a rising young psychiatrist, was presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality for which her "saddle nose" was in part responsible. McNamara did not think she was a responsible criminal and obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Even Lanny, the doctor's faithful nurse, was won over to her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's clear explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny visited her and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter, which a confederate stole from her handbag outside the prison walls.

The following Sunday afternoon, therefore, the matron admitted Lanny to the visitors' room and sent for Nance, who arrived on the run and cast herself joyously into Lanny's arms. Then Nance led the latter into a corner, and speaking swiftly and in a low voice, said:

"We aren't permitted to be alone with our visitors, Lanny. You'll notice the matron remains in the room. She won't listen to what we have to say but she keeps her eyes on us. Will you smuggle a letter out for me? I've got one all written. But the matron reads all our letters before posting them—and I can't have her read this one. It's to a very dear friend and I just couldn't bear to have her read it. Besides, if she read it, she wouldn't mail it."

Lanny's face grew grave. "Do you realize, my dear, what you are asking me to do?"

"Certainly, I wouldn't ask anybody but you to do it, Lanny dear. You're so understanding. If you can smuggle the letter out for me it will mean that within a month I'll be out, too. I'm sorry I cannot give you all my confidence, Lanny, but I just can't. You're the only woman on earth I'd trust. The only woman who has ever been kind to me. And oh, Lanny dear, I do appreciate your friendship so."

Lanny comforted the girl and considered her request. Considered it sympathetically, too, for at heart she was an outlaw herself. She knew Nance Belden did not belong here; that if the girl had had a fair chance, if she had not been the victim of a code of justice born of ignorance and lack of sympathy, she would be in a sanatorium instead.

"You can read the letter when you get home, Lanny," Nance pleaded, "and if you do not approve of it, you need not mail it. That's fair, isn't it?"

Lanny fell into the trap. "Yes, that's fair," she agreed, for she had unbounded confidence in her own judgment of what was right and what was wrong.

"You old sweetheart," Nance breathed, and kissed her—and at that moment a tall, handsome brunette who had repaid her lover's faithfulness by killing him, and who had been standing around in the hall near the entrance to the visitors' room, moved off down the corridor towards the recreation room. At once a shrill scream penetrated the visitor's room; then another and another—a woman cursed and cried: "Stop them or they'll hurt each other."

The matron immediately left the visitors' room to quell the disturbance. Instantly Nance Belden drew a thick envelope from her bosom, unlocked Lanny's handbag and thrust the envelope in. She beamed proudly upon Lanny.

"I staged that ruckus," she confessed. "We have to play the game with each other here, you know—and two liars obliged me. Good behavior doesn't mean time off for them, you know—and a hair-pulling match isn't taken too seriously here. Oh, by the way, what's your address—I mean your home address and telephone number?"

"It's in the telephone book," Lanny replied, and wondered why Nance had requested the information.

"Kiss me again, you dear thing," Nance commanded. Then she was out of the visitors' room, running for the scene of the excitement in the recreation room. She met the matron hurrying back to the visitors' room, after having quelled the fight by her mere appearance.

"You left me alone," Nance explained, "and that's against the rules. So I followed. I didn't want you to think I'd take advantage of you."

The matron smiled and pinched the girl's cheek. "You funny girl," she said. "You don't belong here and it's a shame you have to be here. You have a fine code of honor, Nance, even if they hang it on you for shoplifting."

She nodded to Lanny as the latter passed out of the building. The guard at the entrance took up her pass, looked her over with a pretense of suspicion, opened the gate and let her through. She climbed into her little car and had just started it when a good-looking but somewhat flashy young woman came to the side of the car and said:

Instantly Her Guest Opened It and Abstracted the Letter.

"Are you driving to Greenbrae, madam?"

Lanny nodded. "I wonder if you'd give me a lift that far. The bus doesn't leave for an hour and I—"

"By all means," the generous Lanny agreed, and opened the door. The girl thanked her smilingly and climbed in. Half way down to Greenbrae, her guest said: "I think one of your rear tires is flat, madam."

"I was beginning to think so, too. It's bumpy, isn't it? Oh dear, I loathe changing a tire."

Lanny pulled up to the side of the road and got out, leaving her handbag beside her on the seat. Instantly her guest opened it, abstracted the letter Nance had given her and tucked it in her own handbag; then got out and with Lanny surveyed the flat rear tire.

"I'll help," she promised eagerly. "The least I can do to repay your hospitality."

Between them they shifted the wheels and resumed the journey. At Greenbrae the girl got out and thanked Lanny. No sooner had her little car disappeared behind a curve than the girl waved to a sedan parked in back of the little station and climbed in beside a young man who sat behind the wheel.

"Well?" he queried, apparently without interest.

"It worked," she replied. "Let's go."

CHAPTER IV

Arrived at the little bungalow she occupied in St. Francis Wood, Lanny put her car in the garage, entered her home, and sat down to read Nance Belden's letter. And when she failed to find it she did some of the logical thinking of which she was so eminent—capable in situations where her emotions were not being preyed upon.

"Good work," she decided finally. "That girl I picked up on the road to Greenbrae stole it out of my handbag when I got out to look at the flat tire. She must have visited Nance before I got there. She was a flashy sort of damsel, too, now that I think of it. An underworld hussy, doubtless; doubtless, too, known to the police. So Nance had no opportunity to slip her letter."

The matron watched too closely. Nance feared that would be the case, so she had an alternative plan. What a shrewd judge of human nature that girl is! She knew she could work on me, and oh, what a fool I was to permit it! Why, I'm as lawless as she is, only I'm a responsible member of society and she isn't. Nance knew I wouldn't fail to visit her; so she described me to her confederate, who spotted me when I drove up to the main gate and parked my car.

"When the confederate saw me coming back she drove a nail about an inch into my rear tire—simple as two and two are four. The nail was driven all the way in and the air was out before we'd gone a mile. Oh, dear, dear, dear, what a simpleton I am! I suppose I ought to do something about this, but then if I do, how can I explain my conduct to the prison officials?"

She realized thoroughly now the extent to which she had been an accessory before the act. What act, she wondered. Well, she would have to keep the details of this adventure to herself. Even Stephen Burt could not share her confidence in this, for Lanny was justly proud of her intelligence and integrity and loathed the thought that a suspicion of either might obtain in the mind of her beloved Steve. She feared, should he learn of her adventure, that he would never quite trust her again. And that would be unbearable.

That sly mix—telling her she could read the letter before mailing it; that if she did not approve of its contents she was free to destroy it. That was the point upon which the susceptible Lanny had impaled herself.

"Well, it can't be anything so very important," she decided finally. "It couldn't be part of a plan to escape, because escape from that place is impossible. Besides, no woman convict has ever succeeded in escaping from San Quentin. In all probability it was just a private message to one of her old underworld friends. That girl is too intelligent to dream of formulating plans for escape. Why, she couldn't get out of the front gate. She'd have to swim the bay to escape, even if she succeeded in getting through the exit from the woman's quarters and past that suspicious guard in the little house there."

So Lanny made herself a highball and resolved to dismiss all thought of the incident. She also resolved to give Nance Belden a piece of her mind if and when she decided to visit her again. And she was not at all certain she would make Nance another visit.

Two weeks later, while she was sitting before the fire, reading, her telephone rang and a man's voice said: "Is this Miss Rebecca Lanning?"

This is a new gasoline, a great improvement on the well known Crown Ethyl gasoline, but will be sold at the regular Ethyl price.

In his announcement of the introduction of Aerotype Crown Ethyl, President W. E. Smith of the Standard Oil Company, at Louisville, writes:

"Through our thousands of dealers and service stations in this state, we are offering Aerotype Crown Ethyl, the very last word in gasoline.

"It will be sold at the regular Ethyl price. Aerotype Crown Ethyl has been perfected for the express purpose of starting more quickly, warming up the motor more rapidly, vaporizing more completely, and with the absolute elimination of all knocking, and with an increase of 30% in potential power.

"For the first time, in Aerotype Crown Ethyl, a true aviation gasoline has been converted into automobile use.

"The Standard Oil Company is proud to offer, with its best wishes for the New Year, a new product—Aerotype Crown Ethyl."

Felix A. Gaines who was called here on account of the sudden death of his brother, Mr. Milton Gaines, was a caller at the Recorder office and renewed his subscription. Mr. Gaines left Boone county 33 years ago and is now a resident of Philadelphia.

The school children were made happy by the fact that there was no school during the past week. Their troubles began again this week when all schools in the county resumed their work. The second semester will be a long grind since no extended vacations will occur from now on.

Somewhat of an oddity occurred when lettuce which was sown in August did not mature until Xmas time. Mr. W. P. Beemon reports this happening. The drought delayed the growth until the comparatively recent rains. Lettuce from your garden on January 1 is not a common event in Boone county.

BURLINGTON BANK HELD UP BY THREE ARMED BANDITS

Two Are Captured; One Dead; Loss Small And Insured

Thursday afternoon, January 3, 1935, the Peoples Deposit Bank, Burlington, Ky., was held up at 3 p. m., by Ora A. Miller, Leo Warnica and George R. Hall, all of Gary, Indiana. The three men entered the bank as assistant Cashier Lewis Beemon left for the Post Office and with pistols and a sawed off shot gun compelled the other three assistant cashiers Miss Neil Martin, C. L. Cropper and G. S. Kelly to hold up their hands. One of the men, George R. Hall, entered the enclosure and took from the counter all money in the cash drawers and at the point of a pistol compelled G. S. Kelly to enter the vault and asked him to open the safe where the surplus was kept. As the bank is equipped with the latest and best protection, a Mosler delayed time lock, it could not be unlocked for a time of at least 15 minutes. Kelly so told the bandit but he had him attach the connection which turns on an electric light and when this was seen the bandit at once pulled the connection loose. The three employees were then required to enter the vault where the inner door was closed and locked. As this was being done Mr. Kelly pulled the key from the door and then the bandits could not enter the vault to do them harm.

A pistol was in the vault which was pointed at one of the bandits as he climbed over the railing, but just at this time Newton Sullivan, Postmaster, entered from a door that was just in line with the bandit and he could not use the fire arm. Assistant Cashier Beemon returned from the Postoffice about this time and saw the other employees with their hands up and ran to the Sheriff's office, but before any assistance could be given the bandits left the bank and got in their automobile which was left with the engine running in front of the bank, and drove out the pike towards Florence.

COMMUNITY PUBLIC SERVICE CO.

Sheriff Cotton and his deputy began giving the news to all points by telephone. The robbers were first shot at by J. P. Brothers as they passed through Linaburg. They were traced down Highway 42 towards Louisville and the State Police were notified at Warsaw. As they were preparing to block the Highway the auto containing the bandits passed at high speed. The Police followed them to a point in Grant county near Eagle Tunnel where they were compelled to abandon their machine and were shot at a number of times by the state police. By this time it was getting dark and the bandits were lost. Two sacks of money were found and returned to the bank by the state police. The Sheriff of Grant county, Taylor, and his deputies arrested the next morning Ora Miller at the residence of one Webster. When he was searched he had on his person, in small change, some thing over $250.00. Leo Warnica walked around in that neighborhood during the night and the next night rode by bus to Gary Indiana.

On Miller was found a number of cards and other things that identified him as being from Gary Indiana. Sheriff Cotton got in connection with the police there and in a short time they reported that they had Warnica under arrest and that he had confessed his part in the crime. Sheriff Cotton and his Deputy F. M. Walton, left at once for that place and returned Monday morning with their prisoner and lodged him in the Burlington jail, where he again admitted his part in the hold-up.

The Bank employees, Miss Martin, Mr. Kelly and Mr. Cropper, have identified Miller and Warnica as being two who were in the bank. The third man, George R. Hall, was killed Monday afternoon in Gary, Indiana while resisting arrest. Hall shot at the officers who were making the arrest and they returned the fire. Hall was not killed instantly but died shortly after he was taken to the hospital in that city.

More than $2200.00 was taken from the bank and nearly $500.00 has been recovered from the bandits. As the bank was fully covered by insurance they will lose nothing, and no damage was done to the bank or furniture.

The officers are to be commended for their prompt action in having behind the bars two of the bandits and the third killed while resisting arrest, and all within so short a time.

Crime does not pay is a very true statement. The bandits told the bank employees if they did not want to meet their Jesus to make no move but stand still.

The bank employees are also to be commended for their coolness in such trying circumstances. The President N. E. Riddell and Cashier A. B. Renaker were out of town at the time. At this point, it might be stated that President N. E. Riddell and Assistant Cashier G. A. Kelly left Tuesday afternoon for Gary Indiana for the purpose of identifying the slain bandit.

They returned Wednesday morning and advised the Recorder that the identification was complete. The dead bandit was the third member of the trio that committed the robbery. In conclusion, the local officials wish to compliment and thank the Gary officers for the fine and loyal support they extended in this case. It was a fine example of cooperation between law-enforcing agencies.

Leo Warnica was convicted for operating a still in this county near Lawrenceburg Ferry nine years ago, and while confined in jail here tunnelled his way out and made his escape.

NOTICE

The Constance Parents-Teachers Association will meet at the school house Wednesday Jan. 16th. All members and friends invited. Mrs. F. M. McGlasson, Pub. Chm.

FINE GAMES PROMISED ON FLORENCE FLOOR FRIDAY NIGHT

Three very important games will be played on the Florence floor, Friday night, January 4th. On this night the Walton High School boys and girls teams will match skill with the teams of the Florence High School. There is keen but friendly rivalry between the schools and undoubtedly the games will be played for all they are worth. Each team will try its best to maintain the school's record.

In addition, a third game will be played between the Florence Independent Coca-Cola team and the Walton Coca-Cola aggregation. This will be an important game since the result will determine the standing in the Kentucky League. If Florence wins, her team will head the list. If Walton is victorious, that team will stand first in the Coca-Cola League. The public is asked not to miss these games. The first game will begin at 7 o'clock.

SCHOOL NOTES

BURLINGTON SCHOOL NOTES

The greatest joy that comes to the average person is that from service to others. The Girl Reserves and Hi-Y clubs in our school have as a part of their annual program some service tasks. This year at the Christmas season it was the happy privilege of the members of these clubs to help others by collecting and distributing many articles of clothing and food for some of our less fortunate friends.

We are happy to learn that thru the cooperation of the Boone County Recorder we are to have an opportunity to add to our school Library. The subscription offer will permit us to have access to many books which we do not have at present if plans are carried out. As a school we pledge our support to this project and sincerely hope that our community will respond readily.

HAMILTON HIGH SCHOOL

The Hamilton "Farmers" registered their 7th and 8th victory of the season by defeating Verona 37 to 28 at Walton, Friday night and Warsaw 47 to 9, at Hamilton Saturday night. The second team overcame the Verona Seconds and the Hamilton "Farmerettes" overwhelmed the Independents in the preliminaries. Holy Cross High school will come to Hamilton on January 18th. Both a boy's game and a girl's game are scheduled.

An entirely musical program will be presented by the Honor Club at its meeting Friday afternoon Jan. 11. Several vocal and instrumental numbers and the Glee Club chorus will appear on the program.

The mid-term Exams will be given shortly and all club activity is being curtailed so that the students can prepare for the Exams.

NEW HAVEN SCHOOL NOTES

Our Hi-Y club has turned over a new leaf for the New Year. At the meeting last week two major actions were voted: To subscribe for "Boy's Life," to aid in protecting the fence on the front campus.

We are hoping the Boone County Recorder drive will be successful. One-third of each subscription or paid-up subscription will be used to purchase books for a circulating county library. Books will be selected that may serve all pupils from the first grade through High School.

Piner High boys invaded the Tiger den last Saturday night. The Tiger kittens put up a good scrap against the Piner Reeves. Sturgeon, Craddock, Rouse, Head and Barlow made ten points, two short of the Piner lead for the final 10 to 12 game. Jones and Griffith also saw action.

The tall Piner lads came to us undefeated for the season. Their lowest score for a game was 22 points. The Tigers feeling no bad effects of the holidays, held them scoreless to lead 5 to 0 for the first quarter. At the half it was seven to six for New Haven.

Seabee made Piner's first marker, shooting from the side line, after ten minutes of play. In the last minute of the third period Piner took her third lead, 10 to 9. New Haven's defense was too tight for the visitors but Dickerson's three long shot goals in the last of the game made the count 16 to 12 for Piner. The Piner people were nice and it was a good meeting.

RAYMOND COMBS RETURNS TO WILLIAMSTOWN

After working a year on the Recorder both as manager and lessee of the paper, Raymond Combs returned to his former work with the Grant County News, Williamstown. Mr. Combs was formerly connected with the Grant county paper for ten years. He is considered one of the best all-round newspaper men in the state and the Recorder is sorry to lose his services. In addition to his ability in the newspaper business, he has a winning disposition and a fine attitude for making friends. His many friends here regret his leaving and wish him the best of success in his present field.

Mr. Combs is being replaced by Will I. Myers, former owner of the Greenup, Ky. News and newspaperman of wide experience. For many years Mr. Myers conducted one of the outstanding papers in Eastern Kentucky and will be able to render fine service to the Recorder.

"EVERYBODY'S HERE"

TALENT PRODUCTION, WILL BE GIVEN IN FLORENCE ON TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY

Senators, beauties, prize fighters and bears, will be among the home-comers taking part in the home talent production "Everybody's Here," which will be presented at the Florence High school Auditorium on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, January 15th and 16th.

The show will begin at 8:00 o'clock each evening. It is sponsored by the Florence Parent-Teachers Association, and produced by the Symphon-Levis Producing Co. of Jackson, Michigan, the same company who produced the "Womanless Wedding" in Florence last year.

The scene of the production is a village homecoming celebration with the celebrities of the town gathering in the town hall to receive the notables and guests from Hollywood.

The mayor, portrayed by W. R. Davis, greets the guests as they arrive, assisted by the president of the woman's club, acted by Mrs. Virginia Goodrich.

After the guests have arrived, they are entertained by a program consisting of fourteen specialty acts.

The complete cast of characters follows:

Josh Taylor-Al Darby; Zeb Hicks-Griff Hoffman; President of Woman's Club-Mrs. Virginia Goodrich; Representative from Suffragette League - Miss Olive Vice; Lawyer Kelly-Ed. Tullis; Suppt. Purdue-Arthur Holden; Mayor Doolittle-W. R. Davis; Mrs. Doolittle - Dorothy Zimmerman; Pages - Grandfather Oldbrook-Tom McHenry; Grandmother Oldbrook-Larry Keeman; Minnie Oldbrook-Mr. Keeman; Senator Nebb-Clinton Blankenbaker; Mrs. Nebb-Mrs. Pages.

They were again entertained on Saturday night Jan. 5th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Arnold in honor of the marriage of their daughter Lina Mae, to Norris Riddell. The class presented a beautiful floor lamp to the newly weds. The Seniors are sorry to lose Lina Mae and wish her a happy and successful married life.

The debating teams have been organized under the supervision of the faculty. The Cardinals met the Kittens and the Tomcats in two very interesting games Friday night at Burlington. The teams broke even by winning one game and losing one. The girls game was a little one-sided in favor of the Cardinals, the score being 31 to 1 when Coach Goodridge took out the first team and put in the second team. The final score was 38-8.

The Cardinals will entertain the Dayton team on Saturday night, January 12. Come out and cheer for the Cards. "Here Comes Charlie," a comedy in three acts, will be given on January 16, 1935, at the school auditorium at 8:30 (E. S. T.). This comedy is being given by the young people of the Shinkle Methodist church.

TOBACCO GROWERS

AAA TOBACCO GROWERS CUT 40 PER CENT FOR 1935

Boone County AAA tobacco growers were recently notified that a uniform 40 per cent reduction will be made in 1935, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. This reduction differs from 1934 in that growers were allowed to select by choice either a 33 1-3 per cent reduction or a 50 per cent reduction.

The uniform reduction is all calculated on the original base before the 1934 reduction was made and not from the allotment. The grower last year with a 10-acre base could grow 6 2-3 acres on a third reduction or 5 acres on a half reduction. The grower this year may produce 60 per cent of his ten acre base or six acres. He can grow in this case one acre more than he did in 1934, if he reduced a half or 2-3 of an acre less than if he reduced a third last year.

The same rental payment of $20 per rented acre will be paid. The above man who reduced a third last year, raised 6 2-3 acres and rented 3 1-3 acres at $20 per acre or on a half reduction raised five acres and rented five acres at $20 per rented acre, this man in 1935 may raise six acres and rent four acres at $20 per acre and receive $80 in rental payments.

Present information indicates the 1935 rented acres may be used for almost any purpose the farmer may wish to use them.

On January 18th the Sixth District, Ky. Branch of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers will meet in Ft. Thomas, Ky., for its initial meeting of 1935. The session will open promptly at 10:30 A. M. in the Highland High School with the school associations as hostesses. Mrs. Taylor Myers is president.

Reservations are to be made with Mrs. George Smith, Corresponding Secretary, 1052 Grand Ave., Newport, Ky. South 0448-J by Wednesday January 16.

Edith E. Jones, Pub. Chm.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Ryle were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Garrison Tuesday.

Supt. D. H. Norris wishes to advise the public that the Boone County Recorder subscription contest will get under way in all the county schools Monday, January 14. This is offering a great opportunity for the schools of the county to net a nice sum which is to be used for establishing better library service. It is also an opportunity for the children to earn some money and a chance for the school as a whole to win a splendid prize. The plan is as follows: For each $1.50 subscription sold, 50c of the amount goes to the school. The pupil who sells the subscription gets 10 per cent of the amount paid to the school or 5c for each subscription turned into the school.

The Recorder is offering three cash prizes to be given to the schools on the following basis: The school showing the greatest return per capita of bona fide enrollment of pupils living within the school district will receive a cash prize of $10.00; a second prize of $5.00 and a third of $2.50 will be given to the school placing second and third respectively.

Pupils are not permitted to solicit subscriptions outside the boundaries of their own school district. This regulation was made to prevent duplications in the soliciting of subscriptions and also in order to give the schools an equal chance who have pupils attending high school in other districts. Without this ruling the chances for Bellevue, Constance and Petersburg would be lessened by the fact that their high school pupils attend other schools.

Instructions and supplies will be sent to all schools in time to start the contest Monday.

The Recorder wishes to state that the main purpose of this contest is to secure new subscriptions. However, as a convenience to those who are now in arrears and to assist the paper in our collections of past due subscriptions, the Recorder authorizes the various school representatives to make any such collections for us. In every case those paying past due subscriptions will be given receipts for the same signed by the school principal.

MAGISTRATE CLEEK ENTERTAINS COURT HOUSE OFFICIALS

Magistrate J. F. Cleek believes in starting the New Year right. That is the opinion at least of those who were fortunate enough to attend a dinner given by him Tuesday noon at the Weaver Hotel. Mr. Cleek ordered an excellent dinner to be served to the other Court House officials among whom was included the editor of the Recorder. The dinner was served by Mrs. "Lloyd Weaver" which is sufficient testimony that it was served just right. Those at the table were: Judge N. E. Riddell, J. H. Huey, Hubert E. White, A. O. Rouse, A. D. Yelton, F. M. Walton, W. B. Cotton, B. H. Riley, Elmer Kirkpatrick, C. D. Benson, E. A. Skillman and the host, J. F. Cleek.

THE NEW 74TH CONGRESS

The new Congress promises to be one of the most momentous in the history of the nation. It marks, in the first place, the passing of the old "lame duck" sessions. The men who took their seats at this session were those chosen last November by the people to represent them.

The work of the new Congress will probably be along the line of national planning, plus reformation of some of our present practices, than it will be for recovery and relief.

The President has an overwhelming Democratic Senate and House with which to work out his policies. It may prove too one-sided perhaps, especially if certain of the radical elements that sailed into power under the Roosevelt New Deal banner take it into their heads to kick over the administration traces.

There is a great amount of work facing the new Congress, and the President will undoubtedly endeavor to expedite this as much as possible. The national legislators are in a position to do much good for the country, but there exists also the possibility of doing much damage to recovery progress.

President Roosevelt remains the commanding figure in the national set-up at Washington. As long as he retains this command, there is little reason for national fear. But if Congress becomes obstreperous, the flying fur and feathers ought to make quite a spectacle.

THE STATE HIGHWAY PATROL

Forty stolen motor cars have been repossessed for their owners by the state police in the brief time it has been in operation.

Such splendid work in law enforcement demonstrates not only the need of a state police force, but its usefulness in curbing banditry and protecting property. The stolen automobiles recovered have a value of $12,000. And this is but one phase of the helpful activity of the state police.

The state highway police are proving to be a valuable arm of the law. Their activity will eventually correct infractions of traffic laws and make the highways safer.

A continuance of commendable activity in enforcement of law, in curbing traffic violators, in regaining stolen automobiles as has been done in the initial stages of activity, will so conclusively demonstrate the need and usefulness of a state highway patrol that the citizenship will desire the next legislature to enlarge the force and extend the scope of its operations.

PUMPKIN PIE

As a man approaches the end of his journey through life he loses interest in trivial things and devotes his attention to matters of consequence. Thus, Charles H. Mumford, the oldest shareholder in the United States Steel Corporation has been known to expatiate on the merits of pumpkin pie at the annual meeting of the corporation. It was of greater interest to him than the reports on tonnage or the rate of dividend.

Those familiar with pumpkin pie properly made will share his enthusiasm. But it must be made right with ginger and cinnamon and possibly nutmeg with brown sugar and a generous number of eggs. Then it is a confection to delight the most particular palate.

There are base imitations made with squash or sweet potatoes. And there are pumpkin pies without ginger or other spices. They are an offense to the palate and should never be allowed to masquerade under a false name.

This is the season when the pumpkin pie flourishes in all its glory. It is an American institution as distinctive as the buffalo and the red Indian.

Therefore, it should be standardized so that when a man gets a wedge of it, either in his own home or in a restaurant, he would not have put before him a flat and tasteless of yellow "goo" lying on a soggy crust.

SCHOOL OR JOBS

"The trouble with youth," a man who knows boys recently commented, "is its youthfulness." If the aphorism needs explanation, he added let it be said that a crime characteristic of youth is an urge for activity. If opportunity for its expression is not given thru schools, and jobs are unavailable, is it to be wondered that unadjusted boys and girls experiment in fields that lead to conflict with law and order?

The dangerous age for a youth is the period when he is bridging adolescence and early maturity. Statistics prove this. In England and Wales, forty-two percent of all persons found guilty of indictable crimes last year were under twenty-one. In the United States, according to Department of Justice reports, two-thirds of all arrests for crime involve persons between fifteen and twenty-four, and those nineteen years old lead any other age group.

No grand social scheme can solve the problem of unadjusted youth at one swoop. Boys and girls, like their elders, are not cut to one pattern. But any adult does a real service who makes it possible for a youngster to remain in school, which is the best agency for life-training that society has yet evolved, and when school days are over helps him get suitable employment.

PERVERTED SPORTSMANSHIP

Sometimes we wonder whether people haven't let their "sporting" attitude toward everything warp their judgment in such serious matters as crime and the pursuit of criminals. The notion that the fugitive from justice is entitled to a "sporting chance," that is a sort of a game between the officers of the law and the criminal, in which everybody is entitled to take the part of either side, accounts in large measure we think for the maudlin sympathy often exhibited toward offenders.

Boys are taught that it is good sportsmanship to shoot birds except on the wing. But certainly that does not apply when the quarry is not "game" but vermin. One is taking no unfair advantage of a skunk to shoot it sitting, or a rat to entrap or poison it by any means that can be devised.

We think a great deal of good would be accomplished if there were some way to impress upon young folks the flagrant violators of the law, murderers, kidnappers and robbers, are not "game" but vermin. The principle that every criminal is entitled to a fair trial has been warped by a sort of perverted sportsmanship into the feeling that every criminal has a right to his liberty as long as he is smart enough to keep out of the clutches of the law, regardless of the meanness he adopts, even killing to evade his pursuers.

We do not think that crime will ever be well controlled so long as criminals are made to feel that they have any measure of public sympathy back of them, or believe that they are taking part in a sporting adventure.

Fireside Thoughts

The 4th Congress has just convened. The cost to operate Congress is $125,000 per day. If we allow eight hours as a working day, our national law-making bodies cost us in excess of $15,000 per hour, or about $250 per minute. It is a matter of record that the time consumed by some congressmen in an attempt to defeat a bill has cost the country many times more than the expenditure incorporated in the measure. However, we are an indulgent people.

Unemployment, under the present administration, gives rise to unusual situations now and then. A Georgia negro was called upon to register for the military service. He was out of work and that fact was uppermost in his mind.

"What is your name?" asked the official.

"George Washington," was the reply.

"Well, George, are you the man who cut down the cherry tree?"

"No, sah; I ain't de man. I ain't done no work for nigh onto a year."

We were glad to learn that the tax on checks was removed on January 1. This was a nuisance tax of the worst type and should never have been inaugurated. It will be happy news to the writers of some $4,000,000 checks annually. Probably only the Treasury will regret to see it go. It will lose around $450,000.00 a year in revenue.

As the new year beacons with hope, it might not be a bad idea for the individual reader to take off a little time from the daily routine and think about life and some of its problems. Many of us have been warped in our judgment by the huge dollar mark that has been hung on everything in this country.

Let's do some straight thinking. Quit kidding ourselves. Look carefully into our participation into the activities of the race around us and decide whether we have been an asset to the community or a form of human shark, preying upon others among whom we live. Analyze our aims and purposes, our methods in the past and the possibility of reaching a successful goal in the future. Then get busy, and do what we ought to do in 1935.

Time is one heritage with which each man is endowed equally. Of course, the span of life may differ for each individual, but the rich man's minute is no longer than the poor man's sixty seconds. The reflection on Time seems to resolve itself into a consideration of not how long we may live, but how wisely. Of one thing we can be certain—once spent it can never be regained.

Time cannot be hoarded; it must be spent, but it can be invested to purchase a life full of rich achievement. A wasted dollar can be regained, but a wasted minute is gone forever.

We read this week a statement in one of our exchanges which gave us an idea which we hope to use if we ever are fortunate enough to get a vacation. The writer said:

For a vacation trip some time this year it would be wise to select a trip through the counties of Kentucky many of which have within their borders the most beautiful and attractive scenery in the world composed of blue grass, meadow land, clover hills and vine clad mountains, all drained by beautiful streams.

Know your own state and leave your money in her borders. You will be surprised at the people you will meet upon this trip from other states and other nations. See Kentucky first.

Editorial of the Week

PRIMARY PREFERRED

(Springfield Sun)

Much is being said and printed these days concerning the holding of a primary for the election of party nominees in the forthcoming State election. Some favor a primary, others a convention, and there is some merit in each, though little can be said, as we view it, for the convention plan.

Those who have been privileged to attend conventions easily understand how candidates are selected. The voter has no voice in the matter. The candidate most suitable to the politicians is selected, whether or not he may have all the necessary qualifications for the office for which he is selected, and following his selection, if the voters are pleased, all is well; if displeased, there begins a certain lack of interest a spirit of resentment, that may result in loss for party power. If, on the other hand, primary election is held, as provided by law the voter makes the decision. He feels he has at least had the privilege of expressing himself and if his favored son fails to get the nomination he is anxious to assist in electing the candidate who received the most votes, being the popular choice of the majority.

The Sun is of the opinion there will be less friction and vastly more interest in the final election if voters are given an opportunity to participate in the selection of candidates for the various offices, hence we are heartily in favor of a primary election, believing it preferable to the convention plan from every viewpoint.

Hand-picked candidates have frequently failed to hold the support of the electorate, and this, it seems, is a time when the voter should be given an opportunity to express himself. A few party leaders should not assume the authority to select candidates since it is the one best plan whereby factions may be able to perpetuate themselves, or their ideas in office, a condition not always conducive to party success nor tending to good government.

UNUSUAL ITEMS CLIPPED FROM OUR KENTUCKY EXCHANGES

Abnormal Hog

Githermon Bros., on State road between Carrollton and Campbellsburg, butchered a 250-lb. hog the other day, the liver weighing 39 pounds, and having a heart as round as an apple. It seemed to be in perfect condition in every way.—Glasgow Times.

Freak Ear of Corn

Louis Conrad, well-known farmer of Goforth, left at the Outlook office a freak ear of corn of the Eureka ensilage variety. In place of the grain rows being straight they run in spiral form, each row completely encircling the cob.—Falmouth Outlook.

Twelve Pound Sweet Potato

Would you like to see a sweet potato weighing 12 pounds? Visit the Williamsburg Hardware Company and take a look at this specimen which was grown by T. G. Collett of Hypo, this county. The potato is the Porto Rican variety.—Whitley Republican, Williamsburg.

Strawberries on Thanksgiving

For the second consecutive year, J. H. Churchill, Murray, had strawberries for Thanksgiving dinner. Tuesday afternoon Mr. Churchill picked several nice ones in his garden and brought a few to the Ledger & Times office.—Murray Ledger & Times.

Giant Porks Raised in Letcher
Sam Dotson capped the climax in raising big hogs in this section, having just slaughtered two "porkers" that came close to tipping the beam at 1,000 pounds each. They were the largest hogs killed in years in Letcher county.

Dotson lives in the Camden section of Jenkins.—Pike County News, Pikeville.

Ear of Corn in Three Colors

Dr. A. B. Riley, of this city, has been presented an ear of corn by a member of the family of Kit Jackson, of Daviess county, which is of three different colors, white, white and red mixed and wine. The ear is of regular size and the colors stop suddenly with very little blend.—Ohio County News, Hartford.

Good Season for Turnips

This is the season for large turnips. A few weeks ago Rev. J. T. Cherry brought a turnip to The Standard office weighing four and one-half pounds. We thought, as everyone else, that it was the largest grown in the county. We and others were wrong.

This week Dr. J. R. Crittenden has given us a turnip grown on his farm near Gordonsville, weighing five and one-half pounds, and measuring exactly two feet around.—Todd County Standard, Elkton.

Men Find Time to Loot and Rhyme

Believe it or not but Pulaski-co. thieves have turned to poetry in their idle moments. As evidence of their poetic leanings Robert Rainwater has a note he found tacked to his hen house door Saturday morning after he discovered 30 hens had been carried off by the intruders, who left only a rooster. The note, scribbled in pencil read: We steal from the rich, We steal from the poor, We leave you this old rooster So you can raise some more.—The Commonwealth, Somerset.

Prisoners League Message for Judge

"We have gone home for Christmas. May both of you have a merry one and a happy New Year." That was the message left for Police Judge J. C. Nelson and Town Marshal Leonard Howard Monday by two prisoners who broke out of Sharpshurg jail. The prisoners, Earl Call, of Nicholas county, and Adrain Kerns living near Sharpshurg, escaped after breaking off a bolt holding the lock on the jail. They were serving sentences for drunkenness.—Bourbon News, Paris.

FORTY YEARS AGO

From the Files of The Boone County Recorder
ISSUE OF JANUARY 9, 1895

The Ohio River is rising very rapidly.

Sam Hind, Jr., of Walton, is authorized to receive and receipt for subscriptions to the Recorder.

Arthur Rouse has returned to school at Hanover. This is his last year at that college.

W. H. Rouse qualified as Police Judge of the town of Florence, Monday. He will make the boys dance up to the mark.

In this impression will be found the quarterly state of each of the three Boone county banks, and it will be observed that the hard times had no effect on them.

James Gregg has located in Burlington, where he has opened a shoe shop, and will make new work and repair old work. Take your work to him and give him a trial.

Henry Quick, of Hebron called on the Recorder one afternoon last week. Henry is one of the cleverest single men of the county, and we are surprised at his dangerously close approach to bachelorhood.

The board of Tax Supervisors met last Monday and organized and elected John S. Huey chairman. The other members are W. M. Rogers, Elijah M. Hatton, Oscar Gaines and J. R. Clutterbuck. The board is now at work on the assessor's book.

Hiram Souther, of the Florence neighborhood went last Tuesday evening to do up his chores for the night. Not coming in as soon as his wife thought he should, she went out and was horrified by finding him lying motionless in the barn lot. Mr. Souther passed away the next morning. Apoplexy caused his death. He was about 76 years old.

Supt. Voshell has received the following from Col. Ed. Porter Thompson: "I regret to have to inform you that the State Treasurer is unable to honor in full my warrant for the January payment of the remaining School Fund, due for the current year. Checks for one-half the amount will be sent you next week in time for you to make payment to that extent on the second Saturday, 12th inst. Please notify your teachers, that as little disappointment possible may ensue."

Tailorsport
Some young lambs have appeared in this neighborhood.

J. K. Pettit came out from Ludlow in his cutter, Friday.

Plenty of ice in the river at this writing.

Constance
Albert Wentz was badly cut and bruised about the face by a lick from a cow.

Mr. Herbstreit, who was recently so badly scalded, is getting better.

Joe Ridwell was quite snowed under for a few days.

Shooting matches were discussed at the Constance Christian prayer meeting last Wednesday night. The discussion became so animated that the meeting had to be adjourned.

Hathaway
T. J. Stephens is very poorly at this writing.

A large crowd attended the debate at Beech Grove Friday night. It was quite a success. There were several good speakers. The subject was "Affirmed that the world is growing worse." The negative won of course.

Linsburg
John P. Utz was apprehensive of the flood damaging his barn last Sunday.

It rained for 20 hours Sunday and Sunday night and the creek went on a rampage.

Jerry Quigley, of Constance and Miss Eva Beemon, of this place were married on the 8th inst., by Rev. Lentz.

Gasburg
P. E. Cason and wife left for Tampa, Fla., on the 1st inst.

Our neighboring town, Aurora, is making strenuous efforts to induce a woolen mill and a plow factory to locate therein, with flattering prospects of success. The two concerns will employ about 1,000 hands.

Florence
Born on the 2nd inst., to James Tanner and wife, a girl.

The town went wet at the election last Saturday and there is a prospect for a saloon or two here in the near future. Some of our citizens voted for it because they think it will revive business. About the only business it will revive is that of Keeley. It is not strange that the will of a majority of people of the county can be set aside by one little Hamlet of less than 300 people. It is a clear case of the tail wagging the dog.

Bellevue
During the suspension of navigation, our resident pilots Jack and John Lindenburg were at home.

"Dad" House, of the Aurora Ferry Co., passed through our burg on the 5th inst., in search of his boat, which he located at the mouth of Lick Creek.

Mrs. Wm. Berkshire and Mrs. Geo. Walton, of Petersburg, came down on the eve of the 5th to spend the Sabbath with relatives, and lo! the snow disappeared and they were transported back, sleigh and all, in a road wagon.

Gunpowder
Lute Ayler's fine shooting won all the turkeys at the shooting match last Saturday.

Geo. Ruth, Jr., is working at the Consolidated Distillery on Mill Creek, Cincinnati.

Petersburg
Solon Alloway has come! Lack from Indianapolis to stay.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for their foster daughter could not shelter her childhood from the hatred of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affairs ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to baseball game, but he hit into the bleachers, struck Penelope on the nose and the neuritic Mrs. Gatlin removed her from the hospital to which her former husband had hurried her. Mrs. Gatlin, who had a child to Europe, Gatlin retired from business, willed Penelope all his money, and was about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II.—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a rising young psychiatrist, was presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality, for which her "sacred nose" was in part responsible. McNamara did not think she was a responsible criminal and obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Even Lanny, the doctor's faithful office nurse, was won over to her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III.—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's clear explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny visited her and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter, which a confederate stole from her handbag outside the prison walls.

"Yes. Who is this?"
"Never mind. You wouldn't know me if I told you who I am. I'm a friend of Nance Belden's."

"Oh, indeed?" Ironically. "And who might Nance Belden be?"
Lanny was nobody's fool. On the instant every sense was alert, for if this was a trap set by the authorities, who, in some mysterious way, had gotten wind of her escape, she was resolved not to walk into it.

"Are you going to be at home for an hour, Miss Lanning?" the voice pursued. It was a pleasant enough voice, Lanny reflected.

"I am, but what business is that of yours?"

"Oh, well, if you're going to be such a cutup," the voice rejoined, "I'll not bother to argue with you over the phone. I'll come out. Good-by."

He hung up, leaving Lanny in a state of acute mental perturbation, which did not subside until she heard her doorbell ringing some ten minutes later. If subsided then. Her courage always mounted when there was an immediate situation to face. "Nance Belden's friend," she decided instantly.

For a moment she considered telephoning Dan McNamara, then decided the worthy fellow might prove an embarrassment. So she got a pistol from her bureau drawer—because she was a practical soul and dwelt alone. She had purchased the pistol as a precaution—and went to the door. She cocked the pistol, took a long breath, threw open the door suddenly and raised her weapon.

"Put 'em up," she commanded harshly.

"Don't be silly, Lanny dear," a soft voice entreated her wearily. "It's only me."

"Nancy Belden—you little devil," Lanny almost shouted. "Come in here this instant."

Nance Belden reeled in and Lanny closed the door behind her, turned the bolt, switched on the hall light—and screamed.

"Pipe down," Nance commanded. In that queer, faint, weary voice. "I'm not a corpse, but I'll tell the world I came mighty close to being one just before lock-up time this afternoon. Lanny, dear, I crashed the gate."

"Well, you'll crash out of here in a split second, you little heifelon," Lanny cried sharply. "Get as a dishrag and your hair like a witch's, and covered with blood. Where are you hurt?"

"Bullet through my left arm, high up near the shoulder. That guard could shoot, and he did! If my boy friend hadn't shot back at him and made him hunt his hole I'd be fishbait this minute."

"You've got to get out of here, Nance," Lanny was terrified. "How many visitors have you had since you've been in San Quentin?"

"Just you, Lanny."

"The authorities will look me up and they'll come here. Understand? They'll come here—there, they're on the telephone now. Oh, my good lord, what have I done to deserve this?"

She dashed into her kitchen and took down the telephone receiver. And again a masculine voice said:

"Miss Rebecca Lanning?" "Yes," she said calmly. "Who's speaking?"

"Dan McNamara."

"Oh, hello, Dan. How are you?"

"Fine, Lanny. How's yourself?"

"Well, I might be dead for all the interest you've taken in me since you swallowed that good highball you grafted off me the day you came to Doctor Burt's office with that Nance Belden girl." She added archly—"you egg!"

Dan McNamara laughed. "Can I come out now?"
"The very idea. Of course not. It's almost ten o'clock and I'm just about to retire!"
"This is business, Lanny. I've got to see you at once."

"I didn't know the police were after me."
"The police aren't, but the chief is. Lanny, that Nance Belden escaped from San Quentin late this afternoon. She got to San Francisco all right. We know that because we found the speed boat she crossed the bay in tied up in the yacht harbor at the Marina. There was blood all over the cockpit and bullet holes in the hull."

"All of which proves, Dan, that God's in his heaven and all's well with the world. Are you seriously trying to recover the girl and send her back to the penitentiary?"

"I'm not. I'd give two of my big buck teeth to see her make a clean getaway. You know that. But the warden—naturally. It seems you visited Nance two weeks ago and smuggled a letter out for her and mailed it."

"Dan, I give you my word of honor I neither mailed a letter for her nor passed it to somebody else to mail. Nor did the girl discuss with me any plans for escape. If she had I would have told the warden, in order to prevent her escape. It wouldn't have been kind not to do so. The girl is mentally irresponsible and it would have occurred to me that, in any mad attempt to escape, a guard might shoot at her."

"Well a guard did, and he hit her, too. But he didn't stop her. Her outburst gave opened on him with a Tommy gun from a speedboat off the point, and made him hunt his hole. Nance swam out to the boat under cover of their protective fire; they hauled her in and beat it forty-five miles an hour across San Pablo bay and headed up toward Carquinez straits, while daylight lasted. After dark they doused their lights and sneaked back. The warden telephoned Central office here and gave the alarm. I wasn't on hand, but of course the captain on duty had the water front covered at once. He had two men at the St. Francis Yacht club and they saw a speedboat sneak in and across the little harbor to a vacant berth on the Marina side. Before the cops could hurry across, the people in the boat jumped out and to a waiting car. The cops followed in a police car as soon as they could, but one of Nance's friends riddled their front tires with machine-gun bullets and the trail was lost."

"How exciting, Dan!"

"Yes, and it will be more exciting for you, Lanny. I got home about two minutes ago and my phone was ringing. It was central office trying to report to me. They're just starting a couple of dicks out in a cruiser to watch and see if Nance tries to make your house. You're a trained nurse. The warden's found out that much—matter of looking you up in the San Francisco directory. So he thinks that she'll head for your house to receive medical attention. She got hit, you know. And you must be a friend of hers—otherwise why did you call upon her?"

"Dan," said Lanny desperately, "she's here now!"

"Into your car with her, Lanny, and beat it out to my house with her." He gave her the address. "That's the last place on earth the devil himself would hunt for an escaped convict."

"I've just heard a thump and a crash in my living room, Dan. I think she's fainted. Telephone Doctor Burt to come to your house—that he will have to probe a bullet wound and dress it. Tell him to bring some whisky and two or three hot-water bags, and be on hand yourself to let me in. I can't leave here until I've mopped up my bloodstains she may have left on the sidewalk and my front steps. Good-by."

Lanny was right. Nance Belden lay on the floor of the living room in a faint. She picked the girl up in her strong arms and carried her down a short flight of stairs that led from her kitchen to the garage below. She heaved her into the car, ran back upstairs, got a wet mop, and by the light of the electric lamp over the front entrance searched for drops of blood.

She found a few and followed them to the sidewalk, eradicating them with vigorous sweeps of the mop, then dashed back into the house, jammed on her hat and coat, ran outside again, threw open the garage door and backed her car out. She paused again, to shut it, then swung up the street as the half-painted of a police cruiser came turned the corner. She swung wide to give it a clear berth, turned the first corner and spurted. She followed a zig-zag course until she felt sure she had thrown the police car off her trail—provided they had become suspicious and started to follow her; she turned up a residence street that she felt reasonably certain would not be patrolled by traffic officers at that hour of the night, and speeded up.

Dan McNamara was standing on the sidewalk in front of his house when she drew up. He reached into her car, lifted Nance Belden out and ran with her down an alley alongside the house to the basement entrance, which he kicked open. Lanny followed. Up the stairs to the kitchen the big chief ran, through the kitchen and on to a rear bedroom. Lanny jerked a small rug off the floor and threw it on the bed.

"Let her bleed on that for a while," she commanded. "No sense in messing this nice clean bed all up. There must be blood in my car, Dan. Take a wet towel and go out and clean it thoroughly, please, while I'm undressing this poor lamb. Get me one of your wife's clean nightgowns."

"Ain't got no wife, Lanny. Use one of mine."

"Just as good as any. Get it. Who takes care of you here?"

"My mother."
"Can she be trusted?"
"I've sent her to the country for a month," he evaded. "I'm sleeping here and eating downtown."
"God bless our home, Dan. Clear out—and watch for Stevie and let him in."

She ran to the kitchen, turned on the hot water and set an enameled skillet under the faucet; then returned, undressed the girl. In an adjoining bathroom she found clean towels and placed a cold one on her head. When she returned to the kitchen, the enameled skillet was sitting in the midst of a cloud of steam, so she knew it had been thoroughly disinfected; she filled it with warm water, carried it into the room and with a wet towel mopped the two holes in Nance's arm and examined the wound.

"Missed the bone," she decided. "Bled like a stuck pig, of course, piece of her dress probably carried into the wound."

In the medicine closet, Lanny discovered a small bottle of iodine. So she doused the wound with it, wrapped a cold towel around the girl's shoulder and tucked her into bed.

The Hold Up!

Our bank was held up by three unmasked bandits on January 3rd at three o'clock P. M., but as our reserve cash is protected by a delayed electric time lock which can not be opened for more than 15 minutes, only the working cash of $2226.67 was taken and this was covered by insurance. All bonds and securities of both bank and customers are carried with our City correspondent as a matter of safety.

Two of the bandits are in jail and the other killed while resisting arrest.

The unceasing efforts and the quick work in apprehending these bandits by all cooperating officials are much appreciated by the officials of this bank.

BOONE CO. FARM LOAN ASSOCIATION

LARGEST MONEY LENDERS IN BOONE COUNTY—HAS BEEN OF GREAT HELP FINANCIALLY TO FARMERS

The Boone County National Farm Loan Association held its annual meeting of stockholders on January 8th and the following Directors elected: E. A. Martin, J. H. Grimes, Thomas Henley, B. E. Aylor and Karl Rouse.

Immediately following the stockholders meeting the elected members of the board met and elected the following officers: E. A. Martin, President; J. H. Grimes, Vice-President; A. B. Renaker, Secretary-Treasurer.

This farm loan association is carrying on its books and servicing for the Federal Land Bank of Louisville, and the Land Bank Commissioner, over a million dollars in loans to farmers, the majority of which are carried for Boone county farmers. This fact makes the Boone County National Farm Loan Association the largest money lender in Boone county as all loans made with the Federal Land Bank of Louisville must originate in and be closed by the local association.

This organization was chartered in 1922 and up to October 1933 only loans of $452,800.00 had been made. Nearly $600,000.00 in loans were closed during the past year, making now over a million dollars of loans in force.

The Secretary-Treasurer advises that no applications for loans have been filed since the first of last November, which indicates that the money stringency has passed.

The Federal Land Bank and the Land Bank Commissioner rendered a great service to the farmers, creditors and banking institutions during the money crisis of the past two years in taking over these long time mortgage loans, the most of which were tied up in banks, and by affording this relief many homes of farmers were saved from foreclosure.

Borrowers are saving many thousands of dollars in interest as so through the Federal Land Bank as loans are being carried at 4 1/2 per cent until 1938, after which date the rate will only be 5 per cent.

When one considers that all counties in the United States were securing loans from Federal Land Banks the same as Boone county, it can readily be understood why banks are so liquid at this time. This condition of financial institutions will no doubt eventually lead to prosperous times again.

REWARD FOR CAPTURING BANK ROBBERS

The Peoples Deposit Bank is a subscriber to the Voluntary Reward Fund under which agreement each subscribing bank contributes $2.50 when ever a bank robber is captured, making a fund of $500.00 which will be paid for each one of the robbers captured dead or alive in this holdup.

All banks are not subscribers to this voluntary organization and should any non-subscribing bank be robbed no reward would be offered.

FARM ACCOUNTS RECORDS IMPORTANT 1935.

The keeping of complete farm account records is the most important job done on the farm. From fifteen to twenty-five leading Boone county farmers for the past ten years have been cooperating in the College of Agriculture Farm account project according to County Agent, H. R. Forkner. These farmers have received a good return on their investment in this work.

The College of Agriculture farm project includes the taking of an inventory and the keeping of a complete farm account record during the year. The Agricultural Extension Service supplies the farm account record book, assists the farmer in methods of taking inventories and at the close of the year, totals the calculations on the various farm enterprises and supplies a complete analysis on each enterprise as to the expenses, receipts, labor income and other important farm factors. The Field Agent and County Agent visits the farmer to discuss and explain the analysis in person. There is no cost for record books or any expense whatever on the part of the farmer, but the farmer to receive this service must in turn be interested and willing to do his best to keep a complete record during the year.

Mr. R. E. Proctor, Field Agent in Farm Account Work from the College will assist the County Agent on Monday and Tuesday, January 21 and 22 to start new farm account books. Every farmer interested may have this service by notifying County Agent H. R. Forkner, Phone, Burlington 41 at the earliest possible date.

RIDER B—AAA TOBACCO CONTRACTS

Boone county growers who did not sign AAA reduction contracts last year may sign Rider B contracts for 1935 and receive exemptions on their 1934 crops up to their base according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. No benefit payments will be made on the 1934 crop but benefit payments will be made on the 1935 crops.

Growers who sign Rider B contracts will be required to establish a base on the same basis as regular contracts. They will take a forty per cent reduction in 1935 on the same basis as contract signers of 1934.

FARM AND HOME CONVENTION LEXINGTON JANUARY 22-25

The twenty-third annual Farm and Home Convention will be held at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, January 22nd to the 25th. This program is usually attended by a number of Boone county farmers. A good program has been planned for this year.

ANNUAL POULTRY SCHOOL TUESDAY, JANUARY 24TH

The annual Boone county winter poultry school will be held on Tuesday, January 29th according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. Poultry management and disease problems for all interested in poultry work are scheduled.

All Boone county poultrymen are urged to make plans for this event.

4-H TOBACCO SHOW AND SALE

A district 4-H Tobacco Show and Sale will be held at Carrollton, Saturday, January 19th according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. This sale will be for those Boone County members who did not get to take part in the Show and Sale at Covington on last December 15th.

The Carrollton show and sale will be taken part in by the 4-H members in the entire Carrollton district. The tobacco will be delivered on the 17th and 18th and sold on the 19th.

1935 FARM ACCOUNT RECORDS

All Boone County farmers interested in keeping complete farm account records for 1935 are urged to notify County Agent H. R. Forkner, Burlington, immediately.

Farm account books will be available free of charge for those farmers who agree to keep complete records in 1935.

Martha Blythe was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Conner, of Covington.

Mrs. J. W. Kelly spent one day last week with her sister Mrs. B. J. Crisler, of Petersburg.

HARLAN JOHNSON

KILLED MONDAY NIGHT—JOHN W. GRIFFIN ACCUSED OF KIL- LING

A disagreement that had existed between John W. Griffin and Harlan Johnson of the Union neighborhood resulted this week in the death of Johnson. When Griffin returned home Monday night he found Johnson there. It seems that Griffin had previously ordered Johnson to remain away from his home. An argument started and as a result it is alleged Griffin picked up a rock and struck Johnson on the head. The blow resulted in Johnson's death a short time later. The killing took place on Gunpowder creek on the Lucien Stephens farm. After receiving the blow Johnson walked from this farm to Abe Griffin's place on the Ed. Utz farm, about a mile distant, where he died about six hours later.

Griffin was arrested and brought to Burlington by Deputy Sheriff Frank Walton and lodged in jail. Bond was fixed by Judge N. E. Riddell at $5,000, which Griffin was not able to make at the present writing.

The case will come up for trial at the April term of court. Griffin had been working on the roads under the relief. He gave his age as 55 years. Johnson, the man killed, was 58 years of age. It is also stated that the two men were double cousins.

HEBRON SCHOOL NOTES

The Cardinals entertained the Dayton teams Saturday night. Although the Hebron girls came out with a victory, it was one of their off nights. The final score was 26 to 13.

That old, unlucky number, 13, was lucky for the Cards for the Dayton boys couldn't get over that number either. At the end of the half the score was rather one-sided, it being 11 to 2 in favor of the Dayton Green Devils. But when the Cards went in for the last half it was with the determination to fight their hardest and they were rewarded with a victory. The final score being 14 to 13. Here's hoping the boys keep up the good work.

The Cardinals will be entertained by New Haven Friday night, while on Saturday night they will entertain Piner. The games start at 8:30 E. S. T. Come out and back the Cards.

We are very proud of our new Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia which came last week. The library is gradually increasing for many donations have been given.

SPECIAL TERM

OF COURT IS CALLED TO IN- VESTIGATE ROBBERY OF PEOPLES DEPOSIT BANK

A special term of Boone County Circuit Court was called Friday at Burlington by Judge J. G. Vallandigham to impanel a grand jury to investigate the robbery of the Peoples Deposit Bank, Burlington, Jan. 3.

The grand jury will hear charges of robbery against Ora Allen Miller, 38 years old, and Leo Warnica, 27, both of Gary, Ind., charged with being two of the bandits.

The grand jury also will investigate charges of having assisted one of the robbers to escape against George Richardson, 36, oil station attendant, and his wife, May Richardson, 29, both of Elliston, Ky.

Richardson and his wife said they were forced to drive one of the robbers to Cincinnati when the bandit appeared with a shotgun following the robbery.

Miller and Warnica are being held at the Covington jail. Miller had $144 in silver and $140 in currency, said to have been the bank's money, when arrested.

In Hall's pocket was found $315 in currency, including 72 new $1 bills, which bank officials identified as part of the loot.

Of the $2,200 stolen, bank officials said they have recovered approximately $500. Gary police have in their possession the $315 taken from Hall's pockets.

Ward Yager, Warsaw, Ky., Commonwealth Attorney, will have charge of the prosecution. He will be assisted by B. H. Riley, Burlington, County Attorney of Boone County.

MR. AND MRS. C. O. HENNESSY ENTERTAIN

Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Hennessy of Price Pike, entertained a group of their friends at a party at their home Tuesday evening, Jan. 8th at 8 o'clock. Four tables of "500" were in play during the evening. Prizes were won by Mrs. Stanley Lucas and Mr. Goebel Stephenson and Mr. Ed. Osborne.

Following the evenings play dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Goebel Stephenson, Mr. and Mrs. Clint Blankenketter, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Berkshire, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Scott and Miss Jane Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Mentor Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Osborne and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lucas.

10-7 until the half, with Hamilton in the lead. The "Farmers" faced with the prospect of a forty mile walk if they didn't come through, hit the basket with regularity in the third quarter, scoring 22 points. Doolin and Aylor led the scoring with 12 points each with Perry following with 6. Pollis led the Sanders scorers with 8 points. The "Farmers" and "Farmerettes" met Holy Cross at Hamilton on the 19.

The Honor Club held its bi-monthly meeting Friday afternoon. Several numbers by the "Puddle Jumpers" and songs by the chorus and a trio composed of Wm. Wesley Aylor, Lloyd Kelly Jones and Virginia M. Miller, comprised the program. Margie Miller and Ruth Perry sang and Mr. Asbury delivered several amusing anecdotes to supplement the program.

NEW HAVEN SCHOOL NOTES

This week marks the closing of our first Semester. It also brings tests and some extra work. Two classes will change courses. The Sophomores will trade Algebra for Business Arithmetic, and the Juniors and Seniors will trade Geography for Physiology and Hygiene. The last round-up at Semester closing means much to high school pupils because it is that mark that goes on permanent records.

We find that New Haven has a goodly number of girls named Dorothy. They are classified in age from eight to seventeen. Meet Miss Newman, Gloire Parker, Judge Bradshaw, Moore, Maddin, Poole, and Smith all named Dorothy. We also have Miss Frances Stevens and Miss Frances Stevens, no relation.

A change in the weather and illness is affecting our attendance this week.

Verona's Reserves were too good for our Kittens last Saturday night. At the half it was 4 to 6, for Verona but they pulled up to 23-12 when the game closed.

The Tigers led all the journey but were off to a slow start. The score by quarters—5-1; 15-2; 26-7; 36-17. We play Hebron boys and girls here Friday night of this week.

LEADERSHIP IN KENTUCKY LEAGUE CHANGES HANDS

In a jumble of important games, the leadership in the Kentucky League of the Coca-Cola Basketball Championship did a double somersault last week and finally landed in the combined laps of Corinth and Florence, with Walton, the disposed leader, and Petersburg a bare half game behind; and Glencoe only a shade behind the second-placers.

Florence threw the monkey wrench into the Blue Grass machinery last Friday night with a 29 to 19 win over Walton. This elevated Florence to first place over Walton; but on the following day officials of the Championship threw out the Sparta-Florence game of Dec. 21, won by Florence. Florence promptly turned around and waxed Sparta on Wednesday 59 to 34, for its second win of the week.

To mix matters more thoroughly, Corinth copped two games during the week, while Walton beat Butler, and Petersburg beat Silver Grove. With the disqualification of Crittenden, each of the above-named leaders gained a victory in the standings and the final line-up as listed here left Corinth and Florence tied for first.

Corinth's two wins were over Dry Ridge, 39 to 27; and over Sparta 49 to 31. Petersburg trounced Silver Grove .65 to 50. Walton downed Butler, 47 to 15, then lost to Florence. Corinth made the best showings with two wins each; although Florence must replay the Sparta game. Petersburg and Glencoe won their only games scheduled. Walton broke even in two tilts, Butler, Ghent, Silver Grove and Dry Ridge each dropped one game and Sparta two.

This week's schedule should "raise the roof." On Friday night, Jan. 18, Ghent invades Petersburg. On Saturday night Florence goes to Walton for a return game. Silver Grove travels to Dry Ridge and Butler to Corinth. Dry Ridge plays at Sparta on Tuesday Jan. 22; and on Wednesday Glencoe plays at Ghent, and Walton at Sparta. The Florence-at-Walton tussle this Friday is the head-liner.

The largest crowd that ever attended a sale in Florence was at the sale of the Owen Bradford estate, Saturday, January 12. Everything sold for good prices and the sale was quite satisfactory in all respects. The property sold for $2,500. Col. Lute Bradford was the auctioneer.

FACING OUR DUTY

We know that the government is doing much to aid those who would otherwise become discouraged victims of the depression, and while some may criticize the expenditure of public funds for this purpose we cannot condemn it in principle. Certainly, there are those who need help, and they should have it, even though it means, as it inevitably does, that sycophants and chiselers will horn in and take money that they are not entitled to receive.

The estimate is that 23,000,000 people will receive relief this winter from the government which has been forced to assume the task because private charity could not bear the burden. However, the government which passes out food and clothing and money cannot restore broken spirits or fan the fires of the human heart. This is the task of service that lies ahead of every community in the U. S. and we should respond by doing what Mr. Newton D. Baker, head of the "1934 Mobilization for Human Needs," urges us to do, namely, organize, formulate a program, organize donations and carry on in an effective manner.

Mr. Baker declares that when we have done our best, "the feeble and sick will need care and nursing" and "that character will be forming in several million boys and girls under conditions all too likely to start young trees in twisted, if not crooked, directions."

PREVENTING COLDS

The annual economic loss that comes to the American people every year through the common cold cannot be estimated, but any citizen who has suffered the inconveniences that attend this malady will be interested in any method of avoiding attack.

Tests made by several scientific workers seem to show that codliver oil, taken regularly, will do much to aid the individual from "catching" colds. Our own opinion is that proper personal cleanliness, adequate rest and a complete diet will make most people immune from attacks of this too common nuisance.

NOBODY WANTS WAR BUT—

We sympathize wholeheartedly with every effort to prevent war. Nobody, except perhaps a very few ambitious military men, a little handful of political leaders who conceivably might intrench themselves in power by means of a successful war, and—perhaps—a few cold-blooded men who figure that war would put money in their pockets, wants this nation or any other nation to go to war.

We do not believe that the profit motive has been as powerful in causing wars as some folk would have us understand. But we do not agree that we should make no preparation for war merely because somebody might make a profit in selling guns, airplanes, poison gas and other war material to the Government.

"In time of peace prepare for war" is a saying as old as civilization itself. Human nature hasn't changed much, if any, in ten thousand years. One never knows when a spark may touch off the warlike spirit, and make the very folk who don't want war willing and eager to fight.

Our nation isn't likely to pick a quarrel with any other. But unless we are prepared to defend ourselves, some other nation may try to pick a quarrel with us. The best insurance against war is the widespread knowledge that we are equipped to fight if necessary, in defense of our national rights.

GOOD ROADS.

UGLY ROADSIDES

Ever since the motor age began, America has been building itself out of mud. Now that job is pretty well done. The roads are good. But the roadsides are uglier than they were in the old days, because of the devastation wrought by paving work, cuts and fills and often needless destruction of trees, shrubs and grass.

The natural, simple and varied beauty of old-fashioned rural highways will never return. It can be replaced, though, by new beauty adapted to smoother grades and more sweeping curves. Beginnings have been made in many places; but generally speaking, the highways so lavishly provided for motorists are still bare and ugly.

This is not only unfortunate. It is foolish. When anyone lays out fine driveways through a private estate, he removes the construction marks and provides something to look at.

Many billions of dollars have gone into American highways in the last twenty-five years, and are still going into them, and increasing millions of people make driving and touring their chief outdoor sport. Why not finish the job and make driving more attractive and refreshing by planting trees, grass, wild flowers and shrubs?

AN ESTATE

Not every father is able to leave his son a big estate made up of lands, mortgages and bonds, but any father can bequeath to his children an estate worth indefinitely more—one for which they will rise up to call him blessed. He can leave an honorable name, a good reputation, the memory of a Godly life and a record of fair dealing. He can teach his son to have a profound respect for a fact, a deep reverence for a character, a thirst for knowledge and a willingness to work. If any youth has all this he will not need any money that may be willed him; if he does not have this no money left him will do much good. This is an estate any man can leave his children.

Editorial of the Week

A FOOLISH CONTROVERSY (News-Herald)

Recently a number of letters have been published, the contributors having a heated argument over the Protestant and Catholic Bibles.

From our study of history and from our experience we are convinced that all of the quarrels, all of the wars, all of the sectarianism, all of the bitter feeling and all of the trouble between believers in Jesus Christ have been due to disagreements over the form of His worship or because of the greed and avarice of the leaders of some group. The fight is always over questions of theology rather than questions of principles.

In every Bible, whether Protestant or Catholic, we are certain will be found the Golden Rule; will be found the Sermon on the Mount where Jesus said: "Blessed are the poor in spirit;" "blessed are they that mourn;" "blessed are the meek and thirst after righteousness;" "blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness;" "blessed are the merciful;" "blessed are the pure in heart;" "blessed are the peacemakers;" "blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness sake."

In all of the teachings of Christ where He told us how to live we have never been able to find anything which even the simplest person could not understand. So far as we are concerned we will leave arguments and quarrels over matters of form to theologians and be satisfied if we can fairly well follow the great teachings of Christ in which He told us how to live. We are confident the world will be better and will come nearer being Christian when substance is considered to be the only important thing and that form is only the choice of each individual, a matter of no concern to anyone else.

Letters To The Editor

Florence, Ky., Jan. 8, 1935.

Editor Recorder:

Enclosed find price for subscription for coming year for Recorder. Since there is such a noticeable improvement in the paper, we hope for a brighter future for our dear, old Recorder. May you realize your hope of restoring the paper to its original state.

Respectfully,

Mrs. J. H. Mitchell

Huntington, Mo., Jan. 8, 1935.

Editor Recorder:

Enclosed you will find check for subscription. Well, I guess Kentucky is no exception as far as the drought is concerned but we are getting plenty of rain now. We sure were dry here last summer. We had to haul 40 to 50 barrels of water a day for about three months. We never raised anything here, not even a garden. No hay, no corn, a little wheat, and a few beans. We did not raise an eighth enough to feed us till spring. Had to buy feed all summer practically. Have not had much winter here so far and hope we won't have much.

Regards to old friends. Tell Edson "Hello" for me. See they are booming A. B. Rouse for governor. Tell him I am for him.

Yours, truly,

R. J. Stephens.

Grant, Ky., Jan. 5, 1935.

Editor of Recorder,

Burlington, Ky.

Perhaps I should not take the Recorder the coming year owing to hard times but to give it up is like giving up an old friend. It has come to our home as far back as I can remember as my father was one of the very first subscribers when William Riddell was publisher many years ago. Now it begins to look like old times since you have charge and I feel like I must continue my subscription. I am sending check for $1.50 with very best wishes for the New Year.

THE FARM AND HOME

(Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

Farmers in all parts of the state are saving valuable land by constructing terraces. Little cash outlay is necessary where a farmer does the work himself. Interested persons should see a county agent or write to the College of Agriculture for information.

By waiting until after heavy freezing, before pruning grape vines, the immature wood is killed and withered and can be easily identified and removed. Pruning can be done any time in winter, but the wood should not be frozen when cut.

Good "depression" dentrifices are being used in many homes. Baking soda alone or salt alone may be used or a solution made of two parts of soda to one part each of borax and salt mixed together. These dentrifices are effective for daily use, but not to correct mouth disorders.

Highly flavored feeds may produce objectionable milk and cream, especially in winter. Do not feed at milking or near milking time corn silage, green alfalfa, cabbage, turnips, kale, soybeans or sweet clover. Feed them just after milking.

ing. Farmers in the central states who face the problem of providing an emergency hay crop for the 1935 may find the solution in seeding Korean lespedeza on winter wheat or with oats early next spring, says a statement sent out by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

MT. ZION ROAD

100 Kilowatt-hours at	8c
Next
100 Kilowatt-hours at	6c
Additional Kilowatt-hours	4c
Minimum billing	$2.00

DELAYED PAYMENT PENALTY: 10 Per Cent additional if not paid on or before 10th of month following period billed.

The new domestic or household schedule, known as the HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY RATE replaces the present DOMESTIC LIGHTING RATES and DOMESTIC COMBINATION RATE. A new COMMERCIAL LIGHTING RATE replaces the present COMMERCIAL LIGHTING RATES. The COMMERCIAL HEATING and COOKING, LARGE POWER and SMALL POWER rates are unchanged.

SERVICE CHARGE ABOLISHED

Customers, who formerly paid a service charge of $1.00 and purchased energy at 9c and 6c with a minimum of $2.00, will note that the service charge has been abolished. The minimum remains the same but allows the use of 19 kilowatt-hours, whereas previously the minimum allowed the use of 11 kilowatt-hours. In addition, steps of 3½c and 3c per kilowatt-hour have been added, whereas the lowest step under the old rate was 6c per kilowatt-hour.

Customers, who formerly were on the optional lighting rate no service charge, purchased energy at 15c for the first 100 kilowatt-hours, 13c for the next 100 and 12c for all over, with a minimum of $2.00. Under the new HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY RATE, the minimum remains the same but allows the use of 19 kilowatt-hours, whereas previously the minimum allowed the use of 13 kilowatt-hours. Instead of 15c, 13c and 12c per kilowatt-hour for additional energy, they will pay for added usage in steps of 9c, 6c and so on down a sliding scale to 3c.

Combination rate customers (refrigerator, range and water heater owners), who already earn a reduced rate for volume consumption, will find that the HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY RATE offers them added benefits. The minimum under the new rate is $2.00 instead of $3.50, the energy rate is maintained at present low average for consumptions up to 95 kilowatt-hours per month and further reduced for larger consumptions by the addition of 3½c and 3c steps. The lowest step under the old rate was 4c.

REDUCED COMMERCIAL LIGHTING RATE

The Commercial Lighting customers also benefit by a substantial reduction in rates. They have been paying a service charge of $1.50, plus 9c per kilowatt-hour for the first 300 and 6c per kilowatt hour for additional usage, with a minimum of $2.00. Under the new COMMERCIAL LIGHTING RATE, the service charge is eliminated. The minimum remains the same but allows the use of 19 kilowatt-hours, whereas previously the minimum allowed 5. This greatly reduces the average cost of all energy used. A further reduction takes place after 400 kilowatt-hours by the addition of the 4c step. The lowest step under the old rate was 6c.

Commercial lighting customers on the optional commercial lighting rate (no service charge) will find the new schedule a source of substantial savings. Under the new COMMERCIAL LIGHTING RATE they get 19 kilowatt-hours for the minimum of $2.00 instead of 13 kilowatt-hours as in the past. Instead of paying 15c, 13c and 12c for additional energy, they will pay for added usage in steps of 10c, 9c and 8c and so on down a sliding scale to 4c.

These rates approved by Kentucky Public Service Commission

THE FIRE MICROBE

If fires were caused, as is disease, by a microbe, the entire resources of science would be given to finding a cure for them. The waste of life and materials resulting from fire would be regarded as intolerable, and the physician discovering the cure would go down in history with the great healers of all time.

As a matter of fact, fire is caused by a mental microbe—though it can't be imprisoned in a test-tube. The microbe's name is Carelessness. It dwells in the human mind—and the fact that millions of people allow it free play, making no conscious attempt to control it, is reason for an utter, indefensible fire waste of 10,000 lives and $500,000,000 worth of property annually.

Fire can be prevented in a majority of cases. A little thought, a little knowledge—in other words, a little ordinary care—will do the job. Any fire marshal will be glad to tell you about the common fire hazards and how to eliminate them. The fire insurance industry publishes booklets and carries on an unrelenting war against fire, and it too will give you the mental ammunition you need. Faulty furnaces—improper storage of inflammables—uncut grass—improper electric work—such little things as these are the friends of the fire-microbe, and his ally in his work of destruction.

Learn how to prevent fire—only by doing that can you discharge a definite duty you owe your community, your neighbors, your family. Every fire starts because some individual was careless, and prevention of fire is largely an individual matter. If you and other citizens will take the time that is necessary to learn the importance of care in relation to fire, a great problem will soon be solved.

MISTAKES

Fighting a buzz-saw, hoping to evade death or taxes, believing all one fears or talking back to your mother-in-law are all recognized by most of us as mistakes.

We can avoid the mistakes which stand out like a headlight on a 1913 flivver.

But still we all make many mistakes. If we didn't we would make little progress. A wise man utilizes his mistakes, remembering the costly experience and profiting thereby. He learns how to steer clear of such things in the future.

An editor probably gets more blame for a mistake than anyone on earth. A little typographical error can cause more fuss than a jackass in a tin barn.

You may have heard that yarn about the country editor who wrote a flowery obituary when the town miser died. The town miser was influential and had many relatives. The editor did the best he could with the material at hand and he finally concluded by writing that the man had gone to his last resting place. Then the printer made a mistake of setting the type so it read to the effect that the man had gone to his last "roasting" place. The proof reader muffed one and the fracas started.

The editor doesn't get a fair break on this mistake business.

When a garage man makes a mistake, he adds it to your bill.

If a carpenter makes a mistake, well, it is probably just what he expected.

When a preacher makes a mistake, take nobody knows the difference. When a judge makes a mistake it becomes the law of the land. When a doctor makes a mistake, we send flowers.

But when an editor makes a mistake—GOOD NIGHT.

THE VALUE OF GOOD ROADS

No longer are hard surfaced roads a luxury.

They are now a necessity in all lines of business.

Today the automobile, the truck and the tractor are vital factors in every community.

The truck is employed extensively in nearly every line of business. The tractor has helped in farming, in road work, in hauling and has helped and increased the business of the business farmer and the city business man.

The business man depends upon his automobile for work and for pleasure.

Good roads bring the markets closer to the cities, the towns and farming sections and facilitate deliveries.

GOOD ROADS HAVE EXPANDED THE TERRITORIES OF THE JOBBER AND THE MANUFACTURER AND SAVE THE FARMER TIME AND MONEY IN GETTING HIS PRODUCTS TO THE MARKETS WHEN THE MARKETS ARE RIGHT.

LAST WEEK

FOR SCHOOL DRIVE FOR RECORDER SUBSCRIPTIONS

This is the last week of the school drive for subscriptions to the Recorder. Anyone who wishes to subscribe for the paper or to renew their subscription and at the same time help the schools to increase their libraries should not fail to attend to the matter this week. This also applies to those who may wish to pay past due subscriptions. In all cases one-third of the amount will go to the school. Since the drive ends this week, future subscriptions would not benefit the schools.

In addition to giving the schools one-third of the money collected, the Recorder is offering prizes of $10.00, $5.00 and $2.50 to the three schools placing first, second and third in the contest. The Recorder feels that these propositions are very generous to the schools and hopes the public and our subscribers in particular will cooperate with the schools in the matter of increasing their libraries. If you have any idea at all of subscribing for the Recorder or if your present subscription is past due, you should by all means attend to the matter this week in order that the schools may benefit from it. Remember it will not do the schools any good if you put off the matter beyond this week.

CENSUS

UNDER WAY ON FARMS—ARMY OF 25,000 WORKERS IS ENUMERATING FARMS OF COUNTRY NOW

An army of 25,000 census workers are now enumerating the nation's farms, farm population, crop production in 1934, and the number of livestock. Each enumerator has been allotted a specific territory to canvass and has been trained in "Schools" held during December.

There are 100 inquiries on the farm schedule being used by the census enumerators. These inquiries relate to the tenure, age, and race of the farm operator; the acres in the farm; the classes of land, according to us in 1934; the farm value; number of farm dwellings occupied and unoccupied; farm population; the number of persons now living on farms who lived in non-farm residences five years ago; the number of family, laborers and hired help; the acreage and the production of crops in 1934; the number of livestock on farms; and the production of milk, eggs, wool and mohair in 1934.

The enumerators will finish their work during January and the farm schedules should be on their way to Washington, these farm schedules will be edited, coded, and tabulated and the results published.

Because of the effect of drought and economic situations, this is perhaps the most important agricultural census ever taken. The work of enumeration, editing and tabulation will be facilitated as much as possible so that these data may be available in planning and carrying out crop and livestock, farm credit, substance, homestead, marginal land and other programs.

Farmers are urged to write, phone or call at the headquarters of the Census Supervisor in their district and procure a sample copy of the farm schedule, study the questions and have their answers ready for the enumerator who will visit them during January.

Word has been received here from Harold Conner, who is in Miami, Florida, that he has been in the hospital for minor operation on one of his ears.

Mrs. D. R. Blythe is out again after an attack of the flu.

CLUBBING RATES

The RECORDER and any of the papers listed below will be mailed to subscribers in Boone County where the papers are not delivered by carrier.

HOW FINE A GRADE OF TOBACCO, HAVE YOU?

Leslie Seebree, Burlington R. D. 2 brought to the Recorder office a sample of five grades of tobacco namely: Flyings, trash, lugs, bright leaf, and red leaf. We are no judge of tobacco except in the form of a cigar, but common sense teaches us to judge Mr. Seebree's tobacco as of the highest quality. It appealed to us as being about as fine as is likely to be grown in this county.

Leslie has a habit of growing a fine quality of tobacco as well as other products. He was particularly optimistic as to the sample of tobacco he brought in and is willing to wager $1.00 that no one else in Boone county can submit higher grade samples of all five grades. Here is a chance for some one to get $1.00 if he thinks differently. The Recorder will gladly act as a holder of stakes.

BURLINGTON SCHOOL NOTES

After a week of rest, the Burlington Tomcats and Kittens will be anxious for action Friday night, Jan. 25th, when Hamilton comes to the local hardwood for two games. It will be recalled that the games at Hamilton earlier in the season were hard fought with the Hamilton girls winning and the Burlington boys winning. Mr. Kirkwood has a special interest always when playing the Hamilton boys and girls for he served as Principal of the Hamilton school three years before coming to Burlington. A large following is expected from that community as well as from our local community.

The grades were entertained last Friday afternoon in chapel by the pupils in the second and part of the third grades under the direction of Miss Cropper. The chief part of the program consisted of a dramatized presentation of Cinderella. Work that grows out of classroom study is perhaps the most beneficial to the children for any chapel programs.

On Wednesday, Jan. 16, the members of the Debating Club went to Cincinnati to the Library for research work on the question of Federal Aid to Education. Howard Garrison, Elmore Ryle, Harry Cook, Ivan Norris, Donald Kirkpatrick and Albert Weaver went for this day of study. The debating schedule this year will include the County Schools and some outside at Piner and Ft. Thomas.

Part of the Mid-Term Examinations were held over until Monday because of the illness of Mrs. Fowler last week. However, they are all completed now and we are starting on the last half.

Mrs. Eddins was sick Monday and Tuesday of last week. We also have a number of students who are sick.

Don't forget to get your subscription to the Recorder in this week, for the contest ends then, so far as the schools are concerned.

LITRELL MAY BE CANDIDATE FOR LEGISLATURE

Former Senator L. C. Littrell of Owenton, Ky., is being urged by his friends to make the race for representative from the Henry and Owen County districts.

Senator Littrell has had wide experience in the legislative halls in Frankfort.

The senator is known as the champion of the cause of the farmer. He fought for their interests when a member of the Senate.

He has indicated that he will make this race, and it is believed his election will put him in line for the senatorship.

Senator Littrell has been busy raising a fine crop of tobacco between editions of his Owen County newspaper.

BOONE COUNTY UTOPIA CLUB NO. 2 TO MEET

The Boone County Utopia Club No. 2 will meet at the Court House in Burlington on Thursday night, January 24th. All members are urged to be present and visitors interested in Utopia club work are invited. Hebron group will be in charge of the program.

Dr. Garrison and family moved Tuesday from the home owned by J. M. Eddins in Burlington to J. W. Goodridge's farm on the Bellevue pike.

UNLAWFUL INSURANCE

RAMPANT IN KENTUCKY—COMMISSIONER ASKS AID OF INSURING PUBLIC

Declaring that the solicitation of insurance for unauthorized companies by unlicensed agents has grown to alarming proportions, Insurance Commissioner G. B. Senff announced today that he was gathering his forces for a determined war on outlaw companies attempting to do business in Kentucky.

"Beginning January 7, we plan a concerted campaign to round up the agents of these companies, and we will not rest until the last one is behind the bars of a county jail," Commissioner Senff declared. "It is enough that this is a violation of our state laws, and it is damnable that these vultures should prey upon Kentuckians least able to pay—the poorer people who must buy cheap insurance if they are to have any."

"I am asking the assistance of the newspapers, authorized companies, Kentucky agents, and the insuring public in driving these bootleggers out of the state. There are 448 companies operating legally in this state with sound policies and contracts and assets of more than $21,000,000,000.00.

"The chance of a Kentucky policyholder collecting a claim under a policy of an unauthorized company is negligible. As these companies operate without regulations or supervision, of this Department, they have no process agent in Kentucky and a policyholder would be forced to go to the home state of the company to bring suit. Many of these companies are too weak financially to qualify to do business legitimately in Kentucky, and they are all dodging taxes, laws and state supervision.

"I would like to be quoted as stating that this Department considers policies of unauthorized companies to be without value to residents of Kentucky in 'buying insurance'."

LOCAL NURSE

APPOINTED TO RESPONSIBLE RED CROSS POSITION

Miss Eunie Willis, Special Nursing Field Representative, National Red Cross, is initiating an intensive home hygiene program in the state of Kentucky. Kentucky is the first state in which this program is to be promoted, with the hope that its 140 Red Cross chapters will participate. Miss Willis' work is visiting these 140 chapters and organizing a committee to work in connection with each chapter, and be responsible for the activities of the state program. These classes are to be taught by enrolled Red Cross nurses, if they can be found in the particular localities; otherwise, by those from nearby cities.

All instructors must be eligible to authorization by Red Cross according to their standards of qualifications. After the period of organization for the program, then Miss Willis will act in the capacity of professional adviser to the instructors of these classes and also act as a field nursing representative of the National Red Cross in the state.

It may be stated here that Everett L. Dix, formerly principal of the local schools, now is Assistant Director of the Eastern Area of the U. S. Red Cross. He appointed Miss Willis to her present position. If this work is successful in Kentucky, it will be installed in other states.

Miss Willis began her new work Jan. 22. She will return to Burlington as frequently as possible.

FLOATER FOUND IN RIVER AT CONSTANCE

Esq. Hubert White was called to Constance Tuesday afternoon to hold an inquest on the body of a white man found in the Ohio river at the ferry landing. The body was so badly decomposed that no identification marks could be found. The flesh was leaving the bones and from all appearances the body had been in the water for several months. The body was nude, part of a necktie was around his neck whether that was used to take his life could not be determined. The body was buried near where it was found.

MILLER AND WARNICA

ATTEMPT TO BREAK JAIL AT COVINGTON LAST SATURDAY NIGHT—ARE AT PRESENT IN BURLINGTON JAIL

Five prisoners in the Covington jail, including William Wegford, Covington's "boy bandit," and two suspects in the recent Burlington bank holdup, were locked up in solitary confinement Monday after an unsuccessful attempt to break out of the jail late Saturday night.

Wegford, who was arrested recently and charged with a series of Kroger grocery store holdups, has been named as one of the leaders of the attempted break, together with Leo Warnica, Gary, Indiana, charged with the recent holdup of the Burlington bank.

Warnica has a record as a jail breaker, having escaped from the Burlington jail several years ago after being arrested on a liquor charge.

Others involved in the attempt to escape were Lawrence Taylor, Covington youth, who was arrested with Wegford in connection with the Kroger store holdups; Ora M. Miller, former Gary, (Ind.) patrolman, arrested with Warnica in the Burlington bank robbery, and Joe Ashcraft, charged with automobile theft.

Warnica and Miller are being held for Boone county authorities. The prisoners captured Michael Finan, turnkey, in their attempted break, but released him unharmed when they found they could not open a steel door which separated them from possible freedom.

Finan was rushed by Miller, Warnica and Ashcraft as he went to the "bull pen," or recreation room to place the men in their cells for the night. Miller grabbed the turnkey and held him while the other prisoners tried to open the door with several keys they had found on Finan.

When they found they had the wrong keys the men returned peacefully to their cells.

LOCAL STUDENTS ATTEND CURTIS BUSINESS COLLEGE

The Curtis Commercial College is one of the outstanding schools of its kind in this section of the country. There is no need for any young man or woman who desires a thorough business education to go farther. The Curtis School is particularly in good position to provide expert instruction in business and allied subjects since they moved to their new quarters in the Mutual Fire Insurance Building. This building is in the heart of Covington at Pike and Madison. Students may enter for mid-term work up to Jan. 28 or probably later.

The following local students are attending this fine school: Joseph Berkshire, Mrs. Joseph Berkshire, Robert Groger, Hugh Davis, James Bush, Drexel Miracle, Cecilia Kallmeyer, Sara B. Melvin and Dorothy Sullivan.

NEW ADMIRAL FOR GUNPOWDER CREEK

Gov. Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky again accorded the accolade to a resident of Greater Cincinnati. This time, however, the lucky one was not made a colonel. Instead, the recipient of the honor, Prof. George Spertl, Ft. Mitchell, Ky., director of the Basic Science Research Laboratory at the University of Cincinnati was appointed to the staff of the Kentucky governor Thursday with the rank of Admiral of Gunpowder Creek.

ERLANGER BRIDGE CLUB

The Erlanger Luncheon-Contract Bridge Club was delightfully entertained Friday by Mrs. Henderson Hightower, of Latonia. On the attractive place cards were inscribed the names of Mrs. Howard Dressman, of Union, Boone County, Mrs. J. A. Steltenkamp, of Ft. Mitchell, Mrs. Arthur Blythe Rouse, Mrs. Mrs. Gayle William Arnold, Mrs. Marris Yager, Thomas, Mrs. Chas. William Goodridge.

BOONE COUNTY CROP MAKES HIGH AVERAGE

Crop of tobacco grown by R. L. Slayback, of the Beaver Lick neighborhood sold at the Anglin Ave. Warehouse in Lexington, Ky., Jan. 10, 1935, making the high crop average of the day $34.72 per hundred. One basket of 494 lbs., selling for $41.00 per hundred.

SENATE
Democrats	69
Republicans	25
Progressive	1
Farmer-Labor	1
HOUSE
Democrats	322
Republicans	102
Progressives	7
Farmer-Labor	3
Vacancy (Ind.) Repub	1

TRI-STATE CROP AVERAGES FOR PAST WEEK

The Tri-State Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Co., Covington, Ky., announce the following crop averages for the past week.

F. A. Stephenson, Walton, Ky., 25.50; H. A. Lillich, New Richmond, Ohio, 25.01; Sam Brownfield, Deobsville, Ky., $24.86; Jno. L. Williams, Batavia, Ohio, $46.1; V. W. Gaines & Son Burlington, $24.53; E. K. Young, Moscow, Ohio, $23.54; F. Guttridge, Morning View, Ky., $23.15; Perry Presser, Burlington, $23.11; L. S. Seebree, Mason, Ky., $23.07; Henry Jarman, Burlington, Ky., $22.32; W. A. Pugh, Foster, Ky., $22.46; Ezra Franks, Williamstown, Ky., $21.40; John Noel, Walton, Ky., $21.38; Frank McGlasson, Constance, Ky., $21.27; Basil Bonar, Butler, Ky., $21.27.

EDWARD LEE TILTON, JR. MARRIED IN NEW ORLEANS

A communication from Algiers, La., announces the coming marriage of Edward Lee Tilton, Jr., to Miss Anna Russo of New Orleans, La. The marriage is to be performed in the church of the Holy Rosary at a Nuptial Mass at 8:00 A. M., Jan. 26, 1935.

Edward Lee Tilton is the son of Marie Antoinette McNeely Tilton and Edward Lee Tilton of New Orleans. He is related to John Lloyd Norris and to Martha Jane Norris McNeely. Those in charge of the wedding would have loved to have had all Boone county friends present to witness the happy event. All their friends wish them a long and happy life.

POULTRYMEN SPEAK—ANNUAL POULTRY SCHOOL

Grant Maddox of Florence, and Misses Nannie and Johnny Mae Terrill of Burlington Route 1, will speak at the annual winter poultry school program to be held at Burlington on next Tuesday, Jan. 29, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

Mr. Jim Humphrey, poultry specialist and Dr. T. P. Polk, field agent in veterinary science from the College of Agriculture will also speak on the above program and advise poultrymen on those practices which give greatest dollar returns for poultry work.

Poultry holds third place as a source of major incomes on Boone county farms. The income through better poultry practices could be increased many thousands of dollars. Too little attention is paid to poultry work on most Boone county farms. Every farmer and farmer's wife should attend the annual poultry school to receive new inspiration and information for more profitable poultry work. Poultry as other farm enterprises never pays if improper methods are used.

Turkeys are an important part of the poultry income on many farms. Those in charge of the poultry school hope to devote a part of the day to discussion of more profitable turkey raising.

CORN-HOG CHECKS DISTRIBUTED

Approximately $8,000.00 in Corn-Hog checks were distributed to Boone county farmers the past week as a part of the second adjustment payment according to County Agent H. R. Forkner.

Producers in signing for their second adjustment payment check also signed final compliance for the third payment due February 15. The third adjustment payment will be $2.00 per head on the allotment of hogs.

W. L. Kirkpatrick had his counter ice box removed from his store last week and it was replaced this week by a new and improved one of larger capacity.

BANK ROBBERS

INDICTED ON MONDAY—TRIAL CONTINUED UNTIL THURSDAY

The Special Term of the Boone Circuit Court began Monday with Judge J. G. Vallandigham, presiding. The special term was called for the purpose of the trial of Ora A. Miller and Leo Warnica, under arrest for robbing the People's Deposit Bank, Burlington, Ky., January 3rd.

A grand jury was empaneled composed of Clarence Sturgeon, A. G. McMullen, A. G. Beemon, Frank McGlasson, Charles Clore, Charles Kloppe, Bruce Wallace, Walter Craddock, Emmett Riddell, R. R. Robbins, C. W. Ransler and Albert Pettit. Petit jurors are A. F. Burfington, C. O. Hempling, Mrs. Geo. Kottmyer, M. G. Martin, H. J. Kelly, J. P. Brothers, B. C. Kirtley, Bernard Hodges, Geo. Dennier, Cecil Chamber, Kirtley McWethy, E. J. Aylor, E. G. Cox, Conner Carroll, R. S. Yealey, Vernon Scott, B. E. Aylor, G. B. Yates, Tom Goodridge, Robt. Miller, Chas. Snelling, O. W. Purdy, Russell House and Nat Rogers. The grand jury returned an indictment against Ora A. Miller and Leo Warnica for robbing the bank with force and arms in concert with one Robert J. Hall now deceased.

Under the law the defendants are entitled to a continuance for three days after the return of the indictment. Judge Vallandigham set the trial for Thursday morning, January 24th, 1935. The defendants had no attorney present in court and the Judge appointed Irvin Bramlage to represent both defendants. The Commonwealth elected to first try the case of Ora Miller, to be followed by the case against Warnica. Commonwealth's Attorney Ward Yager and County Attorney B. H. Riley will represent the Commonwealth and prosecute the cases.

Miller and Warnica have been confined in the jail at Covington since their arrest and made an attempt to escape Saturday evening. The State Police are assisting the Sheriff and Jailor in guarding the prisoners and during the trials.

The Court has directed the officers not to permit anyone to enter the court room during the trial until he or she has been searched.

LOCAL MAN

IS TIPPED AS ADMINISTRATION CHOICE FOR KY. TREASURER

Frankfort, Ky., January 17—C. L. Cropper, cashier of the Peoples Deposit Bank at Burlington, Ky., who represented Boone and Grant Counties in the Sixty-second Legislative District, in 1934, is expected to be the Administration choice for the Democratic nomination for State Treasurer, it was learned tonight.

Cropper said recently he would not be a candidate unless nominated by a convention.

The Fifth, or Northern Kentucky District, has not had a candidate on the state ticket since William Goebel was nominated for Governor at the Music Hall convention in Louisville 36 years ago.

It is understood Cropper, a former service man and a member of the American Legion, can command the strength of the district in a state convention, though there has been a rumor that leaders in Kenton and Campbell, the two biggest Democratic counties in the district, will combine in a move to obtain representation on the ticket.

It has been a good many years since Boone county has had a representative on the state ticket. We believe out of fairness to the proper geographic distribution of the candidates that C. L. Cropper should have a place on the ticket. In addition, he would make an ideal candidate, since he is especially well qualified for the state treasurer'ship. His record thus far entitles him to the careful consideration of the people. Carroll Cropper is a young man of decided ability, of most excellent character, and would be an added strength to any ticket where outstanding ability is required. The Recorder is pleased to have the opportunity of saying a few words of commendation for so worthy a gentleman as Mr. Cropper. We hope those who will have anything to do with the selecting of the Democratic ticket will weigh carefully the outstanding qualifications of C. L. Cropper for the office in question.

JAPAN STEPS OUT

For two years Japan has kept the nations of the world uneasy on account of her wilful violations of treaty obligations. She withdrew from the League of Nations and without cause or right appropriated as her territory the vast dominion of Manchuria, divesting China of its control. This was done notwithstanding her contractual obligations to the leading nation. She now scraps the five-three arrangement in naval strength to become effective at the end of this year. This, of course, she had a right to do for it was simply a matter of agreement among the countries that each had a right to abrogate. This, however, opens a contest between the nations in war preparation which will undoubtedly amount to the expenditure of many millions of dollars unnecessarily unless war is in prospect. However, this government cannot afford to remain quiescent. Under the circumstances there is nothing to do but build the greatest air fleet of any nation on earth with such other defensive weapons of war as are needed to defend against any probable attack and especially against Japan.

Every peace loving American must sincerely regret that Japan has given cause for such anticipation as makes this necessary. Reduction in armament is the only assurance of peace but when an ambitious nation like Japan takes the attitude as presented in the cancellation of the naval agreement, there is no other alternative than due preparation. At the same time our only care is for peace with all the world.

A YOUNG FOLKS' WORLD

More than half of the people in the world at any given time are under 30 years old. In the United States only 55 per cent of the population enumerated in the Census of 1930 were more than 21 years old.

Seventeen years ago the World War began, resulting in social and economic upheavals so widespread that it is fair to say that since 1914 no part of the world has returned to its former normal conditions. More than half of the people of this country have never had any conscious experience of the world that older folk knew and lived in. It is hard to teach the young to see through the spectacles of the old. Men and women of mature age look back to a background totally outside the experience of youth. Young people who are now arriving at voting age have had no contact, since childhood, with anything but economic depression. Since they were fifteen or so they have heard little from their elders but moans of anguish over vanished prosperity, a prosperity which, so far as the young are concerned, is entirely mythical; they never experienced it.

It is not to be wondered at that young folk are easily led into belief in economic experiments which older ones deprecate as impractical and unworkable. We don't know what anybody can do about it; we are not sure that anything ought to be done about it. It's their world and they have to learn from their own experience. And maybe, somehow, they'll find ways to make the old folks look back longing and regret for the "good old days."

A NOBLE CAUSE

It was a splendid idea to make President Roosevelt's birthday the occasion for a great national drive for funds for the aid of sufferers from infantile paralysis. Last year more than a million dollars was raised from the balls and parties that were given in several thousand communities on January 30th.

This year seventy per cent of all the money raised by the "Birthday Balls" will go to hospitals and sanitariums in the territory where the money is raised. This is entirely right and proper. There are some 69 hospitals equipped to care for the 200,000 or more children who are victims of this frightful disease, and every dollar that is contributed will enable them to extend their care to those whose parents cannot afford to pay for treatment. The other thirty per cent of the funds raised this month are to go to pay for further research work into the causes and prevention of infantile paralysis. It is still obscure to the medical world, the precise method by which children are infected; and no effective means of prevention has been discovered. Hundreds of able research workers are studying the problem, and the better they are supported and equipped, the better the chance of finding out how to curb the ravages of the disease which make cripples of tens of thousands of children annually.

There is no nobler service that the people of our community, or of any community, can render on Wednesday, January 30th, than to "throw a party," charging a fair admission fee, and send the money so received to the Birthday Ball Committee at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York. With more money in the hands of more people than there was a year ago, and a general feeling that the crisis is past and that recovery is in sight, this year's appeal for this worthy purpose ought to result in at least doubling the amount of money raised throughout the nation last year.

NEWSPAPER ERRORS

Yes, newspapers make mistakes. There is no concealing the fact, because the errors themselves are spread where all the world may see them. But is there as much inaccuracy as people seem to think?

In no business and in no profession, save that of the pure scientist, is the premium on accuracy so high, the penalty for inaccuracy so prompt and the proportion of accuracy so great.

There isn't a newspaper man anywhere who doesn't know that, trivial though his error may be, some one will catch it. Even when it escapes the watchful editorial gaze, when no one in the office picks it up, even when he, himself, unaware of it, there are still the old subscribers—hundreds of them—vigilant, alert, aggressive, resentful, eager to put their finger on the "break," communicate with the editor, and "show up" the writer and the paper.

These old subscribers are by far the most valuable asset a newspaper can have. Their intelligent, microscopic scrutiny is the finest possible corrective influence.

STATESMEN DISAGREE

When the depression set in there arose a score of voices telling what brought on the economic collapse. There were many reasons presented, all of which were right in part. Those who gave definite reasons for the depression still hold to their individual opinions. People as a whole took no special interest in these causes for it was an effect from which they were suffering and all were too busy trying to find a cure. So the economists who had their own ideas about the causes were not heralded as great thinkers. "When doctors fall out disciples are free" is well applied in this instance. Now these same seers are telling us in exact language the lessons we have learned from the depression. They are as far apart on a list of lessons learned as they were on cataloguing the causes. They could not agree on the causes, and naturally they cannot agree on the lessons learned. This item appearing in a Texas weekly best illustrates the point: "Reverend Mr. Jones used as a text, 'What Lessons Have We Learned from the Depression?', while the next item on the program was a solo by Miss Jane Smith—'Search Me, Oh Lord.'"

Editorial of the Week

WHAT'S THE IDEA, ANYWAY?

(Cynthiana Democrat)

It looks like the entire KERA is "lost in the fog" and wants to start factories for everything from a diaper pin to an 8-cylinder automobile, or anything else some of the "stuffed" shirts think about.

The first was mattress-making plants, and they are now in operation, making inferior mattresses at two or three times the price at which good ones could be bought and given to the needy, and cause expansion of industry in a number of ways.

To analyze just what loss the making of a mattress means to trade, one must go back to the commercial factory, which pays taxes and employs men who also pay taxes. From the factory to the jobber or wholesaler, the mattress is shipped (the carriers coming in for a portion of benefits), the wholesaler or jobber also use material and employ men, each contributing a bit of taxation and so on down the line. As the road of the factory-made mattress widens, industry expands. Close that road and workers' salaries all along are reduced, material buying is curtailed, stockholders' dividends are cut, the home merchant, jobber and the manufacturer injured, less taxes are paid and a surplus of mattresses results. Industry clogs.

In the making of mattresses by relief workers it can be said, no one benefits except the man of family who receives one and then the mattress probably won't hold together during a season. Buy the mattress from local merchants and a cycle of benefit takes place. Industry booms.

A few months ago, someone conceived the bright idea that soap could be made cheaper than some of the largest factories in the country are making it. Without burdening you with detail, funds and materials were begged by this great, rich government of ours from poor retail merchants who are now cracked on the head with every kind of tax possible. Even merchants who sell soap and make a slight profit on same were solicited.

At a cost of more than $200, the factory for Cynthiana (we have to laugh every time we think of it as a factory) was set up and alleged soap made at a cost many times that of soap commercially produced. To preserve its identity, the district administrator wanted this office to furnish, free, labels for same. We did not furnish the labels and we did not donate to the cause.

People who own stock in soap factories, men who are working in them, stores and jobbers who sell it, all are damaged by playboyish operations like the local soap factory. And now, also comes another "deep thinker" and suggests that the government make chairs for the needy.

Hell's bells! We thought too much sitting and laying down was the trouble with the country now. Keep it up and we'll all be laid out—with a lily in each hand—made by the KERA!

Dear Sir:—

Your editorial on roadside beautification was very timely, and afforded me a great deal of satisfaction.

As Chairman of this department in the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs we have been struggling for a great many years to beautify our roadsides, restrict billboard advertising, and protect trees and wild flowers. We sponsored two bills before the last legislature covering these subjects. The bill for the protection of trees and wild flowers, etc., passed, but it is needless to say that the billboard bill did not pass. However, we are not discouraged, and shall return with our efforts.

I am attending a State Board meeting of the Federation at Lexington Jan. 29th and 30th, and shall carry your editorial to read as a part of my report.

I do certainly thank you for your interest and trust it may continue.

Yours truly,

Mrs. James C. Layne
Chairman Roadside Beautification, Kentucky Federation Women's Clubs.

PARAGRAPHS

To get pleasure give it.

Conceit is nature's gift to little men.

United we boost, divided we bust. Better inquire twice than go wrong once.

Money buys only the cheaper things.

FOLKS

(Edwin A. Guest)

We are speakin' of folks, jes common folks,
And we come to this conclusion,
That wherever they be on land or sea,

They warm to a home elusion;
That under the skin an' under the hide
There's a spark that starts a glowin'.

That whenever they look at a scene
Or book
That something of home is showin'.

They may differ in creeds an' politics,
They may argue an' even quarrel,

But their throats grip tight, if they catch a sight
Of their elm or laurel.
An' the winding lane that they used to tread

With never a care to fret em'
On the pasture gate where they used to wait,
Right under the skin will get 'em.

Now, folks tie skin will get 'em,
Now, folks tie skin will get 'em.

Now, folks tie skin will get 'em,
Now, folks tie skin will get 'em.

With their different griefs an' pleasure,
But the home they knew, when their years were few,

Is the dearest of all their treasures;
And the richest man to the poorest wail

Right under the skin is brother
When they stand an' sigh, with a tear-dimmed eye,
At a thought of the dear old mother.

It makes no difference where it may be,
Nor the fortunes that years may alter,

Be they simple or wise, the old home ties
Make all of 'em often falter.
Time may robe 'em in sackcloth coarse

Or garb 'em in gorgeous splendor,
But, whatever their lot, they keep one spot
Down deep that is sweet and tender.

We was speakin' of folks, jes' common folks,
An' we come to this conclusion,
That one an' all, be they great or small;

That under the skin an' the beaten hide
They're kin in a real affection
For the joys they know, when their years are few,

An' the home of their recollection.

County High School News

HEBRON SCHOOL NEWS

The girl Cardinals chalked up another victory when they played the New Haven team Friday night. It seems that our girls always score more points in the last half than in the first. This was the case Friday night, the score at the end of the first half being 6-4, while in the last half our girls scored twenty points and the New Haven girls 8, making the final score 26-12 to our good. Here's hoping that our girls do not always wait until the last half to do their scoring.

The boys have turned tables and are playing better. They played the best game of the season Friday night but were defeated by the New Haven boys with a score of 29-18. The score was tied 18-18 up until the last three minutes when the New Haven boys scored 11 points.

On Saturday we entertained Piner and came out with one victory and one defeat. Our girls won by a score of 36-13, while the boys who were no match for the Piner boys, were defeated by a score of 47-12.

The Senior Girl Reserves met Friday for their regular meeting. The program was as follows: Devotional—Cordelia Surface; song, our code song; talk on Mammoth Cave—Evelyn Conrad; reading—Betty Walton; song—Litany of Thanks; poem—Madge Reeves; prayer—Dorothy Dunaway. Plans will be started for the Mother-Daughter banquet in the near future.

The Junior Girl Reserves used their meeting Friday to work on song books.

The play "Here Comes Charlie" given by the Shinkle M. E. young people of Covington, was a huge success and was enjoyed by everyone attending.

The Cardinals will entertain the chivalrous Knights and Nightingales of Florence Saturday night. These games promise to be two of the best games of the season. Come and back the Cards. The games begin at 8:30 E. S. T.

The Sophomore English class is reading "Tale of Two Cities" by Dickens.

WONDER OF WONDERS

What? Stunt of Program.
When? Wednesday night Feb. 6 at 8:30 E. S. T.
Where? At School Auditorium.
For What? Benefit of the Library Fund.

Prices? Minimum.

Watch next week's school news for further notices of this.

FLORENCE SCHOOL NOTES

The pupils of the Florence school have finished their mid-term examinations. Some passed, while some failed. Some basketball players were made eligible while some were made ineligible.

Don't forget the P. T. A. meeting Thursday night. This meeting was put off on account of the P. T. A. play.

The chapel program on Friday morning will be sponsored by the first grade. Don't forget the time 10:15.

The Florence High School basketball teams broke even Friday night. The girls won by a score of 20 to 8, while the boys lost by a score of 32 to 13. On Saturday night the High School boys lost to the Walton boys, while Florence Coca-Cola team defeated the Walton team by a score of 31 to 29. This was a very interesting game. However Coach Allphin was only permitted to play one half of the game due to an injured foot. This made quite a difference in the score. He made 15 points in the last half. With this victory the boys go in first place. On Friday night Jan. 29 they will play Ghent at Florence. While the school teams will play New Haven at Florence. Carey Spuer will referee the games.

Don't forget to subscribe for the Boone County Recorder from one of the school children, as this will benefit the school in helping us to establish a library. Only one more week, so subscribe for the paper, this week.

On Feb. 1 at 10:15 Dr. Sherwood, President Georgetown College, will speak to the entire school, and all patrons, and citizens of Florence and surrounding community, who desire to hear his lecture come. Mr. Bonaunt, head of the Music Department, together with his male quartet will accompany Dr. Sherwood.

NEW HAVEN SCHOOL NOTES

Our 4-H Club has done creditable work this year. A final account is being made by the County Agent, Mr. Forkner, to determine the cup winning club. If a boy or girl completes a project his or her council and experience make the work beneficial to the head, heart, hand and health.

In our accounting last week we overlooked our youngest Dorothy, a first grade pupil, Dorothy Elliott. One paper overlooked Dorothy Parker, a freshman. We have fourteen Dorothy's. Next week we shall introduce our "Bobs."

Our first debate will be January 30th with Erlanger there. Lloyd always has a good team, they won second in the state last year. We shall uphold the negative side. The subject this year for interscholastic league members is, Resolved, "That the Federal Government should adopt the policy of equalizing Educational opportunities throughout the Nation by means of annual grants to the several states for public elementary and secondary education." Both our affirmative and negative teams will be selected from members of the Forensic League, which is sponsored by Miss Bristow.

We are hoping that the paper drive will warm up to a good pace this week. It is really an opportunity to receive a benefit to the schools of the county. If you expect to continue or subscribe for the Recorder, do it now through a school. Schools receive 33 1-3 per cent of collections this week.

Hebron girls romped over us, true to their form this year. The game by quarters, 2-6; 4-6; 6-16; 12-26 for Hebron.

The boys game was fast, clean and full of action every minute. The Tigers led all the way, save a tie at 18 all, in the early part of the fourth quarter. The score 6-0; 10-7; 16-12; 29-18; for New Haven. Mr. Carlton officiated.

HAMILTON HIGH SCHOOL

The "Spartans" of Sparta, could not hold out against the Hamilton "Farmers," as the Farmers forged ahead after being held to a 2-10 score at the half and won the tilt 30-25. The score was close until the final minutes but the scoring of Aylor and Doolin proved the deciding factor. Aylor with 18 and Doolin with 7 led the Hamilton scorers while Riley, Greene and Cammack divided the Spartan honors. Hamilton Reserves defeated Sparta's Reserves 25-6.

On Saturday night Holy Cross could not hold the Farmers and were downed 36-12. Aylor was held to 23 points, making his total for the week 41. Holy Cross Girls were too much for the Farmerettes and overwhelmed them with a 37-15 score with 14 markers and Doolin and Feldhaus together scored nine points for the home girls. Hamilton goes to Burlington on Jan. 25. The "Farmers" will attempt to avenge an earlier defeat while the "Farmerettes" will try to register their second triumph over the Kittens.

Examinations are only memories and as there are only one or two long faces in the class rooms, the results will most probably be very satisfactory.

The Freshman class under Mr. Huey will present a musical comedy for the Honor Club on the 25th. Intense preparation is being made but the Fresh are keeping the exact nature of their presentation a secret, so very few upper classmen will be absent Friday afternoon.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Theodore Gallin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for their foster daughter could not shelter her childhood from the hatred of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affairs ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gallin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to play a baseball game. A ball hit into the bleachers, struck Penelope on the nose and the neurotic Mrs. Gallin removed her from the hospital to which her former husband had hurried her. Mrs. Gallin, a woman of business, willed Penelope all her money, and was about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II.—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a rising young psychiatrist, was presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality, for which her "middle name" was in part responsible. McNamara did not think she was a responsible criminal and obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Even Lanny, the doctor's faithful office nurse, was won over to her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III.—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's clear explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny visited her and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter, which a confederate stole from her handbag outside the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV.—Nance escaped, although shot by swimming out to a speed-boat manned by friends and went to Lanny's apartment. Lanny told Chief McNamara, who ordered her to bring Nance to his apartment and phoned for Doctor Burt.

Woman could climb a sixteen-foot wire mesh fence anyhow, and if she did she'd only drop down into the waiting arms of the guard, who is never absent, night or day. But Nance Belden knew she could climb that fence barefoot; she knew she had thirty seconds to do it and a drop on the other side from the top of the gate. Her job was to induce the guard to turn his back—and her friends in the boat did that!

"She knew she'd been seen from the watch-tower on the hill and the guard at the gates notified by telephone; as he returned from the edge of the beach, around the south side of his block, Nance slipped by him on the north side and was in the water as the guard took up the phone. Smart! She knew no guard will stick under machine-gun fire at fifty yards, merely to stop a woman convict escaping from prison. Smart! Sank and swam under water—and then the zigzag course between the boats of the other fishermen, after they picked her up. Fine psychology—she engineered it all—and I know she's a nut! And then straight to Lanny for medical attention—straight to the one human being she knew she could trust—no, I'll not send her back. And I don't particularly want to catch her friends either, I'll say they're friends! Wish I had a couple of friends that'd come on through machine-gun fire for me! I had thought the world was selfish and cruel and thieving and lying—but there's nobility left in it after all."

Stephen Burt came out of the bedroom and sat down and stared at the chief of police with grave interest. "Well, my good Javert," he said presently.

"Your good what?"

"I called you Javert. Don't you know who Javert was?"

Dan McNamara shook his head. "I never picked him up, Doc."

"You wouldn't. He was a character in 'Les Misérables,' a novel by Victor Hugo. He was a fly-cop in Paris, and he pursued an ex-convict named Jean Valjean for twenty years, because he believed the man was a crook. Once a crook, always a crook, was Javert's philosophy. And when he discovered at last he had the goods on Jean Valjean and it was his duty to arrest him, he discovered simultaneously that Jean Valjean was also a good and noble man, which proved extremely embarrassing to Javert."

"I Never Picked Him Up, Doc."

"I understand how that could be, all right, Doc. What did Javert do then?"

"He climbed up on the railing of a bridge over the Seine, unplanned his shield, threw it into the river and jumped in after it."

"He committed suicide in order to give his man the breaks."

"Exactly."

"Well," Dan McNamara decided after pondering this a half minute, "I wouldn't be boob enough to do that. He should have made a stool pigeon out of Jean Valjean and maybe he'd have gotten somewhere in his job."

Stephen smiled. He liked this heavy man, with the Celtic face as inscrutable as a Chinaman's. As a specialist in mental diseases he knew the part heredity plays in the formation of character, and one did not have to look at the chief twice to know that he came of courageous ancestry. No vague fears or anxieties in this fellow, Stephen thought. Courageous men are usually honest men; even when they are not honest they are sufficiently courageous to pay the price, no matter how high, for the things they do with their eyes open—to pay it cheerfully and refrain thereafter from whimpering.

"So you're going to protect this girl, are you, Chief?"

"Yeah!" A throaty growl. "Got to, Doc. Got to protect society. Stephen looked puzzled, so the chief continued. "If I let that girl graduate from San Quentin, she'll come out with a broader knowledge of crime and trickery and a greater contempt for society than when she went in. The only kind of criminal I fear is the smart one; I can always catch the boobies promptly, but sometimes it takes a long time to get acquainted with the artistic genius of a real craftsman. They're like writers, Doc. They have a style all their own and you've got to learn their style. And about the time you think you've learned it, you pick up some bird that's guilty and he isn't the man you thought he was. He's just stolen his master's stuff. Nance Belden is too brilliant to turn loose on the world, Doc. She's a leader—a leader of men. She'd make the balls, and her crew would fire them and always be covered up."

He ruffled his pompadour. "Well, Doc, I've gotten her away from her gang. She's lost them and they've lost her. And they must never get her back."

"Would you like to know who they are?"

"Of course, I'm normally curious."

"I can find out for you," said Stephen.

"How?" Dan McNamara looked doubtful.

"Nance will tell me."

"You're crazy, Doc. You don't know the code. They die, but they don't squeal. There is honor in their dishonor, and in their weakness there is a strength that amazes me."

"She wouldn't do it voluntarily, of course, but just now, in her weakened state, I'm sure I could hypnotize her. Get her to look fixedly into a mirror, you know, like this. Once I secure control of her subconscious mind, she'll answer my questions. And after I wake her up she'll have complete amnesia for the experience; she will never know she peached on her pals."

CHAPTER V

The chief smiled. "Of course I know that hypnotism is being used by advanced psychiatrists and particularly by Morton Prince and William McDougall. I've read their books. The modern chief of police isn't modern, Doc, if he isn't a pretty good lay psychologist and psychiatrist. I don't know what a criminologist is, but I suppose he's a bird that studies the criminal actions and tendencies of criminals and tries to reduce crime to its lowest common divisor. That's the bunk. The thing to do is to know their minds and why they act like they do; if you can cure what makes them go, criminology becomes a dead science."

"Yes, I know all about hypnotism and I know something you've forgotten. Your power of suggestion on a patient in the hypnotic state isn't powerful enough to make him steal or commit murder if he's an honest man. His acquired instincts of morality, which lie in his subconscious mind, are too strong for you. And the most powerful acquired instinct in the mind of a crook is that he mustn't squeal. That's his idea of immortality! You try it on Nance Belden and she'll tell you almost anything but who her friends are, where they live and how they make a living."

"Well, we shall see—at another time. Meanwhile, what are you going to do with this girl? You can't keep her here, because that's dangerous unless you have her watched. And whom can you trust to watch her?"

"How about Lanny?"

"Lanny is my office nurse and I cannot get along without her. She's under suspicion now and we've got to kill that. She'll be watched, will she not?"

"I suppose so. Even if I pass the word to lay off her, I can never be sure one of my men won't watch her independently. On a case where it would be a big feather in his cap and mean a lot of publicity to capture a celebrated criminal, lots of dicks prefer to work alone and in secret."

"Then Lanny must not come to your house again. And yet, this girl must be parked somewhere until her wound heals. She's suffering from the shock of this emotional experience now; she's lost considerable blood and suffered some pain, and for five hours she's suffered from exposure. Her garments are soaking wet."

"If she forgets to tell those men to bring some dry clothing for her to hop into, once she got aboard the boat, my heart will just about break. That would be one flaw in a perfect job—and I can't stand flaws."

And Dan McNamara strode into the room where Nance lay with her hand in Lanny's. "Why didn't you tell your friend to bring you some dry clothes?" he demanded.

Nance smiled up at Lanny. "He thinks I'm a nut, after all, Lanny. Why, of course I wouldn't overlook that detail. I changed my clothes, but when we crossed the bay it was rough and there was a police boat on our trail. He had to outrun them—and you do forty miles an hour through a mile of tide-rips and you'll all but drown in the spray!"

"Thank God for that," the chief murmured. "I'm proud of you and your friends, Nance. I hope neither of them was hit."

For the barest fraction of a second Nance hesitated, then answered, "No, they got through all right, but how they did is a mystery. The boat was riddled."

Dan McNamara came back into the living room and on his heavy face was the faintest, most cryptic of grins.

"I'm going to get one or both of Nance's friends, Doc," he exulted.

MENEELY GOLDEN WEDDING

The pleasant hill-top home near Waterloo of J. D. McNeely was the scene of a festive gathering last Monday Jan. 14, when nearly one hundred relatives and friends met to help Mr. and Mrs. McNeely celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding.

At noon while Mrs. James Ryle, of Warsaw, sang "I Love You Truly," Mr. and Mrs. McNeely preceded by their granddaughter Sara, and Wm. Ryle Presser, entered the room. They were met by their son Rev. Robert McNeely of Patriot, Indiana, who read the beautiful service by which they renewed their vows of fifty years ago. The ring ceremony was used, the rings exchanged by the happy couple having been presented them by their eldest son C. E. McNeely and wife.

Rev. Roy Johnson, of Covington, offered an appropriate prayer and congratulations were in order.

Rev. Smith returned thanks for all blessings after which a delightful luncheon was served cafeteria style.

The long table spread with the same linen cloth which had decked the bridal table of long ago, was lovely with fruit and flowers and the three layer Angel food cake baked by Mrs. Ethna McNeely and decorated with fifty tiny yellow candles. There was also a great variety of choice viands, including turkey, old hen salads, etc., no signs of a "depression" here, and no wonder all lingered long at the table, and not least in this feast of good things were meeting old acquaintances, renewing friendships, reviving old memories etc.

Pictures were taken, the numerous lovely and useful gifts opened and admired. Then came reluctant farewells and Uncle Johnny and Aunt Fanny were left to review the happy occasion and no doubt to give thanks to God for His goodness to them and theirs. Those present were the four sons, C. E. R. C. and L. R. and Bernard McNeely and their families with the exception of the oldest grandson James Lee, who is attending College at Bowling Green.

It was regretted that Mrs. Florence Smith, Mrs. McNeely's only sister, was not able to be present. Two attendants of that long ago wedding Mrs. Eva Turley and Mr. Nace Clements, were present.

CONVICTED

SENTENCED TO PENITENTIARY FOR LIFE—WARNICA'S TRIAL TO COME UP IN APRIL

The trial of Ora A. Miller for robbing the Peoples Deposit Bank, Burlington, Ky., of $2226.07 was begun Thursday morning, in the Boone Circuit Court, Hon. J. G. Vallandigham presiding.

The jury was obtained Friday morning, with the panel consisting of B. C. Kirtley, Conner Carroll, Irvin Rouse, R. S. Yealey, Vernon Scott, Robert Miller, Cecil Conner, E. B. McClure, Wm. Woodward, E. G. Stephenson, Vernon Tupman and C. M. Emral. The evidence for the prosecution was that the defendant Ora Miller, Leo Warnica and Robert Hall entered the bank January 3rd with a sawed off shot gun, and pistols, forcing the employees into the vault and taking therefrom the money in coin and currency.

Miller was identified by the bank employees as one of the robbers and gave in detail their conduct while in the bank, taking the money. The defendant Ora Miller did not take the witness stand in his own defense but introduced in his behalf, Leo Warnica, who said that Miller was not the Miller who was with Hall and him during the robbery but that it was another man by the name of Miller. The Commonwealth introduced evidence that contradicted Warnica to the effect that Warnica not only made the statement that Ora Miller but that he identified a picture offered in evidence as the Miller that was with him at the time of the robbery and the picture was that of Ora Miller.

The bank employees not only identified Miller as being one of the participants in the robbery, but identified him as a man who was in the bank about a week before the robbery and obtained small change for a dollar bill and at that time looked over the bank interior.

The case was argued by Irvin Bramlage for the defendant Miller and Commonwealth Atty. Ward Yager for the Commonwealth. All of Friday was consumed in presenting the evidence. The court introduced the jury at 6:30 p. m., when Attorney Bramlage made his argument followed by that of Attorney Yager. The case was finally submitted to the jury and they retired to their room to make a verdict at 8:15 p. m.

At 9 p. m., they reported that they were unable to agree on the ver-

SCHOOL CHILDREN

OF KENTUCKY AIDED BY KERA—OTHER PROJECTS OF VALUE

More than 10,000 Kentucky school children who otherwise would suffer from lack of proper nourishment are being given noon day lunches through more than 600 child feeding projects sponsored throughout the State by the Kentucky Emergency Relief Administration. The cost to the latter institution in Federal funds approximates $10,000 a month and represents nearly 150,000 lunches served.

In certain sections of the state the K. E. R. A. has established shoe repair projects. At these centers shoes of school children are placed in serviceable condition. Likewise, in six counties soap factories are in operation, looking to the sanitary factor in normal school life.

Closely associated with school projects are those projects tending to permanently enhance the living standard of the home from whence the child goes into school. These later projects are represented by eighty-four comforter projects scattered over the state that have produced 5,973 comforters to date and will produce more than 80,000 before that program is complete. Thirteen mattress factories have produced 12,000 mattresses. Twenty-two furniture factories are to start immediately to produce beds, chairs, tables and kitchen cabinets in volume. One hundred and twenty sheet and towel projects are in full swing.

All of which is intended to enhance the environment of the child and to give him the "break" to which President Roosevelt and his official family feel he is entitled. The court refused to discharge them and they returned to their room to consider further a verdict. In an hour the jury returned a verdict finding Ora Miller guilty and fixing his punishment at confinement for life without hope of pardon. As this verdict was not written in the form required by law, as the clause without hope of pardon was not for the jury. The court called the attention of the jury to the error in writing the verdict and sent them to their room to correct it. The jury reported about midnight that they were unable to agree on the correction, the court then put the jury in the custody of the sheriff for the night. Saturday morning the jury again retired to their room and at 9:30 a. m., returned a verdict finding Miller guilty and fixed his punishment at confinement in the penitentiary for life. It was reported that the jury first stood 5 for death and 7 for life imprisonment.

Ora Miller through his attorney Irvin Bramlage filed a motion and grounds asking for a new trial and setting aside of the verdict. The court refused to grant him a new trial. Miller then prayed an appeal to the Court of Appeals, which was granted by the court as a matter of right to the defendant and as the law provides. Miller was then sentenced to the penitentiary. Sheriff Cotton with two of the State Police force went at once with Miller to Frankfort and he is now in the penitentiary, where he will remain awaiting the result of his appeal to the court of last resort in this State. Leo Warnica was also taken to Frankfort under order of Judge Vallandigham, there to remain until his trial in April next.

During the trial the defendants Ora Miller and Leo Warnica were closely guarded by the Sheriff W. B. Cotton his deputy F. M. Walton and several of the State Police force, day and night. Miller and Warnica had been paroled from the penitentiary, Michigan City, Ind., just a short time ago, having been convicted for robbery. They had been confined in the jail at Covington, Ky., and made an attempt to escape from that jail. If the guard then on duty had not been assisted by a trusty in the jail they would have been successful.

The trial of Leo Warnica will be held at the April term of court. Warnica took the witness stand for Miller and admitted that he was present and assisted in the robbery of the bank.

The court room was crowded all through the trial. The arguments were made by Attorney Bramlage for Miller and Ward Yager for the Commonwealth.

LOCAL MAN WINNER IN NATIONAL CONTEST

In a recent issue of the Times-Star appeared the photograph of Robert Clore receiving a prize in a national contest for the best article submitted in competition for the sales possibilities of various electric appliances. Mr. Clore was selected as the winner of the fourth prize in this national contest. Robert Clore is a salesman for the Electric Shop, Covington, Ky.

The competition, which was fostered by a magazine, was open to all the employees of the appliance sales departments of electric companies all over the country. Entrants were required to prepare an article regarding the sales possibilities of various electric appliances.

Robert Clore has been employed by the Electric Shop for 8 years, and has been located at the Covington store for the entire period. The prize in question amounted to $15.00. This is not the first prize that Robert has won. He previously won a prize in a National Contest of the National Laundry Owners and also won first prize in a contest conducted by the Cincinnati Post.

A CLOSE SHAVE FOR BOONE COUNTY MAN AND DAUGHTER

Charlie Craig, 45 years old, Watertown, Boone County, Ky., and his daughter escaped with minor injuries Saturday morning when their automobile was hit by a Southern Railroad passenger train at Erlanger.

Craig was driving north on the Dixie Highway. As he neared the railroad crossing the warning lights flashed on. He attempted to stop, but his car skidded on the snow and the tracks. The motor in the car stalled. Before Craig and his daughter could get out of the automobile it was hit by the train. The machine was dragged 25 feet. Craig and his daughter suffered slight scratches. They did not obtain medical aid. The car was wrecked.

LOCAL RELIEF

ORGANIZATION DOING GOOD WORK

During the month of December the Kentucky Emergency Relief Administration, through its local office in Burlington, distributed to the families on Relief in Boone-co., the following surplus Commodities:

8,054 lbs., fresh beef.
390 lbs., butter.
864 lbs., Rice.
500 lbs., Sugar.
6,010 lbs., Cabbage.

According to Mr. L. A. Thompson, in charge of Commodity Distribution for Boone County, the Government has abandoned its Fresh Beef Program, and it is expected that it will substitute Canned Beef in the near future.

These Surplus Commodities are given to each County and are not deducted from each County's monthly allotment of money. As can be seen from the December report. They run into considerable value and are of material help to destitute families. In addition to families the Child Feeding Projects of different schools are given a weekly portion to help feed the children whose parents are on Relief.

During the Fresh Beef Program, which was run over a course of ten weeks, there was distributed in Boone County a total of 16,256 pounds. The Boone County Fiscal Court assumed the whole obligation of furnishing trucks for the distribution of these Commodities. Commodities are distributed in fourteen different points in Boone County, and are handled on a one-day distribution plan. Every pound of Fresh Beef and other Commodities have been distributed without any spoilage, which is much to the credit of the local Relief Force.

The Federal Surplus Relief Corporation has promised the State Relief Administration of Kentucky a shipment of Powdered Milk in the near future of which Boone County will get a share.

OFFICERS ELECTED

TO THE COVINGTON TOBACCO BOARD OF TRADE

At a reorganization meeting of the Covington Tobacco Board of Trade held January 21st the following officers were elected:

V. F. Kearns, Tri-State Tobacco Warehouse, Covington, President.
Chas. W. Baker, Sales Manager Kenton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse, Covington, Secretary-Treas.
Harry Lee, Brooksville, Ky., Supervisor of Sales.

These officers, together with the buyers and warehousemen of the Covington market will cooperate to produce favorable market conditions comparable to the best of the Burley belt. Primary interest of the Covington Tobacco Board of Trade will be to see that tobacco growers, as well as buyers, and warehousemen get fair consideration for all who sell on the Covington market.

Prices on the Covington market for the various grades offered have been equal to any in the Burley belt, and these high standards will be maintained by the Board of Trade.

LEXINGTON TOBACCO MARKET

Several Boone county farmers sold their tobacco on the burley market at Lexington last week, and six of them were included in the best crops list published by the Lexington newspapers.

Farmers from this county report a number of fine sales on the Lexington market this season, and in the sales last Friday a basket of 224 pounds in the crop of E. B. Elliott, of this county, was purchased on the Lexington market by American for $43 per hundred.

Among the better crops from this county sold at Lexington last week were: B. C. and B. W. Gaines and M. J. Sullivan, 1,926 pounds, $21.91; W. P. Rice and J. P. Pettit, 2,568; J. O. H. Watson, 836, $20.89; C. C. Sleet and Gus Moore, 290 $25.22; C. C. Sleet and N. D. Moore, 1,652, $22.23.

Bath county dairymen are having 600 head of cattle tested for abortion disease.

WILL ORGANIZE

WILD LIFE PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION HERE SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 2—MEETING HOUR SET FOR 1 P. M.

About a month ago a meeting of the sportsmen and farmers was called to organize a Kentucky Wild Life Protective Association Club. This meeting was not held owing to the death of the president of the State Game Commission, which occurred at that same time. Those who were to conduct the meeting wished to attend the funeral and could not be in Burlington for the meeting.

Game Warden E. M. Johnson now wishes to advise that this postponed meeting will be held at the court house, Burlington, on Saturday afternoon, February 2, at 1 P. M., (slow time).

As was stated before the object of this meeting is to organize a Kentucky Wild Life Protective Association Club for sportsmen and farmers of Boone county. There is a great need in this county for such an organization and such a club will be to the interest of both sportsmen and farmers. For this reason a large gathering should be on hand for this meeting.

Curtis Allen, publicity man for the State Game and Fish Commission will address the meeting. He will have with him his camera and will show a motion picture of the wild life of Kentucky. This meeting is also important to Boone county people and particularly those who live in the Gunpowder section because of the fact that a movement is on to establish a game preserve or refuge on Upper Gunpowder. This subject will be discussed and for that reason it is hoped that a representative number of farmers of that section will attend.

XMAS SEAL

REPORT FOR 1934—EXCELLENT SHOWING MADE

Mrs. William Rudicill, County Chairman for 1934 Christmas Seals Campaign reports that nearly all the schools in the county responded admirably to the selling of the seals. The amount received from the sale of these Christmas seals by the school children was $127.00, which was a neat sum for these times. Mrs. Rudicill stated that special and honorable mention should be made of the Catholic schools of Florence and the colored school of Burlington. These schools should be highly complimented since they sold 100 per cent of all seals allotted them. The Florence school won the cup again this year, as they did last year. This cup was awarded on a school per capita basis. It should be mentioned, however, that the Constance school was a close second. This school's per capita was but one half cent less than that of Florence.

The money has been turned over to the County Red Cross and if conditions are favorable the money may be turned back to the Anti-Tuberculosis League.

OPPORTUNITY OFFERED TO YOUNG WOMEN

An opportunity to enter the field of nursing as a career is being offered high-school graduates in an invitation extended by Dr. Walter E. List, Superintendent of the Jewish Hospital, Cincinnati. A new class for student nurses is to begin its studies at the Jewish Hospital School of Nursing on February 15, 1935, according to Dr. List's announcement.

The school is non-sectarian; its directors, supervisors, and teaching staff, as well as the student body, are chosen regardless of religious affiliations.

During the three-year school period, the student nurse is maintained by the hospital. The Nurses' Home offers the student not only comfortable living quarters and well-equipped class rooms and laboratories, but also many facilities and features which are usually found only in commodious women's clubs—a splendid gymnasium, a library for reading and study, drama classes, a glee club, and entertainment.

Young women who are interested in taking advantage of the opportunity may obtain full information by writing to Dr. Walter E. List, Jewish Hospital, Cincinnati, Ohio.

FARMERS ALLIANCE PLAN ACTIVE YEAR

The Farmers Alliance local of Hebron planned an active year's work for 1935 at their annual meeting held in Hebron last Saturday night. Their 1935 program includes the expansion of membership, the improvement in truck crops and dairy marketing and general agricultural improvement.

The new officers of the organization are C. L. Hempling, Chairman; E. J. Aylor, Vice President; and Harold Crigler, Secretary-treasurer. The treasurer's report showed a favorable balance from 1934. A supper was enjoyed by about seventy-five members and their wives following the business meeting.

FARM ACCOUNT RECORDS COMPLETED

Twelve 1934 Kentucky farm account records were completed by Boone county farmers in the Farm Account extension project according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

The farmers cooperating in this project take an inventory of the farm and farm equipment each year and record all expenses and receipts. The books are tallied and summarized by Mr. R. E. Procter, field agent in farm management from the College of Agriculture. Each farmer who completes his project is given a complete farm analysis on the yields, income and expenses of each of his various farm enterprises and a comparison on these enterprises with the average farmer in the district, the ten high profit farmers and the ten low profit farmers.

Those Boone county farmers who completed the 1934 farm account records are:

W. A. Brown, Verona R. D.
P. J. Maddin, Walton R. D. 2
S. B. Sleet, Walton Star Route.

RIISING SUN MAN COMES TO AN UNUSUAL DEATH

Conquered after a frenzied battle with Jewish Hospital attendants, and six policemen, O. W. Woods, six-foot five-inch Indian, died suddenly of a heart attack as he lay shackled on the floor.

Woods, 40 years old and proprietor of an undertaking establishment at Rising Sun, Ind., was received at the hospital Friday morning for treatment of a painful stomach ailment.

The pain caused temporary mental derangement physicians believe. Woods suddenly became violent when a nurse was in his room.

The woman ran into the corridor to call an interne. He was about to enter the room with her when Woods, brandishing a heavy piece of metal, confronted them.

The 245-pound giant had armed himself with a crank wrenched from an adjustable bed.

Orderlies aided the interne in an attempt to quiet the patient, but soft words and cajolery were useless. He continued to menace them.

The Superintendent called District 7 Police Sergeant Geo. Butters and Patrolmen Fa. Gallagher, John Toney, Clem Johnson, Charles Miles and Louis Giovanni responded. The police tried to reason with the giant and placate him quietly, but they, too, failed. So they went into battle.

The delirious man scarcely had been overcome and securely bound when death seized him.

Physicians attributed death to a heart attack brought on by exhaustion.

A diagnosis of Wood's case had not been made before the delirious attack, it was said. He was being held for observation.

Woods, a native of Rising Sun, made his home at Mulberry and Main Streets in that town. The Woods family has been prominent in Democratic politics.

TIME EXTENDED

ONE WEEK FOR SCHOOL SUBSCRIPTION DRIVE

Owing to the fact that several principals asked that the time for the school subscription drive for the Recorder be extended one week, the Recorder and the superintendent of the county schools have agreed to the request.

The campaign was to close within two weeks, or January 26. For various reasons several of the principals thought that more subscriptions and consequently more money for the schools could be realized if the time were extended one week. With this objective in mind those in authority have agreed to the proposition. The drive will be continued until Friday, February 1, and that will positively be the last day for the drive. It is expected that all subscribers or those contemplating subscribing will arrange to pay their subscriptions by that time, if they wish the schools to benefit from the subscriptions. February 1 will positively be the last day.

BIRTHDAY BALL AT BEAVER LICK

Beaver Lick, Boone County Kentucky, was the scene of a President's birthday anniversary ball, Wednesday night. The committee in charge consisting of Dr. G. W. Gillard, J. M. Jack, Elisha Allen, Kruse Johnson and Geo. D. Gillard have arranged to hold the affair at the Club Plaza, U. S. Highway No. 42, in Beaver Lick. Thirty per cent of the proceeds will be forwarded to the National Research Association in Washington, and the remaining seventy per cent will benefit the infantile paralysis victims in Boone County.

LAFFOON NAMES 2368 COLONELS IN 1934

Enough Kentucky colonels to command several war-time armies, and enough admirals and commodores to handle half a dozen navies, were commissioned during 1934 by Gov. Laffoon as he lived up to his reputation as the most-coloneling chief executive the old commonwealth has ever had.

To be exact, Governor Laffoon commissioned 2,368 honorary aides from January 1, 1934, to and including December 27, 1934. Most of them were plain colonels, quite a few were admirals, a handful or so were commodores, and one was a skipper. There was not a single private in the ranks.

BOONE COUNTY

SHOULD RECEIVE SHARE OF FEDERAL MONEY

Secretary of Interior, Harold L. Ickes, has requested the Kentucky Planning Board to collaborate with Mr. Geo. H. Sager, State Engineer, Public Works Administration, in the preparation of a public works program. This proposed program is to be submitted to Washington in contemplation of the passage of the $4,000,000,000 appropriation to relieve unemployment as requested by the President.

Blanks have been forwarded to all County Judges and Mayors on which they are requested to submit needful public improvements in their respective communities.

This is the greatest opportunity which has presented itself to the people of Kentucky. This is a part of the President's plan to give employment to all of the needy and at the same time leave something of value to show for the money expended. Committees that are awake to the possibilities and submit a program are the ones which will benefit most from the vast expenditure of money.

Information relative to projects must be in the hands of the State Planning Board at Ninth and Broadway, Louisville, Ky., not later than February 11, 1935.

Persons having projects in mind should communicate with their county judge or mayor at once.

County Attorney B. H. Riley, Mrs. Riley and son left Sunday morning for Florida. Mr. Riley is under the care of physicians who advised him that he must go to a southern climate and take the rest cure, away from all business. He expects to remain in the south for about six weeks or until he recovers sufficiently to again take up his business.

TAX DEDUCTION NECESSARY

The purchaser of a loaf of bread pays 17 kinds of taxes when he lays his dime on the counter.

If he walks home on leaving the store, he is wearing out shoes which are taxed 23 times.

If he rides in an automobile, he is paying 42 different kinds of taxes.

If he takes a subway or an electric car, the total number of visible taxes which are part of the cost of his fare runs to about 58.

All of these taxes, obviously, are indirect—and very few of us know that we pay them. Most of us pay few or no taxes directly—and we think because of that we are contributing nothing to the cost of the government.

There is not a thing in the world that isn't taxed. The house we live in represents a legion of taxes—running all the way from taxes on standing timber to taxes paid by the store which sold the finishing paint and the manufacturers which produced it. Food, clothing, transportation, entertainment, periodicals, books—the tax bill is a substantial item in their cost to the consumer.

It is obvious that these indirect taxes—which provide the bulk of government revenue—fall more heavily on persons of moderate means than on those with higher incomes. A loaf of bread will last a millionaire as long as it will a laborer—and the tax is the same on the loaf each buys. Tax reduction would be the greatest boon the average American could have—a boon that would at once be reflected in more jobs, more purchasing power, more spending for the necessities and luxuries which keep the industrial machine turning.

We will have tax reduction when we spend less tax money—and not until then. Only massed public opinion, backed up by knowledge of the facts, can bring it about. The cost of government can and must be reduced—all the way from Washington down to the smallest hamlet in the land.

A MAN'S INTENTIONS

Whatever a man's problem and handicaps there is a word that describes the one thing he can do and must do. That word is "Forward." The man who lets nothing stop his steady advance need fear no future obstacles. His motor is his will and no form can long chain and impoverish that. Success comes sometimes when least expected. It is missed sometimes because of lack of faith in its existence. But he who advances, whose watchword is "Forward," is never surprised at prosperity. He welcomes it when it comes for he has long expected it and is prepared to meet its responsibilities.

Success is wholly a matter of mental attitude toward Success. The half-hearted idea that it may work out never make a success of anything. Success comes from the determination at the beginning to be successful and then by being it. It isn't swelled-headedness to believe oneself bigger than anything which may stand in the way of success but to believe that is necessary to success.

Goethe in his Life and Character said, "strictly speaking, everything depends upon a man's intentions."

HANDLING CRIME WAVE

Science has made such progress as to add invaluable comforts and benefits to the human family. Good roads and comfortable transportation have brought one of the difficult problems for society to handle. With these blessings have come the curse of gangsterism and its associate criminals. A few months ago it seemed an impossible problem for society to handle them but Congress so broadened the scope of the department of justice that state boundary lines no longer interfere with the pursuit of these desperadoes. The year 1934 almost marked the end of the worst group of kidnapers and robbers. When this trained criminal hunters of the government have full swing it is a hot day for this group of organized criminals. Most of the bad ones have been killed and a few really well known of the group are on the run. While there are a few still at large it looks like their days are numbered. Others may develop but the constant manhunt has proven to the bad man that crime doesn't pay.

DOUBTFUL LOANS

The banks have been criticized for not being more lenient about loaning money, that men ought to be allowed to borrow more money and then things would be better. Experience proves that this is not the solution of our difficulties. Looking back before the depression it appears that the fellows who got the most credit are in the deepest now. It would have been better for them if their credit had been chopped off before it was. Money getting is getting easier now but we heard a banker say a few days ago that his bank was not going to make the mistake it did a few years ago. Failed banks and losses from over credits have caused more grief than refusals to make doubtful loans.

SHOOT TO KILL

There has been some criticism on the harsh methods adopted by the department of justice in hunting and handling criminals, and it does seem rather ruthless to shoot to kill as approved by the department. But the life of one good officer is worth all of gangsterdom, and experience has demonstrated that these outlaws have no regard whatever for human life and their plan is to shoot their way out. In dealing with such desperate men the officers have no chance unless they are prepared to take them over and not take any chances.

Editorial of the Week

THE COUNTY SHOULD SUPPORT ITS PAUPERS

(Elizabethtown News)

The demand of the Federal Government that each State assume the responsibility for its "unemployables" is just and reasonable. It is notorious that as soon as Federal unemployment relief machinery was set up a number of cities, counties and States dumped their whole load of chronic dependents upon Uncle Sam's back—Courier Journal.

The above paragraph states a well-known fact. Previous to the Federal relief plan nearly every county in the United States had a list of paupers who were either supported in the almshouses, or county farms, or with small stipends to some relative who took care of them. The Government has been paying out millions of dollars to the pauper class. This should cease under the new plan of employment relief. All who can work and are able to work should be given work not at the high price that has heretofore been fixed of forty-five cents an hour but at the price current for other day labor in the community in which they are employed. As for that class of people who are unable to work and who are paupers in the sense of the law that they have no means of support, the county should take care of them. A great many people would not be allowed to go to the county farm by their relatives, but these same people are receiving support from the Federal Government.

Unemployment relief was for people who could work and would work, but had no work, but it has extended to support all of the indigent paupers of the country. There is an obligation upon every county to take care of its own paupers either by committing them to the almshouse or by a small stipend of less than $100 a year to pay relatives who would take care of them for that amount. This would relieve the Government of a tremendous load. The Government has assumed the function under the present relief program of going beyond the original scope of taking care of the paupers as well. This the Government should no longer be required to do, and every county and every State should look after its own indigent people who are unable to work, either through age, infirmity or bad health.

BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU SAY

In speaking of a person's faults, Pray don't forget your own; Remember, those with homes of glass, Should never throw a stone. If we have nothing else to do Than talk of those who sin; 'Tis better to commence at home, And from that point begin.

We have no right to judge a man Until he's fairly tried; Should we not like his company, We know the world is wide. Some may have faults—and who have not?

The old as well as young; Perhaps we may, for ought we know Have fifty to their one.

I'll tell you of a better plan, And find it works full well—To try my own defects to cure Ere others' faults I tell; And though I sometimes hope to be No worse than some I know, My own shortcomings bid me let The faults of others go.

Then let us all, when we begin To slander friend or foe, Think of the harm one word may do To those who little know; Remember, curses sometimes, like Our children's, "roost at home," Don't speak of others' faults until We have none of our own.

Natural Hall

Tree At Elkton
Earl Hadden, member of the force of the Todd County Standard, has a tree grown into a perfect shape of a hall tree. Nature has modeled this tree with more perfection than can be accomplished by man.

The tree is in the office of The Standard and can be seen by any one desiring to look at it—Todd County Standard, Elkton.

School Reader

Is 108 Years Old
Mr. F. M. Smith brought to the Times office yesterday a book, "The New York Reader No. 2 being selections in Prose and Poetry for the use of schools" that is one hundred and eighty years old. This book was published by Samuel Wood & Sons of New York, in 1827 and has 225 pages the size of which are 5 3/4 by 3 1/2 inches and is in splendid condition—Georgetown Times.

134-Year-Old Saw

Is Now Corn Knife
The Ohio County News is in possession of a very interesting old saw, which was first used by Chas. Wallace, who helped to build Ohio County's first court house, about the year 1800. Charles Wallace gave the saw to his son, Samuel Wallace and he later presented it to his son R. Hardin Wallace, of this city, now deceased. Hardin Wallace converted the saw into a corn knife and before his death gave the relic to his daughter, Miss Rebecca Wallace, the present possessor.—Ohio County News, Hartford.

Piece of Meteor

Found In Taylor
A very vivid meteor was seen by a number of people in this county the latter part of August and a portion of it that seemed to strike the earth appeared to be about the size of a dish pan. Recently a portion of this meteor was found on the farm of Mr. J. W. Davis, on the Robinson Creek road and is on exhibition in our window. The piece has the appearance of being some form of sandstone, and shows evidence of very great heat; one side of it is blackened, as though it had lain on burning material of some kind, the supposition being that when it fell it set grass or trash of some kind on fire.—News-Journal, Campbellsville.

Fire Mystery

Has Been Solved
Two weeks ago we reported that a strange display of what seemed to be small streaks or balls of fire had been observed on several occasions near the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Coll, on the Milburn road. The phenomena created considerable interest and quite a number of persons visited the home at night to see it. A few days ago, according to information given us, the mystery is said to have been solved. The luminous display is said to have been caused by a cat, known as a "fire cat," as explained to us. Some dogs discovered the feline and chased it into a wire fence and it was killed. The fire, or what seemed to be fire, was emitted from the cat's hair and caused this display of what seemed to be sparks or small particles of fire.—Carlisle County News, Bardwell.

Weather the past few days has been very hard on coal bins. The thermometer has been very close to zero.

DANGER OF RECKLESS DRIVING

The deaths and injuries incidental to reckless and fast driving of motor vehicles mounts higher each year. From some fairly reliable sources it is announced that in the last twelve months there have been over fifty thousand killed and approximately a million injured in the United States in automobile accidents. These casualties exceed the deaths and injured to all American troops during the World War.

It is high time the public was taking notice of the cause of this tremendous toll of suffering and loss to those entitled to be on the roads. In approaching the control in a measure to safeguard the public the first phase to be considered is fast driving. A conservative estimate is that at least fifty per cent and probably much higher of these casualties could be avoided and that they are primarily produced by too high rate of speed by the drivers accompanied by reckless handling. A large majority of these injuries and deaths are produced by persons driving motor vehicles who are wholly financially unable to respond in damages to the persons injured. So many drivers have no thought of the civil liability that attaches to the improper use but only criminal responsibility.

However, so high a toll of death and suffering it seems to us call for such regulatory methods as to make liable and responsible those who assume the risk of owning and operating a motor vehicle on the public highways. Modern transportation seems to require and justify a higher rate of speed on highways than formerly but if the rate of speed is not reduced or regulated by law it seems that mandatory liability insurance is a natural consequence for all who are permitted to use these dangerous instrumentalities of death. In any event, more protection should be guaranteed to all who use the public highways and laws regulating speed and compelling drivers to carry insurance appear to be the logical methods.

A GOOD CODE

Remember there are two sides to every question. Get them both. Be truthful. Get the facts.

In reporting a political gathering, give the facts, tell the story as it is, not as you would like to have it. Treat all parties alike. If there is any politics to be played, we will play it in our editorial columns.

Mistakes are inevitable, but strive for accuracy. I would rather have one story exactly right than a hundred half wrong.

Be decent, be fair, be generous. Boost, don't knock. There is good in everybody. Bring out the good and never needlessly hurt the feelings of anybody.

Treat all religious matter reverently.

If it possibly can be avoided, never bring ignominy to an innocent man or child in telling of the misdeed or misfortune of a relative. Don't wait to be asked, but do it without asking, and, above all, be clean and never let a dirty word or suggestive story get into type.

I want this paper to be so conducted that it can go into any home without destroying the innocence of childhood.

A FARMER'S RESOLUTIONS

To begin 1935 by taking a complete farm inventory;
To save enough time from work each week to think and plan ahead;

To provide my livestock with adequate salt, water and forage crops the whole year;

To read the tags before buying any seed or fertilizer;

To avoid wasteful practices;
To give consideration to the kinds and quality of products that the market needs;

A FAIR QUESTION

If a member of your family died, would you send out the obituary in a circular letter? If your wife entertained, would you run a slide on the screen of the movie show? If you were to enlarge your store, would you tell folks in a hotel register? If you were to have a wedding at your house, would you tack the news on a telephone post?

Then why in heck don't you put your advertising in the newspaper, too?—Exchange.

FORTY YEARS AGO

From the Files of The Boone County Recorder
ISSUE OF JANUARY 30, 1895

Monday was a beautiful snowy day.

Ezekiel Aylor and wife, of the Francesville neighborhood, were guests of Elmer Beall and wife, Sunday.

By reference to another column the reader will find the footings as they appear on the assessor's book.

About all the ice houses in town are filled, and the last crop of ice gathered was very superior to the first.

J. M. Lassing war at Bellevue last Saturday, looking after the interest of the Commonwealth in Esquire Green's court.

Chester Davis, the handsome young merchant of Hebron, was in town Friday afternoon. He had lovely weather for his visit.

W. E. Vest and J. B. Berkshire went over last Saturday morning to attend the Banning sale which was knocked out by the weather.

The pupils of Miss Nannie Briscoe's school at Hebron, will give an entertainment at the Town Hall, at that place, Saturday evening, February 9, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Admission 15 cents. The proceeds are to be applied to the improvement of the public school.

Several crops of tobacco were sold in this part of the county last week. Prices ranged from $2 to $7.

Take your shoe work to J. W. Gregg in Burlington. He guarantees his work. Work done at reasonable rates.

The 1894 crops when compared with those of the preceding year made the following showing: Tobacco increased 439,600 lbs.; hay fell short 3,000 tons; there were 470 acres of corn less; wheat increased 628 acres and 10,659 bushels; oats about the same.

Limaburg

Dad Clutterbuck killed a garter snake the other day.

Wallace Tanner was the first one out with a sleigh Monday.

Otis Rouse has been dealing in skunk hides to some extent.

Rabbit Hash

Elbert Ryle has about recovered from an attack of pneumonia.

Ott and Sebern Scott were visiting their cousin, Lewis Stephens, last Thursday.

Robert M. Wilson will take possession on the B. R. Stephens farm on the river, March 1st.

Gasburg

The peaches are undoubtedly all killed in this vicinity. A thorough examination confirms this beyond a doubt.

Joe Fritz, in lifting his little boy by the arm, pulled it out of place at the elbow. Dr. Tilley rendered the necessary aid.

Several parties from this vicinity sold their tobacco on the Cincinnati breaks lately at prices ranging from three to six cents.

Petersburg

Misses Mamie and Susie Helms have pneumonia.

Richard McWethy, Sr., is laid up with a severe sore throat.

The band reorganized last Thursday night, taking in three new members, to-wit: Prof. Hardin, Hubert Walton and Frank Berkshire.

Guns powder

James Long, son of John Long, died on the eve of the 26th of typhoid fever.

The Cottage Prayer meeting will be held at the residence of Ezra Tanner, Sunday evening, Feb. 3.

Socials are in order in this vicinity. The young folks were cordially entertained at Frank Border's. They also spent a pleasant evening at the residence of Charles McCrander.

NEW HIGHWAY CHIEF

Thomas S. Rhea, of Russellville, was recently elevated to chairmanship of the State Highway Commission by that body. The commission enunciated as its future policy that of completion or re-construction "at the earliest possible moment" of many of the important arterial highways of the state.

In a joint statement issued after Mr. Rhea had been chosen as chairman the commission pledged itself to "work harmoniously and in accord with the Governor in carrying out to the best of its ability the purposes for which it was created."

The new chairman expressed the hope that at the earliest possible time four-lane highways would be built into Louisville from all directions.

PURCHASED FARM

S. B. Nunneley purchased the farm of Story & Hughes through the Real Estate firm of Goodpastor & Griffith. It is generally conceded that if you have a farm to sell you will make no mistake in listing with them. They seem to find the buyers.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that I will, on February 4th, 1935, file in the Boone County Court final settlement of my accounts as assignee of the Boone County Farm Bureau.

HAMILTON SCHOOL NOTES

The Girls Reserve had a party at school Wednesday afternoon while the boys were engaged in basketball practice. They pulled candy which turned out very good except for a bit of chocolate which contained too much cream of tartar. Chapel was resumed Friday and it will be held in the future in the afternoon instead of in the morning. This plan will allow parents and visitors to attend this service. A musical program which consisted of songs by the Glee Club, a duet and several numbers by a string band preceded the service. Bro. Johnson, of Big Bone, spoke on "Our Creed" which is a subject that interests every school student, particularly those leaving their class rooms this year.

New Haven comes to Hamilton Feb. 1 and the Farmers will be fighting to be revented for that 17-15 defeat earlier in the season.

The Honor Roll students for the first Semester are:

Ninth Grade—
Mary Calvin Atha.
Lillian Oliver.
Robert W. Carroll.

Tenth Grade—
Lucille Nead.
Melvin Moore, Jr.

Eleventh Grade—
J. Wesley Palmer

Twelfth Grade—
Donald Perry.

NEW HAVEN SCHOOL NOTES

The Recorder drive is extended one week. Anyone desiring to subscribe will be benefiting the school by subscribing through any pupil.

We fully appreciate your cooperation thus far.

Our debate teams are becoming very active and the first debate will be between the teams here. The negative team will probably go to Erlanger for a debate the last of the week.

In keeping with our promise last week we will introduce our "Roberts" at this time. They are Robert Snow, Robert Doane, Robert Points Moore, Robert Hood, Robert Huey Smith, "Bobbie" Houston, "Bobbie" Lee Slayback, Robert Franklin Horton, Robert Shields, Robert Ryle, Robert Craddock and Robert Butler.

Last Friday night we journeyed to Florence to receive a beating by the Nightingales 21 to 9 for Florence.

The Tigers led all the way, save a deadlock at the third rest period. The score by quarters, 6-0, 8-7, 11-15-13. Florence was right in the game and New Haven boys had to scratch to pull through on top.

This week Friday night, we go to Hamilton. Saturday night we meet Erlanger at New Haven. Both are return games. We have only two home games left.

BURLINGTON SCHOOL NOTES

The Burlington High School Tom Cats defeated the Hamilton High School Farmers on Friday by a score of 38 to 22. Led by Snow with 16 points and A. Seebree with 13, the Tom Cats did not have much trouble in defeating the Farmers. The first half the Burlington lads showed some fine pass work, and the half ended by a 19 to 13 score in favor of the Tom Cats. In this game Kirkpatrick was switched to forward and made a very fine showing. Also at center Captain Less Voshell turned in a remarkable game.

In the girls game something occurred that never happened before on the local floor. This was a 30-30 tie. After playing three overtime periods the teams were forced to retire from the floor because of the rules.

Next Friday night, Feb. 1st, the Tom Cats will journey to Florence where they will be trying for a second win over the Knights and the Kittens will be trying to avenge a defeat that was handed to them by the Nightingales early in the season. We hope that many will attend this game.

FLORENCE SCHOOL NOTES

On Friday Feb. 1st the Florence school will have as their chapel speaker Dr. Shearwood, president of Georgetown College. Dr. Bonawitz, who is head of the music department will also be present.

We are very proud of the record our school made in selling Xmas seals. Mrs. Rudicell notified us last week that the Florence school had won the cup. This makes twice in succession, and if the school should win the cup next year, it will belong to the Florence school.

The Nightingales and Knights played New Haven Friday night. The Florence girls won while the boys lost to the New Haven boys. Good sportmanship existed all thru the game, and we are very proud of the fine school spirit existing between these two schools. On Saturday night the Florence basketball team played the Hebron High school teams and lost both games to Hebron. On Friday night Feb. 1 the Burlington basketball team will visit the Florence school, and two very good games are expected. The Florence Independent team, won both of their games over the week-end and went to first place in league standing. On Friday night Feb. 1 they will play the Petersburg boys at Florence. These will be three of the outstanding games of the year.

Don't forget to subscribe for the Boone County Recorder through one of the school children so that the school may get the benefit of fifty cents on every subscription for the purpose of helping to establish a circulating library. The subscription drive will close this week.

HEBRON SCHOOL NEWS

The Hebron Cardinals are really going places now. They came out on top with two victories over the Florence Knights and Nightingales Saturday night. The girl Cards came out with a rather lop-sided score of 27-11.

The boys game was quite interesting. Coach Walton is surely improving the boys. They won by a score of 23-20. Keep up the good work Cards, we're backing you. Mr. Boyd Mahan was referee Saturday night.

The Cardinals will entertain the Mason teams on Friday night, Feb. 1. You will remember that the Hebron girls met their one and only defeat at the hands of the Mason girls. Therefore we're expecting two exceedingly good games. The games start at 8:30 E. S. T.

The Junior Girl Reserves met Friday and gave a worship program consisting of morning prayer, entire group; Meaning of the G. R. Code—12 girls; Camp Fire Story of Long Ago—Glenrose Williams and Mary Marshall; Triangle girls.

The Senior Girl Reserves met Friday with the dignified Senior girls in charge. The following program was given: A song—the Quest sung by all; devotional—Anna Lea Burton; reading—Sarah Lucille Smith; double duet—Betty Crigler, Mary L. Rouse, Dorothy Conner and Vera Goodridge; Story of the famous opera, "Faust"—Dorothy Burns; song—the Seniors. We are planning to take the Y. W. C. A. Bible Study beginning on Feb. 11 with Miss Ruth Brooks as instructor.

The school is a very proud owner of an infant alligator donated by Mr. Walter Brown, of Burlington. The Biology class is very much interested in this reptile, which has been named "Dorothy." We are hoping that "Dorothy" will not freeze in this climate which doesn't compare with normal Florida weather, and we wish to thank Mr. Brown heartily.

The High School is sponsoring a school newspaper. The members of the staff are: Editor-in-Chief—Earl Heinback; Associate Editor—Evelyn Conrad; Sports Editor—Ben Kottmyer; Humorist—Kenneth Wohrley; Business Manager—Mr. Vaughn Hemphill.

The joke committee of the Minstrel show is making a special offer. To the three persons in the county submitting the best jokes, the committee will issue free passes to the Minstrel show. As many jokes may be submitted as desired and must be accompanied by contributors name. All jokes selected will be used in show. Please send all entries to Mr. Edwin Walton, Hebron, Ky. Don't forget the Stunt Program to be given Friday, Feb. 8th, 1935. Show starts at 8:30 E. S. T. More news concerning this program next week.

The Hebron P. T. A. will meet at the School Auditorium on Tuesday night, Feb. 5th. All members please attend. Visitors are welcome.

THE FARM AND HOME

Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station

Plan to beautify the farm and home with trees, shrubs and flowers. Send a postal card to the College of Agriculture at Lexington for copies of Farmers' Bulletin No. 1087, "Beautifying the Farmstead," and No. 1591, "Transplanting Trees and Shrubs."

With fewer chickens on farms, the poultry raising outlook is good, especially where plenty of home-grown feed is produced. Raise the chicks from well-bred stock, start them early and develop them into good, early layers.

The 1935 corn-hog programs says signers may plant not more than 90 per cent of the acreage planted to corn during the base years of 1932 and 1933. They may reduce acreages as much as 30 per cent and get adjustment payments in proportion.

Brick brooders, now widely used for raising chicks, should be built some time before a fire is made in them. Keeping the brooder covered with wet sacks for a week or two after it is built will allow the mortar to cure and increase its strength. Write to the College of Agriculture for building directions.

UTOPIAN REPORTS PROJECT WORK

Boone County Utopia Club No. 2 has approximately sixty members enrolled. The members are boys and girls who are nineteen years of age or older. Each member carries some agricultural or home improvement project during the year and gives a report on his or her activities for the year.

The members are carrying Farm Account, Landscape, Canning, Tobacco, Clothing Budget, Room Improvement, Small Fruits, Garden, Dairy, Poultry, Sheep projects. The reports on some of these projects will be given for the next few weeks as a point of general interest to those who may be interested in Utopia Club work. The report this week is that of one of the girls who carried the Clothing budgeting project in 1934.

MY BUDGETING OF CLOTHES PROJECT

I began my project by taking a careful survey of the clothing I had. The next was to budget my income, finding out the amount I could spend for clothes each month. I have carried this project for two years.

Through my project I expect to know how to buy clothes to a better advantage.

Utopia work should make the members better adjusted to society. Through the work and study of their projects they should be better citizen and leaders of their country.

To me Utopia work for this country is carrying out its purpose, as for offering a suggestion to its improvement, new materials in the form of pamphlets in each project might be a help.

Loan Policy

THE right kind of a bank is just as anxious to make good loans as the manufacturer, merchant or farmer is to sell his products.

This Bank welcomes every opportunity to make sound loans to its depositors whether the amounts required be large or small.

The point that many would-be-borrowers overlook, however, is that the money a bank lends is not the bank's nor the banker's—it is the depositors' money.

Hence, a bank must investigate the guarantees given by the borrower very carefully.

NEW A-A-A TOBACCO CONTRACTS

Eight Boone county farmers the past week signed the New Rider B A-A-A tobacco reduction contracts according to John E. Crigler, Secretary of the Boone County Tobacco Production Control Association.

Rider B contracts are for the benefit of those tobacco producers who have not signed contracts but wish to sign for 1935 reduction. By signing Rider B forms the growers are able to receive tax warrant exemptions for 1934 crop on their base. They reduce 40 per cent on their base in 1935 on the same basis as regular contract signers.

The above offers a special opportunity for non-contract signers who wish exemptions, and to sign for next year neither are the contracts subject to cancellation. Complete details on this contract are available at the County Agent's office at Burlington.

THE FRUITS OF PINE ORCHARD

(By Ennie B. Willis, R. N.)

There is a quietude that pine trees know
Tucking their feet beneath the leaves and snow.
There is a quietude on mountain slope
Where one small cabin tries to cope
With vastness and to compass in its walls
A sure serenity, as twilight falls.

When one hears the word "Orchard" spoken there is presented to the mind the harvest time, when the trees of the orchard shed their fruit, a time of plenty, of gathering in, of storing for future use.

With this interpretation of the work, I cannot help but speculate on the thought that came to me when I first went to Pine Orchard, Morgan County, Tennessee, to organize a Red Cross home hygiene class. What harvest will be found here, and do the pines bear a fruit that is nourishment or food? Can I, during my sojourn, help to produce a better yield? Will there be any permanent good come out of this teaching?

Pine Orchard is a typical rural community, covering the area adapted to farming on one of the mountains of the Cumberland Plateau. In the center of the community is the very old "Church House" and "grave yard." Scattered at varying distances from this center are the homes; while all about are the pines, yellow and white.

The class was organized in July, the busy harvest season, when housewives are very busy canning blackberries and huckleberries and cooking for the men who work on the crops. However, despite these heavy duties, twenty-three women and young girls came to enroll for the course. I was in a land where curiosity draws a crowd and any "meeting" announced is attended and evaluated by the measuring rod which the environmental forces of life in this setting provide.

The classes were taught in the Church House and in a nearby farm house we met for practical work. Because of the heavy morning duties of all, and the fact that many walked one to three miles to attend the course given in the afternoons, the group asked for three-hour periods of instruction. I complied with this request, and they remained as interested and as alert at the close of the long lessons as at the beginning. The attendance varied in numbers. Ten were very faithful always and deeply interested; the remaining number quite noticeably came (after sizing me up, which process took a couple of periods) to chatter with each other before and after class, and to see the demonstrations in home care of the sick.

The course was covered in thirty hours. Then we postponed our studies to make way for a "protracted meeting" at the Church House, which the people attended both morning and evening. Following this we again met weekly for review lessons. This review work afforded me great satisfaction for through it I intimately saw these folks in their homes and truly learned that they were making habits of the health truths taught.

A kind friend of the group, who had just finished building a log cabin in their midst, invited us into her new home for demonstrations in home care of the sick. In this home, two months after the course began, in front of the big fireplace, where burning pine logs shed their light and warmth, my students told me how they had found many opportunities to put into practice the lessons taught. Some had had illness in their homes and gave testimony to how they had cared for the sick, one, using many of the methods of care they had learned. All told me that they were keeping regular habits in their daily living and home-keeping.

As I drove from this mountain neighborhood, after the final class meeting, again I pondered over Pine Orchard. Thirty-six hours I had spent there teaching a class in something of an irregular way, but the ways of living of these people have not been attuned to specific methods and formal ways. More often they fit their lives to the changes of Nature. So our class had been fashioned in routine to fit their lives and ways.

The questions I had asked myself about a harvest and fruit began to be answered in my mind. Out of pine logs grown there I had seen a home builded. In that home and others I had seen regular health practices becoming a part of the lives of the people, and I felt convinced in many ways that some knowledge of health and how to keep it had been stored that would enable and enrich the lives of these people of Pine Orchard in the future.

I felt also that there was to be greater safety in the mountain homes because of what those ten faithful members of the class knew of symptoms of disease, of the importance of early diagnosis and care, and of how disease is spread and how to prevent it.

I, too, reaped something of a harvest in this experience as the teacher of the group. Mine were the choice fruits of acquaintance and friendship with these people. I learned their customs, their community assets—social and economic. As I came and went I felt the quietude and vastness of the region which is so evident, which holds both opportunity and hazards, and which I hope I made safer for these people. Moreover, I felt deeply happy to have been sent to Pine Orchard, to plant with the pines seeds of health truths and lessons in fuller living, and to see these seeds start growing in the habits of the people there, evidence of the spirit and love of Jane A. Delano and the American Red Cross. After all, these are the fruits of both, garnered among the pines, for I was sent by them to plant, to nurture, and to bring to fruition better health, better homes, and happier hearts.

Yes "There is a quietude that pine trees know," and "a sure serenity, as twilight falls."

(The above article was written by our local townswoman, Miss Ennie B. Willis and appeared in the January issue of THE AMERICAN JOURNAL OF NURSING. This is only another evidence that Miss Willis has risen to prominence and usefulness in her chosen profession.—(Editor).)

LOCAL ANNUAL POULTRY SCHOOL

HELD HERE LAST TUESDAY—GOOD ATTENDANCE

The Annual Winter Poultry School held at Burlington last Tuesday, January 29th was attended by 33 interested poultrymen. The adoption of better farm poultry practices that have been proven to increase the return from the poultry flock were stressed as of first importance to the poultrymen of the county.

Grant Maddox, of Florence, outlined the plan through which he had used pedigree male birds to increase the production of his flock of approximately 500 laying birds from a yearly average of 117 eggs per hen in 1928 to 227 eggs per hen in 1934.

Miss Johnnie Mae Terrill, of Petersburg, discussed the plan she and her sister had used for the past four years to raise one brood of 300 chicks and supply approximately 125 laying pullets each year for winter egg production.

Turkeys were also given discussion on the program. Mr. J. F. Cleek of Beaver, gave a splendid discussion on his method followed in the successful brooding and raising of 400 young birds the past year. The pullets were brooded until seven weeks in colony brooders with screen sun perches and then transferred to an alfalfa field. The College of Agriculture brooding program was recommended. Mrs. Thos. Hensley of Burlington, assisted with a general discussion on turkey raising.

Dr. T. P. Polk, Field Agent, in Veterinary science from the College of Agriculture warned poultrymen that disease in poultry was spreading rapidly over the state. Information gained from the veterinary laboratory at Lexington and studies in the field indicates that many diseases now commonly found have entered the state in the past ten years. Hatcheries and careless breeders have to a large extent been responsible for their spread. He advised poultrymen to buy only from reliable hatcherymen whom they know have healthy flocks.

Mr. Jim Humphrey, Poultry Field Agent, from the College of Agriculture stated that the College has made a thorough study of poultry management, practices that are paying. Recommendations and circulars on these practices have been prepared and are available at the County Agent's office. Poultry, despite many personal opinions according to farm record survey the past few years has represented approximately 25 per cent of the gross increase from Boone county farms. Certain management practices pay—others do not pay.

Plans were made for the holding of a tour during the summer month, the conducting of a number of brooding demonstrations and the holding of the annual poultry school next year.

WARNING

GIVEN A-A-A TOBACCO GROWERS: MUST HOLD EXCESS TOBACCO

Boone County A-A-A tobacco growers are given final warning by the County Control Committee not to sell more than the 10 per cent allowed excess allotment of tobacco for the 1934 crop.

The County Control Committee met at Burlington last Friday and voted unanimously to stand 100 per cent behind the contract as a matter of fairness to all concerned.

Growers who sell more than the 10 per cent allowed excess, allow other tobacco to be sold on their allotment cards violate their contracts. Violation means that all benefit payments are paid back, full 25 per cent tax is collected on 1934 tobacco sold and growers are ineligible for contracts for 1935.

An Agent of the Department of Internal Revenue, was in the office last Thursday and promised the full tax would be collected by their department on all contracts violated and assistance would be rendered in checking tax warrants and payments against the reports of dealers to locate violations.

Growers are advised to hold excess tobacco until further notice as to the disposition is issued by the local Association.

ONLY ONE BANK CLOSED IN KENTUCKY IN 1934

The state banking business will go into 1935 with a bright and encouraging outlook, State Banking Commissioner James R. Dorman said Monday.

"The state banks are in much better condition now than they have been in three or four years," he stated.

Dorman said only one state bank closed its doors during 1934, a fact which, he said, "is unusual even in normal times." The depositors, through the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, were paid off in full within two weeks after the bank closed, Dorman stated.

"We believe federal deposit insurance is the best protection depositors and bankers have ever had," the commissioner stated.

WORK FOR KENTUCKY'S CONVICTS CONSIDERED

A proposed agreement under which Kentucky's idle prison population would begin producing shirts for a Nashville firm was under consideration Saturday.

Ambrose Dudley, chairman of the Kentucky department of public welfare board, is seeking to provide work for hundreds of the state's prisoners, made jobless by recent prison labor legislation. The shirt-making project would adhere to a prison labor compact, corresponding to NRA codes, and if approved by the NRA authorities, the Blue Eagle label would be authorized for use on the prison-made garments.

CIVIL SERVICE

COMMISSION WARNS AGAINST MISLEADING INFORMATION

The United States Civil Service Commission says that numerous letters received at its office from different parts of the country indicate that misleading information is being given to the public by agents of some of the correspondence schools which give instruction in preparation for civil-service examinations.

To guard against the loss of money paid for tuition of this kind the Civil Service Commission informs the public as follows:

No one can promise appointments to positions for which the United States Civil Service Commission holds examinations. The claim that such assurance can be given brands the person making it as a fraud.

Information regarding examinations for the United States Civil Service may be obtained from the boards of United States Civil Service Examiners. There is such a board in each community which has a post office of the first or second class. In nearly all cities the civil service board is located at the post office.

Before paying money for tuition, or signing a contract, it is advisable to make inquiry concerning the prospect of examinations. There is reason to believe the agents of some schools deceive the public as to the probability of early examinations.

No school has advance information regarding the need for employees or the probability of examinations.

BASKETBALL GAME NEW HAVEN VS. BURLINGTON HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

The New Haven High School Boys' and Girls' teams will play the local Burlington High School teams here Friday night, February 8. There is keen but friendly rivalry between the schools and two fine games may be expected. These games, may perhaps be the last home games of the season. For this reason a large audience of fans should be present.

NOTICE TO OUR SCHOOL SUBSCRIBERS

In the recent school drive for subscriptions quite a number of our subscribers had to have their time extended. This work was done by our force under a limited time in order that all such subscribers may receive their papers this week. Under such circumstances there is always a possibility that mistakes may be made. If any such were made, we will appreciate it if any such parties will notify us at once.

ELECTRICAL SURVEY

BEING MADE IN BOONE COUNTY BY UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

Under the F. E. B. A. the United States Government is making a survey in Boone county to ascertain the feasibility of establishing electrical lines along the highways. In this survey it is also desired to find out the interest of the public as to the need of such a project.

It should be understood that roads cannot be taken into consideration owing to the fact that the scarcity of houses along these roads would make the project prohibitive as to the future possible returns.

This project should go through since the government is taking funds from the other projects for the purpose of making these surveys. It would seem from this fact that electrification of the rural communities is to be an established project, and the success depends upon the cooperation of the surrounding territory.

The present project in this county should be completed by February 15. Already there have been completed six economically sound routes. The Northern section of the county has been completed and the force of workers has just moved to the southern section of the county.

The work has been done by eight tabulators all of whom have been chosen from the unemployed of Boone county. These workers have completed four routes daily.

The project has been under the supervision of N. L. Klayer, County Supervisor of Rural Electrification Survey. Mr. Klayer was formerly employed here as Home Visitor in the Relief Office.

GAME AND FISH

MEETING HELD IN BURLINGTON—NEXT MEETING FEB. 13

A group of Boone county sportsmen with Mr. Allin, of the State Game and Fish Commission and E. M. Johnson, Boone county Game Warden, met in Burlington Saturday, Feb. 2.

A temporary organization was perfected by the selection of J. G. Smith as temporary chairman.

The purpose of this meeting was two-fold; to discuss the establishment of a game sanctuary in Boone county and organize a club for the protection of game and fish. Mr. Allin gave an interesting talk on game and fish reservations and also told how Boone county may obtain a game and fish sanctuary.

The meeting created much interest and twenty-one of the men that were present signed an organization a club at the next meeting, which will be held in Burlington Wednesday Feb. 13th, 7:00 o'clock p. m., at the Court House.

At that time a club will be organized for the protection of game and fish. The membership fee will be $1.00 per member. Officers for the club will be elected also. Mr. Allin will be there and show pictures of game and fish in their natural life. Everyone is invited to attend this meeting, and especially those that wish to obtain a game and fish sanctuary on the lands adjoining Gunpowder creek.

The ladies are invited and urged to come.

Everyone come. Help protect Boone county's game and fish.

LEXINGTON TOBACCO MARKET

Quite a few Boone county crops were sold last week on the burley tobacco market at Lexington, and five consignments from this county were included in the best crops list of that market, published in the Lexington newspapers.

The Lexington market sales continued heavy last week, a total of 7,148,708 pounds being disposed of for $1,226,055.32, an average of $17.15. Season's sales at Lexington last Friday night totalled 51,770,394 pounds that averaged $19.13.

Among the better crops from this county on the market at Lexington last week were:

W. T. Florence, 974 pounds, $24.84 average; Hugh Semones and Clem Washburn, 816, $25.32; W. A. Brown, 2,020, $20.25; James Allen and Veach, 1072; $22.42; Wm. Hill and Edward Black, 1,482, $22.59.

11 APPLICANTS

REFUSED PERMIT TO TAKE BAR EXAMINATION

Frankfort, Ky.—Carrying out a threat it made last year following an investigation of alleged fraud in connection with the June, 1934, state bar examination, the state board of bar examiners Wednesday denied to 11 applicants the right to take the semi-annual test that started here Wednesday.

Approximately 125 applicants from throughout the state took the examination which started Wednesday and will end Friday.

The unexplained possession of examination questions or papers by some last summer may have been responsible for the refusal of right.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME AT PETERSBURG

DEFECTIVE WIRING THE CAUSE

Fire Sunday night destroyed the two-story frame house of Albert Stephens.

The flames, believed caused by defective wiring, originated in the upper story and had gained considerable headway before they were seen.

Efforts of a hastily formed bucket brigade, consisting of approximately 12 men, were futile in coping with the quickly spreading fire. There is no fire department at Petersburg.

Neighbors were able to save a small portion of the furniture from the lower floor. Total damage was estimated at $3,500, part of which was covered by insurance.

The house was being remodeled. It was believed that in the process of the changes a short circuit was established which ignited the house.

SCHOOL BOARDS

GIVEN RULING ON SALES TAX

A ruling on the sales tax as it affects boards of education was received Tuesday by Supt. A. D. Owens of Newport Public Schools, from William R. Atkinson, assistant attorney general, Frankfort, Ky.

Supt. Owens had inquired particularly with respect to the charging of sales tax on foods sold in the school cafeterias and the reply from the attorney general's office states:

"Boards of education are exempt from paying sales tax on purchases. Under the rules of the State Tax Commission, you are not required to collect tax on food sold by the cafeteria if the cafeteria is owned and operated by the school or Board of Education, and if it is not open to the general public, but merely to the students and teachers."

"You will have to collect the tax on books sold by a book store operated by the school. You will have to collect the tax on tickets sold for school athletic events. You will have to collect tax on school entertainments. Where meals are sold to the students by contribution from civic organizations, such as parent-teacher associations, we are of the opinion that they are exempt under Section 2, of the gross receipts tax law, because they are casual sales by a person not regularly engaged in making sales. Sales tax must be collected on tablets, pencils and other similar products when sold under the direction of the Board of Education."

LOCAL COMMUNITY

TO SPONSOR SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM

For some time there has been a demand for better care of the Burlington school grounds. At the last meeting of the Parent-Teacher's Association, action was taken to start a program of improvement. The program, to be given Tuesday night, Feb. 12, is to be the first of a series of programs to be given at night in the interest of this special project. Much time and effort is required to prepare and present a program of any nature that is worthwhile, but those having parts in this are willing to do their best. There is to be no charge for admission. The program will consist of music both special and by the group, and a One-Act Play. Students of the school are to render the special music while interested citizens are presenting the play.

The title of the play is "It Isn't Being Done," and is modern and true to the life of people in a modern suburb. Mrs. Garnett Tolin, Mrs. Earl Smith, Miss Martha Blythe, Mr. Alexander Yelton, and Mr. Stanley Ryle are characters in the play. Certainly these people will be happy to see a large crowd in attendance. The program should last about an hour, but a short business meeting will precede it.

It is the hope of those who are members of the P. T. A. that those who are members will join in this worthy effort to make our school ground modern and attractive. This is and should be of interest to every citizen in the Burlington community. Much adverse criticism comes to our community because of the ugly appearance of the school surroundings. Perhaps being used to it, local people pass it unnoticed, but certainly those who visit us notice. At the present time every other central school area has its school ground attractively landscaped and improved. It must not be said that the local grounds are never cared for in the future. Those who wish to have a part in correcting this should be present Feb. 12 at 7:30 p. m., for plans and a good free program.

KENTUCKY COURT OF APPEALS

MODIFIES RULING ON TAX COLLECTION

A modified ruling was given last Tuesday from an appealed case from Jefferson County which was passed upon on Dec. 21, 1934, outlining the rights of Counties to provide finances for the first six months of this year.

The appellate court previously had ruled that county fiscal courts were authorized to make necessary levies to meet expenses and might anticipate in whole or in part the revenue provided by such levies.

Today's modification changed from July 1, 1933, to July 1, 1934, the assessment on which the six-months' levy must be based. It also stipulated that the levies must not exceed one-half of the levies that could legally be made for a full year.

As a result of this change, Sewell explained, tax bills for the six-month period may be sent out along with the bills for the 1935-36 fiscal year, thereby eliminating separate record books and keeping extra records. Under the previous opinion, it would have been necessary for counties to have acquired extra sets of records for the special levy. Copies of the modified opinions were mailed to County Judges throughout the state.

FINE RESULTS

OF SCHOOL DRIVE FOR SUBSCRIPTIONS—THE CONSTANCE SCHOOL WINS FIRST PLACE

The recent drive of the county schools for subscriptions for the Recorder ended Friday, February 1. The purpose of the drive was to provide funds for the purchase of a circulation library. This library is for the use of all schools and for that reason will benefit all students alike. The drive was given the hearty cooperation of all the school officials and particularly that of Supt. Norris, who is much interested in the establishing of such a library for the use of all the schools over which he presides.

The Recorder was quite generous in giving the schools a commission of one-third of all they collected. As a result this commission was kept within the county and will go for a good cause. Many children will have the opportunity of reading books which they would not otherwise have the chance to read. The total returns were about $400 which is considered very good for these times. The schools' commission will be around $140 which has been turned over to Supt. Norris. As before stated, he will spend this money for library books which are badly needed.

The Recorder offered prizes of $10.00, $5.00, and $2.50 for First, Second, and Third place, respectively. These prizes were to be awarded on the basis of per capita. That is, the total amount turned in was to be divided by the bona fide enrollment of the school. On this basis the first prize was won by the Constance school which made a per capita of $1.19 per student; the second prize was won by the Point Pleasant school with a per capita of 90c per student; the third prize was won by the Garrison school with a per capita of 75c per student. In this connection, it may be said that too much credit cannot be given to the live-awake teachers of these schools, Mr. Lents, Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Engle. The checks for these prizes were given to Supt. Norris who will present them with the compliments of the Recorder.

The Recorder wishes to thank all the teachers and students who took part in this drive and hopes that the money derived will be of some benefit to the boys and girls of the Boone County Schools.

THE REWARD FOR EXTRAVAGANCE

Government finances should be regarded precisely as individual financial problems. When an individual spends more than he earns he becomes insolvent. He loses his sources of credit—the confidence and faith of others. He eventually goes bankrupt.

The situation is no different when it comes to government, except that its credit sources are greater. It can stave off the day of reckoning longer. But eventually extravagances overtake even government as they do the individuals. Insolvency inevitably results from failure to balance outgo with income.

It is a common failure that there is no end to the taxing power of government—that it has a limitless source of income. But when taxes soar money goes into hiding. It is destroyed through business failures or shut-downs. Property is taken by states and cities. Industrial developments stop, investments are curtailed. Men are thrown out of work and are unable to find other jobs. Government has the power to tax—but that is a worthless power indeed when there is nothing to tax.

The State Government is not bankrupt. The chances are it will never be. But the only way to remain solvent is to live within income. The institution does not exist that can go on forever spending more than it earns.

OUT OF WORLD COURT

A vote in the United States Senate on the entering of this country into the World Court lacked seven of having the two-thirds majority. After a long hard fought battle this will end at least for a time further attempts of the administration to carry out this program. Party lines were badly broken and it may be listed as one of the first major defeats of the administration. The President was anxious to have our country represented in the international court. It is better that the question be settled and out of the way. We doubt that the majority of the people after the disturbance and disappointments in our participating in international affairs want anything to do directly with settling the disputes of foreign nations. It has been said that this Nation has won every war it has participated in and lost every conference. We may have more influence and do more good in an independent attitude than as a member of the court. It is estimated that this country has spent fifty billions of dollars, directly and indirectly, in our attempt to bring about international justice and the peace of the world and hasn't done so much good in the attempt. The refusal by the Senate to join the court may not have been a bad thing, after all.

SPACE GRAFTERS

A waste paper basket mounded high with "junk" from the morning mail convinces us again that no one receives the amount of propaganda, canned material, free readers and plain efforts to graft space, than a newspaper editor does.

No one would think of asking a clothing merchant for a $20 purchase gratis; or a grocer for $5 worth of produce; or a garage for $4 in free service. Yet individuals, corporations, causes societies, manufacturers, inventors, and just plain nuts, write in daily asking for more space as "free matter" than the average newspaper is able to sell advertising rates. If out of every thousand gained one-thousandth of what they ask, every newspaper in the country would be in the hands of a receiver before the six months had ended.

And if all of the effort and expense represented in this never-ceasing effort to graft free space was devoted to the purchase of legitimate advertising, the message that these varied agencies have or think they have, might be conveyed to the public in a fair and business-like manner.

SCOUTING BIRTHDAY

As February 8 comes around this year, we are once again reminded that the Boy Scouts are having a birthday, this time an officially important one, its twenty-fifth, which will usher in its Silver Anniversary Year, celebrating a quarter century of Scouting, during which 6,530,380 boys and men have in all branches followed its happy, outdoor, healthy, program and committed themselves to the great Oath and Law, which has been described as the finest code for conduct that has been proclaimed since the Sermon on the Mount. Congratulations to every Boy Scout of America! Congratulations to America that it has Boy Scouts!

Scouting was devised as a game and is played in that spirit, but underneath the game, permeating every aspect of it, are the intangible permanent values of character, of loyalty and good faith and courage and service in forgetfulness of self, in remembrance of the needs of others.

Take one Scout Law alone and see what it means to American life as a whole, where it is multiplied more than a thousand fold, as it annually is. "A Scout is clean." He keeps clean in body and thought, stands for clean speech, clean sport, clean habits and travels with a clean crowd." If this is part of a game, it is a game every American parent will covet for his son.

We listen to the Scout Oath, to which every Scout and Scouter throughout the country will re-subscribe on Friday evening, Feb. 8.

THE RELIEF ROLL

It is fast coming to the place where those on relief may be classified as the most fortunate in America. Back of them is the credit of the State and Nation. Their rent, clothing, food and fuel are assured. Many of the worries of folks in poor circumstances but with too much family pride to ask for relief, are removed from them.

Those on relief do not have to get up early in the morning, work late at night, pay sales tax, pay income tax, or fight many of the battles of life daily confronted by those who are trying to carry on in the face of adversity.

At first those on relief were amateurish, but the class has developed some first rate professionals and while the man grabs off a few days work, the woman besieges the county social worker. Their philosophy of life assumes that the world owes them a living. They seem to be correct since it is being furnished. We Americans inwardly think we know so much and boast of the biggest this and biggest that. We soar the highest and fall the hardest of any people.

When good times come again will we submerge ourselves with such safeguards as old age and unemployment insurance and lay up for a rainy day or again through by means of initiative crushing and revenue raising measures that discourage private enterprise?

PARENTS AND THEIR CHILDREN

"I am worried about our young folks," a public health expert told a Detroit audience recently. "I am worried about our young folks because they have such fool parents."

It is probable that the inherent good and bad qualities of parents—and children, too—vary little from age to age. But environments and living conditions do change and parents frequently fail to meet these changes in the proper manner.

Parents have a natural desire to make the lives of their children happy. Too much money and too little discipline is usually the way this desire works out. The result is our boys and girls, our young men and women, know much of pleasure, but little of duty and responsibility.

The Bible emphatically states: "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." This would seem to place the job squarely on the shoulders of the parents. Likewise the responsibility for so many wayward young people.

Editorial of the Week

WHO SUFFERS MOST FROM HEAVY TAXATION?

(Big Sandy News)
It should be everlastingly emphasized that the tax problem is every citizen's problem—whether he is a millionaire or a worker for wages.

It should likewise be emphasized that the tax problem is of as much significance to the man of small means as to the man with large means. In spite of all the talk about "taxing the rich," government subsidies principally from revenue derived from taxes on things bought by the millions of representative Americans.

It has been reliably estimated that 20 per cent of an annual family income of $2,000 goes for taxes. Little of it is paid in direct taxes, and that fact has led to the erroneous belief that people with small means escape paying for government. That belief should be thoroughly exploded—every bag of groceries, every gallon of gasoline, every pair of shoes you buy, is taxed. If you rent your home, part of the rental represents taxes which the owner of the house must pay. If you take a trip on a train, the heavy taxes paid by the railroads are reflected in the cost of tickets. If you turn on a light, about fifteen per cent of your electric bill goes for taxes.

The average citizen eats as much, wears as many clothes and moves about as much, as do people with much larger incomes. As a result, it is this average citizen who is most seriously affected by extravagant or wasteful government. And it is the average citizen who profits most from economical, efficient and thrifty government.

When these facts are realized by the American people, there will be a campaign for tax reduction that will not confine itself to pretty speeches, but will get results.

Letters to the Editor

Editor Recorder:
In looking through the Recorder today, which I just received, I noticed that Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Easton will start home in a few days as he is in very poor health. I wish to correct that item. We will not leave here until the races close. That will be the 16th day of March, unless something happens at home and we are sent for. Mr. Easton is in perfect health, so we both are enjoying the sunny South. We are having lovely, warm weather here. Had snow one day last week, only one day. The first snow in forty-three years, they all say.

Wishing our Boone-co. friends health, good luck and happiness, we are as ever,

Your Friends,
Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Easton,
3335 Esplanade Ave.,
New Orleans, La.

Florence, Ky., Jan. 30, 1935.

Editor Recorder:
Winter, as we all know, has its inconveniences and short comings. But some of these are not necessary at all, and should be eliminated.

For instance, the problem of dispensing the snow from the sidewalks of our fair village. This has been drawn to my attention for some time.

Our citizens should, of course, be responsible for the cleaning off of their walks, but should not be forced obligated to clean off the main sidewalks which run in front of their respective homes.

We have a Village Council whose duty it is, to relieve inconveniences and depressing conditions arising from faulty, and uncared for streets and sidewalks.

It is, to my opinion, a disgrace to a village such as ours to have its sidewalks the way they are during the winter months, especially when there is snowfall. It forces children to walk through snow to school, thus exposing them to cold and wet feet, and nine times out of ten resulting in colds and serious illness. And don't forget, that this affects our adult population in the same manner.

So in closing, I say it is no more than the duty of the council to see to it that this condition is remedied.

The Farm and Home

(Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

Seed potatoes should be free from scab, or treated if scab is present. Plant on land that has been in grass or legumes or that is known to produce a good crop. Use enough fertilizer to insure good growth, and give proper cultivation.

Drugs or so-called tonics will not increase egg production. Breeding for high production plus proper feeding, housing and general care are the only secrets to good returns from poultry. This means starting off with good chicks.

Killing, curing and preserving a good meat supply between now and spring should be given consideration on every farm. Likewise, make plans now to grow enough potatoes and other vegetables to supply the family in 1935.

Cows should be in good condition when they freshen. Lack of condition of flesh results in lower production. A little money spent for feed, plus better care in general, will be more than repaid in the extra amount of milk produced.

Cereals are a good source of energy and therefore have an important place in most diets, especially for children. When small amounts of vegetables and fruits are used, it is particularly advisable to include at least one serving of whole cereal a day.

Barnyard manure is a good fertilizer for grape vines. If manure cannot be had, use nitrate of soda or sulfate of ammonia at the rate of one-half pound scattered thinly around each vine in the early spring.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

Barren county 4-H clubs and the Glasgow Rotary club held a joint banquet, with 112 persons present. County Agent W. D. Sutton of Hopkins county reports that $18,000 has been raised to build a cheese plant, which will be taken over by Swift & Co.

It is predicted that Montgomery county farmers will seed 200,000 pounds of Korean lespedeza. Two hundred seventy-five Christian county farmers attended a county tobacco show at which $500 in cash prizes were given.

Many Boyle county poultrymen received equipment for testing flocks for B. W. D. disease.

A demonstration poultry flock in Monroe county made a net profit of $17.50, and another a gain of $93.

Vernon Toole, an Owen county 4-H club member, sold 648 pounds of tobacco for $139 and won $7 in prizes.

A purebred bull and several purebred heifers were placed in Elliott county last month.

Negro farm men and women cured more meat and are using more fruits and vegetables, reports A. C. Burnette, agent in charge.

HEBRON SCHOOL NEWS

A large group of spectators saw Hebron Cardinals defeat the Mason Kittens and Wildcats Friday night. The girls went into the game with a determination to win over the Kittens. The final score was 18-13 in favor of the Cardinals.

The Cardinals were in danger Friday evening for when a big Wildcat takes out after a little Cardinal, the bird usually gets the worst end of it, but such was not the case Friday night, for the Wildcats were defeated by a score of 26-24. At the end of the game, the score was 24-24. In an overtime period Omer Dolwick and Allen White each made a foul shot making the score 26-24. This was one of the most exciting games of the season.

The Cardinals will go to Dayton, Ky., Saturday night, Feb. 9th, 1935. We are hoping that they do as well as they did the last time we played Dayton.

The first chapel program since Christmas was given Friday under the supervision of Miss Cropper. We were glad to have so many visitors as this shows that they are really interested in our school. The program was as follows: Playlet—Burlesque—J. Caesar; double duet—Mary L. Rouse, Betty Crigler, Vera Goodridge and Dot Conner; duet—Avalon and Vivian Hood.

The Junior and Senior Girl Reserves met Friday for a joint meeting. Miss Ruth Brooks spoke on "Peters Fall and Rise." Miss Brooks will be with us during our Bible Study Course as instructor. The Clubs elected their reporters for the school newspaper. The Senior reporter is Mary L. Rouse and the Junior reporter is Catherine Casper.

The first issue of our school paper is being published this week. The joke committee of the minstrel show wishes to repeat its offer concerning the jokes. To any three persons in the county submitting the three best jokes will be awarded a free pass to the minstrel show. The jokes selected will be used in the minstrel. Please send all entries to Mr. Edwin Walton, Hebron, Ky., with your name attached.

Lets not forget the Stunt Show Friday night Feb. 8, at 8:30 E. S. T. The teachers have been putting forth their best efforts with the cooperation of the students to give an enjoyable program for all. The money from the show will be contributed to the library fund. All sorts of stunts are to be given and even a play entitled "All Sorts of Days."

Special numbers will be heard from the Glee Club, and if you wish to become young again just watch for the "Virginia Reel." A Radio Broadcast will be given and you will hear some famous musical artists perform. If you are in the mood for laughter don't miss J. Caesar. Among other stunts are numbers by the orchestra, musical feat, Wedding of Painted Dolls, a Chalk Talk and other interesting stunts. Don't miss this show. Come early and get a good seat. Prices 10 and 20c.

We regret that an error was made last week in announcing the P. T. A. It was announced for Tuesday, Feb. 5th, but instead the meeting will be Feb. 12, on the second Tuesday as usual. We hope we may have a large attendance on that evening.

HAMILTON SCHOOL NEWS

The Honor Club elected officers for the next semester at its meeting Friday afternoon. President—J. Wesley Palmer; Vice President—William Allen; Secretary—Virginia Miller; Treasurer—Hazel Craig.

These officers will serve until the end of the school year, when new officers will be elected. The Freshman class presented the program which featured three short "Dramas" and a musical comedy. The Musical Comedy dramatized scenes from the lives of two of our students and the chorus sang bits of popular songs that fitted well into the theme of mock "romance." Charles Woods as Master of Ceremonies while Mr. Huey as sponsor of the Freshman class, receives much credit for such a fine program. The Senior class will present a program on Feb. 15th.

The "Farmers" fell to the "Tigers" 25-13 after trailing by only two points at the half. The last half also proved a lynch for the "Farmers" as the New Haven girls after leading 8-2 at the half amassed 18 points to win 26-2. The Hamilton Reserves gained the only decision of the evening for the home "basketball" by winning from the New Haven Reserves 13-5.

Hamilton battles Holy Cross at Latonia Friday night and Florence Knights and Knightingales come to Hamilton on Saturday, Feb. 9th.

The Tigerettes permitted only one field goal by Hamilton. In the mean time they counted 26 points. The boys score by quarters 4-3 Hamilton; 11-9 New Haven; 16-13, New Haven; and we finished ahead 25 to 13.

Saturday night our reserves were snowed under on the home court, 36 to 7, by Erlanger. In the major tussle the memorial boys were granted two field goals and four points or free throws. All came in the first half and ended their scoring for the game.

Our debating teams are making rapid progress and will have their first debate this week.

Every one enjoyed the chapel program last week very much and a cordial invitation was extended to Dr. Sherwood, president of the Georgetown College and Mr. Bonawitz, who is head of the music department, to visit the school again later on in the year. They accepted the invitation and some time in March will bring the entire Glee Club to the Florence school for a full evening program.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for his foster daughter could not shelter her childhood from the hatred of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affairs ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to a baseball game. A ball hit into the bleachers, struck Lanny on the nose and the neurotic Mrs. Gatlin removed her from the hospital to which her former husband had hurried her. Mrs. Gatlin spirited the child to Europe. Gatlin, telling from business, willed Penelope all his money and was about to begin a search for his daughter when a motorist ended his life.

CHAPTER II—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a rising young psychiatrist, was presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" was in part responsible. Nance did not think she was a responsible criminal and obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Even Lanny, the doctor's faithful office nurse, was won over to her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's clear explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny visited her and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter, which a confederate stole from her hands outside the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV—Nance escaped, although shot, by swimming out to a speed-boat, manned by friends and went to Lanny's apartment. Lanny told Chief McNamara, who ordered her to bring Nance to his apartment and phoned for Doctor Burt.

CHAPTER V—One of the men in the boat on which Nance escaped—two of them ex-convicts, the other a bootlegger—had been wounded and they went to Burt's office where McNamara found them. The bootlegger let go and he took the others to his home, ordering the injured one to care for Nance and his pal. From them he learned that Nance's real name was Penelope Gatlin. Detective Sergeants Flynn and Angellotti, seeking the reward offered for Nance's apprehension, went to Lanny's apartment in search of Nance. Looking over her San Quentin cell, McNamara found a blank check on a San Jose bank.

stir? What did he get in for?"

"He got in for bootlegging and he's been bodyguard for a boss bootlegger since he got out."

"H-m-m-m! And what's your specialty?"

"I don't know what line I'll take up, Chief. I've only been out of the United States army disciplinary barracks on Alcatraz island a month. I was a soldier—and I poked an officer."

"Oh, you're the machine-gunner, eh? Learned to shoot in the army, I suppose?"

"If I hadn't, I'd have killed that guard. I could have gotten him if I cared to, but instead I scared him with 'overs and shorts. Did I sweep the roof of that lookout tower?"

"You certainly did—and rattled the man at the Browning gun there. Well, you're quite a fellow! What does your friend, the chauffeur, do?"

"Delivers bootleg. He took a chance for a friend."

"You may go," said Dan McNamara to the chauffeur. "Take your car and beat it. But I'll remember you and if you pull any rough stuff in this city I'll land you in the grass. On your way."

The man fled promptly, and Dan turned to the ex-soldier. "I've got Nance out at my house," he explained. "Doctor Burt has fixed her up and I'm not going to turn her in. Neither am I going to turn her out, because she wouldn't be out two hours before she'd be picked up. That saddle nose of hers is a dead-give-away."

The man nodded lugubrously. "We've got to find a quiet spot for your friend, too," the chief went on meditatively. "A man with three bullet holes in him is in an embarrassing fix—when he's wanted. So we'll take him out to my house, too. That's the only safe place I can think of."

"How about me?"

"You've been a soldier, so I suppose you can carry out orders?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, your orders are to come out to my house, too, and take care of your friends. The doctor will call every day and tell you what to do. And you'll have to do the cooking."

"I can do that, too. Not fancy, but they can eat it."

"All right, you've got a job and a holding-up place as well. I'll go home now and get my car and come back for you and your friend. Meanwhile don't you get cold feet and disappear. I want to talk to you some more. I want to find out all about Nance Belden, and you and your friend might be able to give a line on her."

"I don't know anything about her, Chief, except that her real name is Penelope Gatlin."

Dan McNamara clasped his corrugated brow in both hands and pondered. "Gatlin! Gatlin! Penelope Gatlin! Now, where have I run across that name in my business? I don't usually forget names, and I seem to remember I had a call once for somebody by that name or else somebody by that name called on me. It was a long time ago. I'll have to look that up—I wonder if there's anything in the files at headquarters."

"I Don't Know Anything About Her Chief."

It was midnight before Nance Belden's two friends were installed with her in Dan McNamara's house. Lanny looked both men over carefully and confided to the chief that she wouldn't trust either one of them as far as she could throw a bear by its tail, to which Mr. McNamara replied that one of them couldn't raise any devilry if he wanted to, while the other dared not. Moreover, this latter was the only practical nurse he could secure.

A trained nurse might talk; on the other hand, this friend of Nance's had been educated to keep his mouth shut. "And a very great virtue," McNamara added. "His freedom is in his keeping and my honor is in his, so we have to trust each other. Besides, it's high time you got home."

"How about those two cops waiting for me?"

"Greet them kindly, ask them their business and invite them to talk it over before they can tell you what it is. When they tell you permit them to search your home, and be cheerful about it."

The phone rang and Dan answered it. When he rejoined Lanny he was smiling broadly. "You're a bum mopper-up," he accused. "That was Flynn, one of the detective sergeants on watch at your house. He found two drops of blood you overlooked, so he thinks you and Nance are in the house but refuse to answer the bell, and he wants permission to break in, in the name of the law. He says he can slide the latch on your front door lock like nobody's business. I told him to wait another hour and then try it, but to be careful."

Lanny's independent and belligerent nature was instantly aroused. "If I couldn't give a snooker like that cards and spades, the four aces, big and little casino, and beat him to death on the sweeps, I'd kiss a cow," she declared. "Guess I'll go home and make those big boobs feel ashamed of themselves for disturbing a lady."

"Whatever you do, be nice to them," he warned earnestly. "If you get snooty with them, Lanny, they'll just wait you down to central station and stow you away for the night—with the excuse that the chief wants to see you. And I've decided I don't know you. If I did I'd go home with you."

He escorted Lanny out to her car and with a flashlight examined it very carefully again for signs of blood. He found two dried splashes and wiped them away before permitting her to depart.

As Lanny entered the driveway and paused in front of her garage, there were no detectives in sight, although there might have been had she deemed it the part of wisdom to glance carefully about her. She unlocked the garage door, climbed back in her car, drove in, stopped the motor and switched off the lights. Then she got out, closed and locked the garage door and turned on an electric light switch on the doorpost to light her way upstairs to her kitchen.

Then she almost screamed. Two big fellows wearing soft hats were standing behind her car, gazing at her awfully. Instantly Lanny switched off the light, got her little pistol out of her bag and switched the light on again.

"Now what do you two handsome devils want?" she demanded.

Like automatons the pair threw back their lapels and disclosed their shields. "Cops or no cops," Lanny announced, "my garage is my castle, and you can't come into it uninvited without a search warrant."

The two detectives looked at each other and Lanny realized that they appreciated her very much indeed. "She's a lawyer," said one of them.

"Not a very good one, though," the other replied. "However, Pat, let her have her own way. A woman"—the outrageous fellow bowed low—"and particularly a young and beautiful woman—with a pistol—always makes me nervous. If you will be good enough to open your garage door, Miss Lanning, we will go out, come up your front stairs, ring the bell like gentlemen, and ask if we can't come in and have a little chat with you. Is that satisfactory?"

"Eminently so," Lanny was as polite as the speaker now. She felt for the bolt in back of her, slid it back and kicked the door open without taking her eyes off her pistol off the pair. They went out, closed both doors behind her and held them closed until she had shot the bolt home again. Then she went upstairs and let herself in just as her doorbell rang; so she switched on the lights, removed her hat and coat, went to the door and opened it. Instantly two large hands thrust two cards at her; whereupon she was aware that she was about to entertain Detective Sergeant P. Flynn and Detective Sergeant A. Angellotti.

"Good evening, gentlemen," Lanny hailed them cordially. "Come in and rest your big flat feet."

P. Flynn nodded wisely to A. Angellotti. "She respects us, Amadeo," said he.

"Oh, I hope not, Pat. Let us hope it is not so she respects but our honorable profession." The wretch bowed again. "Thank you, Miss Lanning." And both gentlemen entered.

Lanny led them down the hall to her tiny drawing room. Angellotti, like a hound, followed close behind her, but Flynn was in no hurry. He swept the runner in the hall with a flashlight first, then followed his partner into the drawing room, and sat down heavily on a divan.

"Is this to be a long interview?" Lanny asked cheerfully.

P. Flynn shook his head. "A minute or two."

"Then I'll not bother giving you anything to drink."

"Well, it might take ten minutes, at that," Flynn countered.

"At least that," Angellotti agreed. "Besides, Pat, she works for a doctor and her stuff is probably good old prescription goods."

"We been hours out in the cold," Flynn added sadly.

Lanny mixed her guests each a highball. P. Flynn drank half of his at a gulp, set down his glass and said: "Well, where's Nance Belden?"

"I see by the papers she escaped from San Quentin about six hours ago."

"She came here," Flynn charged. "Prove it," Flynn challenged tartly; whereupon Flynn went out into the entrance hall and returned, dragging the end of the hall runner with him. He turned it over and revealed a large dark red spot. "Blood!" he announced.

Angellotti touched the spot. "Fresh blood!"

"Human blood," Flynn went on. "Quite a clot of it. She must have fainted after Miss Lanning let her in. Undoubtedly she lay several minutes in the hall bleeding while Miss Lanning was fixing a bed for her."

"We know she came here," Angellotti charged. "We found two spots of blood on the sidewalk."

"That settles it," Flynn declared with ponderous finality. "Miss Lanning, you have this female convict sequestered in your house and I advise you to give her up. Come now, give her up," he wheedled, "and we'll just give it out that we caught her trying to get into your house during your absence. We'll protect you."

"Search my house," Lanny offered in a queer, choked voice. She loathed herself for having overlooked that large blood stain on her hall runner.

Flynn and Angellotti needed no second invitation. They searched the house thoroughly and returned to the little drawing room to finish their drinks.

Our Loan Policy

THE right kind of a bank is just as anxious to make good loans as the manufacturer, merchant or farmer is to sell his products.

This Bank welcomes every opportunity to make sound loans to its depositors whether the amounts required be large or small.

The point that many would-be-borrowers overlook, however, is that the money a bank lends is not the bank's nor the banker's—it is the depositors' money.

Hence, a bank must investigate the guarantees given by the borrower very carefully.

IN MEMORY OF GRANDMOTHER, MIMA RYLE

One month today since you went away and left us so sad and lone. But we smile as we think that only a few short years, then we'll meet again in that heavenly home where there will be no parting, no sorrow, no tears.

We miss you so much and no one can take your place. But you going is a challenge to our lives, that we too may cling to that Old Rugged Cross and so live that when we come to the end of the way, there need be no fear, and like you we will not murmur or complain but only be in sweet submission to the Fathers will.

At the close of day as twilight fell,
She heard the ringing of the golden bell,
The Master called and she went away
Onto that land of the unclouded day.

She's waiting there on that beautiful shore,
Where the Saints of God shall part no more,
When our lives are finished and God has spoken,
Let us pray the circle will not be broken.

Her Granddaughter

BUY INTELLIGENTLY SAYS HOME EXPERT

Buy intelligently, Miss Mary A. Rokahr, U. S. department of agriculture expert, told homemakers at the Farm and Home Convention at Lexington. Said she: "We earn our living by farming or other hard work. We often turn around and waste a goodly portion of our hard earned income by buying unintelligently. All members of the family should learn to get their money's worth."

Her general rules for buying follow:

1. Pay cash if credit involves additional charges.
2. Know prices and real bargains.
3. Do not be over-persuaded by clever advertising.
4. Buy in quantity when discount is given and you have storage.
5. Before buying new clothes take an inventory and have a space plan.

At Warm Springs, Ga., children and grown-ups, despite their steel braces and wheel chairs, cheerfully raised their voices to the health of their benefactor.

There was a banquet in the dining hall of the Warm Springs Foundation for patients suffering from the after effects of infantile paralysis such as they enjoy at Thanksgiving time when the President is usually with them.

It was at Warm Springs that the president, a victim of the disease, regained his health with the aid of the curative waters of the natural warm springs, and later was instrumental in organizing the foundation, which he still heads.

President Roosevelt expressed his deep personal happiness to those participating in more than 7,000 birthday balls for the benefit of crippled children. "I like this kind of birthday," said the president in a nation-wide radio broadcast from the White House.

While his words were turned primarily toward those attending the Roosevelt benefit balls in all of the forty-eight states, and even in the tropical Philippines and cold Alaska the president made no secret of his gratification over the direct gifts and felicitations that piled high at the White House during the day.

In such thousands did the letters and telegrams come that the presidential staff reported it impossible to answer them. Mr. Roosevelt noted this and in his address added:

"To all of you who sent, I therefore take this opportunity of extending my gratitude."

Most of the president's brief speech was devoted to mention of the expansion of the work of the Warm Springs Foundation and how seventy per cent of the funds raised would go toward aiding crippled children in or near their own communities.

ADS. WILL TELL BANKERS' STORY

American Bankers Association President Announces Move to Stimulate Newspaper Advertising

NEW YORK.—Plans for stimulating wider use of informative newspaper advertising by banks in promoting public understanding and confidence in regard to existing banking conditions and methods have been announced by R. S. Hecht, President of the American Bankers Association, as a part of his organization's activities in aid of business recovery.

A general groundwork was prepared through a nationwide survey of advertising by banks relative to their willingness to extend justifiable loans to industry and trade. This, he said, revealed that a large number in all parts of the country are pursuing aggressive policies along this line and encouraging their customers to develop forward-looking business plans. "It is our aim to aid in fostering this constructive attitude whenever possible," he said.

The Theme of New Advertising

The association's Advertising Department, under the direct supervision of the general executive officers, has prepared, at the headquarters in New York City, an informative advertising series for the use of member banks in the association to aid them in developing in their own communities better general public understanding regarding banking, Mr. Hecht said.

"The underlying theme of this advertising is that sound banking is based on helpful human relations and that it has a unity of interest with the people of its community which binds them together with a common purpose," he said.

"We are confident that if a clear understanding of this is brought home to the people in all our banking communities, it will go far in restoring the public confidence which good banking deserves. A bank in which people do not believe is doubly safe, it is to the public interest for the people to have confidence in their banks."

The Place of Advertising

"We feel that bank advertising has a special public duty to perform in this connection under existing conditions. The copy which will be supplied in the service we have developed will not only aid the individual bank in promoting the use of its own facilities but is also aimed to bring about with the aid of newspaper advertising a clearer public viewpoint regarding the essential part it occupies in the life of its community."

Mr. Hecht emphasized in regard to the new advertising facilities being offered to the members of the association that they are not a profit making venture and that there is no intention to disturb existing advertising arrangements, the idea being that these institutional services shall supplement rather than replace present plans, or that they will give assistance to member banks now lacking satisfactory arrangements.

Fishermen Must Pay Toll
The only country in the world which allows individuals to collect a private toll from deep-sea fishermen is Denmark. For many centuries it has held steadfast to a law which gives the owner of shore land the right to "rent the sea" in front of his property for eel fishing. In some years this total rent has amounted to as much as $250,000.—Frelling Foster, in Collier's Weekly.

KENTUCKY RECORDS

PRESERVED IN STATE LIBRARY—COMPLETE HISTORY SINCE STATE WAS FORMED

A record of the 142 years of the history of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, rich in statesmanship and literature, may be found in the State Library at Frankfort.

Established by an act of the General Assembly of 1820, the library contains the official documents of the Commonwealth from 1792 to the present day in addition to a complete collection of histories of the State, law statutes and newspaper files.

The law library is complete in American and English jurisprudence dating from the Magna Charta to recent rulings of the high Federal and British courts. In this section of the library also may be found all of the statutes of Congress and American textbooks on every subject of American law, affording the lawyers of the State excellent opportunities for research and study.

The journals and acts of the General Assembly reflect the history and sentiment of the people, offering students of the State an opportunity for many hours of delightful research.

In the law library is found a rare set of congressional records of the Confederate States of America. This section of the library is under the direction of the Court of Appeals, and the librarian appointed by the court equips the office of the seven judges and four commissioners with books. Approximately $6,000 worth of reports and advance sheets are sold annually by the librarian.

The miscellaneous library contains valuable old maps and quaint books.

The first map of Kentucky, made in 1784 by John Filson, 8 years before Kentucky was admitted as a State to the Union, is kept in this division of the library.

One of the highly prized collections of the library is the entire library of Richard Collins, which was given by his family to the State, and is kept as a separate unit.

Newspaper Files

Bound volumes of leading Kentucky newspapers dating from 1835 to the present day are found in almost unbroken continuity in this section of the library. There is an old volume of "The Palladium, Political and Literary Reporter," published in Frankfort in 1798.

Another valuable possession is a book, "The Birds of America," from original drawings by John James Audubon, published in 1860.

Another feature of the library are lists of Kentuckians who served in the War of 1812, the Mexican War, the War Between the States, and the World War.

The miscellaneous library also contains the works of outstanding Kentuckians who have contributed to the literature of the nation.

KENTUCKY STATE

SETS DIZZY PACE IN BASKET BALL—EIGHT STRAIGHT WINS

Setting a dizzy pace in the Southeastern Conference basketball campaign, University of Kentucky's smoothly-functioning cage clan added two victories the past week to move into undisputed leadership.

After bowling over Alabama, the defending champion, on Friday the Wildcats continued their spectacular play to swamp Vanderbilt, previously unconquered, 58 to 22.

The pair of wins ran Kentucky's victory string over conference opposition to seven. The Wildcats also were in possession of scoring honors, having counted 345 points against Southeastern foes, while airtight guarding by the Blue Grass hardwood artists has held opposing teams to 128 points.

Louisiana State has triumphed over its two conference opponents thus far to remain undefeated, while Vanderbilt is in the third slot through six victories and one loss. Tennessee, victim in a contest with Kentucky, is next in the standings with four wins.

Since the above was written Kentucky State continued its winning streak by defeating Georgia Tech Saturday night by a score of 57 to 32. This makes eight straight victories for the Kentucky boys. It looks like Kentucky has the Southern Championship sewed up.

The local Eastern Star Chapter held their regular monthly meeting February 7th in the Peoples Deposit Bank hall. Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Stephens were initiated into the order, after which delightful refreshments were served.

PRISON LABOR CONTRACT DENIED KENTUCKY BY WASHINGTON

Washington, Feb. 9.—The Prison Labor Board authority announced today it had declined to approve the proposed contract between the Huffine Shirt Company of Nashville, Tenn., and the State of Kentucky for employment of prison labor at the Eddyville, (Ky.) penitentiary.

The action was taken at a closed meeting of the authority following an open hearing at which manufacturers and representatives of organized labor protested against the contract.

"At a special meeting of representatives of the Prison Labor Authority, held Tuesday, Feb. 5," the authority's announcement said, "the following action was taken with regard to a proposed contract for the employment of prisoners at the State penitentiary at Eddyville, Ky."

"For Prison Labor Authority finds that the contract as submitted by Kentucky is too indefinite to enable the authority to take action regarding it."

A CORRECTION

Last week we published the Commissioner's Sales. The sixth sale read Jennie Bullock vs. L. Hempfling. This should have been Jennie Bullock vs. L. Humphrey. The names were misread in setting the type, for which we are glad to make this correction. L. Hempfling was not connected in the sale in any manner or form.

J. O. Huey and C. D. "Dewey" Benson are having a hard time trying to decide which one has the best fox hound. Every good night they try them out and both claim his dog has the lead. ## MAN KILLED

IN CRASH NEAR WALTON—FIVE OTHER PERSONS INJURED

Asbury Moore, 27 years old, 305 Locust Street, Elmwood Place, Ohio, was killed, and five other persons all residents of Cincinnati or Elmwood, were hurt Sunday night in a head-on collision of two automobiles on U. S. Route 25, two and one-half miles south of Walton, Ky.

The injured are: Ernest Jessie, 27, 202 Township Avenue, Elmwood, severed artery in left arm.
Nannie Stokes, Negro, 31, 505 Carlisle Ave., Cincinnati, loss of several teeth.

Sarah Thomas, Negro, 40, 505 Carlisle Ave., fractured leg.

Marion Blake, Negro, 39, 916 Mount Street, Cincinnati, driver of the car in which the two Negro women were riding, was held by Kenton county police on a charge of manslaughter. He was uninjured.

A large dog in the Negroes' automobile escaped unhurt.

Knissen Speagle, in front of whose home the accident occurred, said that the small coupe driven by Moore appeared to have been dragged 25 feet by the other automobile after the collision. The crash happened on a curve.

Moore's skull was fractured, Dr. F. E. Bedinger, Walton, told Chief of County Police George Langley.

Moore was driving toward Cincinnati, and Blake's machine was bound in the opposite direction, Chief Langley reported. The Jessie family was riding with Moore.

Moore, married and the father of three young children, was employed as a machinist at the Formica Insulation Company, Jessie said. Jessie said Moore owned a tire shop, operated by his brother, at Williamsburg, Ky., and that he had driven to that city Saturday to visit the shop.

Moore's body was taken to the funeral establishment of Chamber & Grubbs, Walton. The Jessies were treated by Dr. Bedinger.

PHONE RATES

EYED IN KENTUCKY—RECORDS ORDERED TO BE SUBMITTED

The Kentucky Public Service Commission has started an investigation of local and long-distance telephone rates and other charges made to consumers by the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co., which operates in many Kentucky communities.

Louis Cox, secretary of the commission, said the telephone company was ordered to file with the commission detailed records of operating costs, actual costs, investments, and other data needed for the investigation. The inquiry, Cox declared, was ordered by the commission of its own volition with a view to determining if existing rates were fair.

The information requested, Cox said, probably would require from six months to a year to be gathered and presented. The cost of reproducing the records must be borne by the company.

Bailey Greenup spent the week-end with his parents here. Bailey is employed at the Central State Hospital and says he enjoys his work very much.

KENTUCKY KIDNAPER GETS 15 YEARS IN CANADA

David Meisner, Covington, Ky., gambler and bookmaker, was sentenced to 15 years in prison on conviction of kidnaping John S. Labatt, wealthy brewery president. It was the first case of its kind in Canada.

The court did not impose the maximum penalty, although Meisner was convicted on three counts, two in connection with the kidnaping and one of armed robbery. The maximum penalty was 25 years and the lash, which was omitted.

The little bookmaker heard the verdict calmly. His counsel rested when the sole defense witness, Detective Leroy Hall, of Covington, was revealed to have left the country after establishing an alibi for Meisner Tuesday.

THANKS EXPRESSED

BY SUPERINTENDENT NORRIS FOR GOOD SHOWING MADE

We take this opportunity to express our thanks to the schools and the patrons for the splendid showing made in the Boone County Recorder drive. We also thank Mr. Skillman for offering us this opportunity to earn enough money to start a thing that we believe will be one of the greatest steps forward that we have made in quite a while. We appreciate the interest that is being shown in the plan for our County Circulating Library. Donations have already been made in addition to the amount raised through the Recorder drive. Our goal is a circulating library of at least 2000 well selected books, including several sets of supplementary readers for the lower grades.

If you should have some books of fiction or story suitable for school library that you would like to contribute to this cause, get in touch with me or the teacher in your school and we will be glad to get such books as will be suitable for a school library.

D. H. NORRIS, Supt.

4-LANE ROAD FOR HIGHWAY 42

WORK MAY BEGIN WITHIN 60 DAYS TO CONSTRUCT ROAD INTO FOUR-LANE HIGHWAY

The possibility that work of reconstructing the Jefferson county linking of the Louisville-Cincinnati road into a four-lane highway may be started within sixty to ninety days was held out by Thos. S. Rhea chairman of the State Highway Commission, and County Judge B. F. Ewing, in talks on Monday before the Women's City Club and the Architects and Builders' Exhibit Building, 620 South Fifth Street.

Selection of the route and purchase of the right-of-way by the county await only final reports on two surveys by county engineers. Judge Ewing explained, Mr. Rhea said the route would be built as a four-lane highway. The route will follow the Brownsboro Road to Blankenbaker Lane. The location of the section to link up with the River road from the lane is to be decided upon by the commission.

Mr. Rhea told the club the commission plans to adopt a fixed, comprehensive and workable road program, which, he said, the State has never had.

FLORENCE MAN

BAPTIST MISSION BOARD VOTES TO DISCONTINUE SUPPORT

By a vote of 46 to 1 the Baptist State Mission Board Tuesday decided to withhold all financial support from Georgetown College until the "situation there is corrected."

The "situation is the refusal of Dr. Henry N. Sherwood, president of the College, to be re-immersed in accordance to the tenets of the denomination.

Fifty of the seventy-nine members of the board were present. Three failed to vote. The financial support amounts to $8,000 a year.

The Rev. George Ragland, of the First Baptist church, Lexington, introduced the resolution adopted. Action was deferred on a section of the resolution allocating the money to other beneficiaries of the educational fund.

NO EXCESS BURLEY FOR BY-PRODUCTS

The tobacco section of the A-A-A through County Agent H. R. Forkner, announces that arrangements will not be made for the disposition of any excess burley tobacco to manufacturers of tobacco by-products. Definite announcement can not yet be made regarding possible disposition of excess of fire-cured or dark air-cured tobacco to manufacturers of tobacco by-products.

All producers who have completed selling tobacco should return their allotment cards to the county offices, and in the event they have excess burley tobacco with the county control committee for witnesses in rendering such tobacco unmerchantable.

In every case where a producer has marketed up to his full production allotment and has excess production, it will be necessary to execute a special form to show the number of pounds of excess tobacco, the number of pounds rendered unmerchantable, and the method employed in rendering it unmerchantable, points out County Agent H. R. Forkner.

This form must be signed by the producer and by the county committee before the producer's 1934 marketing card will be approved and forwarded to Washington. The above forms have not been received as yet but will be received in about two weeks.

We wish to make an explanation in regard to the Editorial of the Week which we run each week. This issue we publish an editorial of the Lexington Herald in connection with the recent calling of the legislature by Lieutenant Governor Chandler. We desire to state that these editorials are not necessarily our own opinion. This week we would just as gladly published an editorial supporting Mr. Chandler if we had seen one which measured up to our requirements. These editorials are copied because we think them interesting, timely, and full of thought. Personally we may or may not agree with the thought expressed. We wish this matter understood by our readers.

THE GRADUATION PROBLEM

Within four months the schools and colleges of the country will be turning out thousands of young men and women who must, from that time forward, seek their own living. With the present unemployment situation, it seems highly improbable that many of them will find work. Those who have received highly technical education may obtain positions, but the majority of them will not be able to "make connections" right away.

The problem is getting to be more and more acute. Specialization is emphasized to an even greater degree than ever before and the young man or young woman who possesses a technical knowledge is more likely to find employment than the graduates in the liberal arts courses.

A UNIQUE MOVEMENT

On February 8th, 1910, the Boy Scouts of America was incorporated in the District of Columbia. The filing of those papers in Washington marked the launching of a Movement, that, in the quarter of a century that has passed since, has come to have a unique place in American life. The Boy Scouts of America seeks to build character and to train for citizenship and to do it through an interesting program of leisure time activities for boys in which they shall learn by doing. How successful it has been, to paraphrase the old quotation, we have only to look about us to see the results that the handwork of 1,291,000 Scout leaders have wrought. With a million men and boys on its roster the Scout Movement, dedicated to high ideals of service, has a foremost place in American life. It is to be congratulated on its fine past and all good wishes will go forward with it to new accomplishments.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

Discussion of the Townsend Plan for old age pensions for everybody reaching a certain age, tentatively placed at 60 years, shows that some measure for removing the dread of old age through lack of financial ability to care for one's self, is a matter most seriously considered by hundreds of thousands of people.

This spectre of old age has been made far more unpleasant by the wiping out of the savings of thousands upon thousands of people either dependent upon income from invested funds or soon to be dependent upon such income.

In the face of such situations the proposals to provide for every person arriving at the age of 60 years who is a citizen of the United States, is a plan which will instantly gain supporters.

Advocates of the Townsend Plan claim that the payment would come out of the pockets of everybody through a sales tax collected through the wholesalers. It would create no added burden upon the taxpayers, as that term is generally used. They claim it would provide employment for more people by removing from employment those who desire to retire because of advanced years but are prevented through lack of support. They claim that the requirement that it all must be spent month by month, will be a tremendous stimulant to business, no matter how wisely or how foolishly the money is expended.

Whether or not the sum of $200 per month is the amount which should be provided, whether the conditions which may exist where even elderly people have dependents to care for, will be met in the new plan remains to be seen. There are countless details which would have to be worked out before such a measure would be put into effect.

Once started, the plan never could be abolished; the pension sum never could be decreased without working untold hardship upon the country.

One thing is certain, and that is that the Townsend Plan has received such widespread support everywhere that Congress will be obliged to give serious consideration to some form of old age pensions at an early date.

The Federal Government has spent billions in relief of unemployment, and having done so the public is ready to listen to some plan which will forever drive away the fear of poverty in old age.

Editorial of the Week

HAPPY'S FOLLY

(Lexington Herald)

For the first time in two years the governor of Kentucky, persuaded by urgent necessity, dares to cross the State Line, and Happy Chandler, almost before the pullman porter can brush the dust of Kentucky off the governor's shoes, calls a special session of the legislature. If there is anything on earth Kentucky does not need or want it is a special session of the legislature. Of course one other thing Kentucky doesn't need is Happy for acting governor. To have both at the same time would leave the state like the congregation of the old colored preacher who prayed at length, concluding, "and now, Lord, anoint us with the kerosene of Thy Glory and set us on fire."

The governor went to Washington on serious business, something with which, of course, the acting governor is not concerned. This state has a chance through federal grant to build a four-lane super-highway from Cumberland Gap to Mammoth Cave, to Louisville, to Lexington and Ashland, at a cost of approximately $50,000 a mile without it costing a cent to Kentucky. If this can be done, it will employ more men than any single enterprise Kentucky ever had or dreamed of, and take them out of the ranks of the hundred thousand on relief. Thoughtful men like Dr. Frank L. McVey, H. St. G. T. Carmichael, Lyter Donaldson and W. E. Morrow have considered this a great opportunity for the state. The Blue Grass Automobile Club and the Lexington Board of Commerce have endorsed it heartily.

But to Happy it just means a chance to stand on his head before the grandstand to "steal the show" while serious-minded folk are about their tiresome business. Kentucky has had many clown acts in her volcanic and grilling history. But for downright bumpiousness, the call of Happy (beg pardon, Governor Albert Benjamin Chandler) for a special session wins the grand prize.

The last legislature was entreated by every known means to pass the compulsory primary bill. It refused. It will refuse in extra session as it did in general session. And once Happy calls out the legislature he can't adjourn them for 60 days unless they quit voluntarily or refuse to convene. So it might cost the state half a million dollars to give Happy the chance to show that a little thing like that means nothing in his young life so long as single handed and alone, with one weep of a flowing pen, he can make Kentucky, overnight, the laughing stock of the nation.

FIRESIDE THOUGHTS

We are proud of our State University. This school has grown under the able leadership of Dr. Frank L. McVey until it now ranks high among the universities of this nation. Last week the enrollment reached the high mark when it was reported that a total of 2481 men and women students had enrolled for the second semester. This was 264 more than registered during the corresponding time last year. Many Boone county boys and girls are now taking courses in that splendid institution.

We recently read a very interesting book entitled "Pioneer Kentucky" by Willard J. Jilson. Dr. Jilson was one time State Geologist of Kentucky and a good one at that. This volume gives a concise summary of the explorations and settlements in Kentucky up to 1800. If you want to visualize Kentucky as it was before 1800, you will find this a handy reference book. It is the sort of book to pore over when you plan a historical vacation, by road, footpath, or boat. The book is published by the State Journal Company, Frankfort, Ky.

We are especially attracted by good poetry. We mean by that poetry that appeals to the heart and soul. One of our favorites written within recent years is the beautiful poem entitled "TREES" by the lamented Joyce Kilmer. We give it below:

"I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree.
A tree whose hungry mouth is pressed
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast;

A tree that looks at God all day
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;
A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;
Upon whose bosom snow has lain;
Who intimately lives with rain.
Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree."

We are old enough to ask this question:
Do you remember:

When a young man would heat a soap-stone and put it in the cutter before taking his best girl for a sleigh ride; also, the buffalo robe he tucked about her?

When there were no vestibules on passenger trains, and in going from one coach to another you grabbed your hat with one hand and the brake wheel with the other and made a leap as a handful of hot cinders went down the back of your neck?

When girls used a petal from the red rose of last summer's hat for rouge?

When all young men went calling on New Year's Day and left their calling cards at the homes of the girls who kept open house?

When the front parlor was a sanctuary opened only on rare occasions?

When the small town cry of "Run-away horse!" brought people to the windows and into the streets?

—o—

To go back still farther—
How would you like to go back to the old times when we had to chop ice in the creek so that the cobs could get water to drink; or thaw out the old wooden pump so we could get enough water for our morning coffee; take our regular Saturday night bath in a wash tub after heating the water in the old iron teakettle; walk two miles to school through the rain, ice, sleet, snow, and mud and if the boy friend froze stiff every time he had a hot date? And all this is to say nothing about trying to get your foot in a leather boot that was stiff as a board without tearing off a couple of toe nails. Well, it wasn't so bad at that.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

If anyone had any doubts of the continued personal popularity of President Roosevelt the enthusiastic nation-wide celebration of his fifty-third birthday ought to end them. Here was an extraordinary outpouring of good will for which it would be difficult to find a parallel. The birthday of a living President has not normally been viewed as an occasion for public rejoicing. Unmistakably the country still feels a deep personal affection for its present Chief Executive which no criticism of his policies or doubts of his subordinates has weakened.

Although President Roosevelt has been reported as "not bitterly disappointed" over the defeat of the World Court resolution in the Senate, the Administration might well, if it is in earnest, explore the possibilities in Representative David J. Lewis' proposed joint resolution of Congress to accomplish the same purpose. It has been argued that Mr. Lewis' method of entering the World Court has the sanction of precedent, as the annexation of Texas was achieved by a joint resolution after ratification of a treaty with Mexico had failed in the Senate.

President Roosevelt will soon ask for general legislation centralizing supervision of air, water and highway transportation, he advised Congress in a special message transmitting a report of the Federal Aviation Commission. Joseph B. Eastman, co-ordinator of transportation, has recommended that control of aviation be given to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

President Roosevelt is favorable to the idea. The entire Interstate Commerce Commission membership opposed the Eastman proposal, however.

The Administration strategy for meeting any kind of a decision by the Supreme Court in the gold cases, it has been emphasized, proceeds from a basic determination to pay no more than the prevailing dollar value of government debts. That much is certain, it was said. In addition, President Roosevelt said at his last press conference, in answer to an inquiry, that no plan to enlarge the membership of the Supreme Court had been drafted.

A Reconstruction Finance Corporation with considerably broadened powers came into legal existence when President Roosevelt, in the presence of Chairman Jones, signed a measure extending for two years the life of the corporation. The Senate and House agreed to a conference report composing differences in measures they had previously approved. The conference report was adopted in the Senate without debate, but roused a show of resentment in the House before it was passed, 302 to 75.

The $4,800,000,000 appropriation passed by the House last week for Federal work relief was attacked in New York the other night by Henry P. Fletcher, Republican national chairman, in a speech denouncing the New Deal once more as a failure. "I strongly suspect," said Mr. Fletcher, that one purpose back of the unprecedented drive for this appropriation, under whip, spur and gag, is that the President is shrewd enough to know what a tremendous influence the control of this fund will have, not only in securing the legislation he desires, but in influencing the elections in 1936.

Senator Huey P. Long has his enemies guessing about what his next move will be to crush the incipient rebellion against his dictatorship. That he would crush it as he has crushed others in the past only the zealots among his foes would question openly. On the eve of the reopening of the investigation he has ordered into an alleged plot against his life, his State highway policemen have been riding the concrete trucks, which he built, serving subpoenas upon scores of persons supposed to have knowledge of a plan to assassinate him.

President Roosevelt and the nation with him celebrated his fifty-third birthday. More than 100,000 persons signed their names to telegrams or letters which poured into the White House in such numbers that they overflowed the executive office mail-room and filled all convenient corridors and nooks. The President himself, alter a long day at his desk, sat happily at the head of his table in the midst of a family party and cut his birthday cake, sparkling with twenty-one candles. No such cake for any member of the Roosevelt family gets more than twenty-one.

Expressing his "deep personal happiness" in the observance of his birthday as an occasion for the raising of funds with which to combat infantile paralysis President Roosevelt voiced his gratitude to thousands of Americans who participated in benefit birthday balls. His radio message was broadcast from the White House. "I like this kind of a birthday," the President said.

The retirement from Congress of Representative McDuffie, of Alabama, to become Federal judge in the Mobile district merits more than passing mention. His Congressional career has, in many respects, been remarkable, and yet it has, in an important sense, been unsuccessful. From a national aspect there has been no legislator more valuable or courageous. Yet there are several members of the House better known to the country than he.

Speaker Joseph W. Byrns now, can pound for order with an 800-year-old gavel, made of auburo wood from El Morro Fort in San Juan, Puerto Rico. Colonel O. R. Cole, commandant of American troops there, forwarded the gavel and block to the Speaker, who noted that the hardness of the wood increased with age. The fort was erected in 1593, and Colonel Cole estimated the wood was 400 years old when hewn for the building.

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge has made known to the legislative committee of Massachusetts which is considering methods of honoring the memory of the late President, that she disapproves of a memorial in the form of a statue. As her views will probably be respected we are not likely to see a statue of Mr. Coolidge in the capital of the State of which he was Governor for two terms.

BELLEVUE SCHOOL NEWS

Those in charge desire to express their appreciation for the interest manifested in the school play. The proceeds amounted to $16.75 after the expenses of $1.50 were deducted. This amount was forwarded to the County Superintendent as the contribution of the Bellevue community. Our total contribution to the fund now amounts to $18.25.

We thank the local lodge for the use of their chairs.

The patrons of the school are invited to meet at the school house at Bellevue Friday afternoon February 15th, at 2:30 for the purpose of organizing a P. T. A. Other schools have such organizations, and we should have one in this community.

HAMILTON SCHOOL NEWS

The Glee Club met Friday afternoon and songs which the Honor Club purchased last week were sung. It was decided that unless several tenors can be found it will be for the Glee Club. Wanted—a tenor or tenors, to sing in a high school chorus. No experience necessary—just a good tenor voice.

Friday night the "Farmers" met defeat for the third straight week, this time at the hands of the Holy Cross Hawks. The barrage long shots that the Latonia boys dropped through the net gained them the victory. Perry led the scoring with six field goals and two free-throws for Hamilton while McCormack, of Holy Cross followed with 11 points. The "Farmerettes" held the Holy Cross girls to 12 points in the first half while Virginia Miller scored six for the Hamilton girls, but the Holy Cross quintet drew away and won 30-10.

Saturday night in their last game of the season the "Farmerettes" battled valiantly but were defeated by the Knightingales of Florence 10 to 9. The score was 6-6 at the third quarter but the "Farmerettes" could not score from the charity lane altho they had numerous opportunities and the Knightingales pulled ahead. The "Farmerettes" then overcame the Knights 20-5, holding them scoreless in the last half. Aylor returning to the hardwood after a week's illness, scored half of Hamilton's points.

Hamilton meets Sparta at Hamilton on Feb. 22. This will be the last game of the season on the home court.

NEW HAVEN SCHOOL NOTES

We are sorry to lose those good pupils who moved away from us. We are glad however, to welcome those who come to us.

Hi-Y boys and girl reserve clubs have ordered their books for the annual discussion classes. Mr. Ewalt, District Y. M. C. A. Secretary was in our school for a short visit this week. His same pleasant smile never wears out.

The general science class pasteurized some milk last week in an experiment. A similar amount of raw milk was placed in the cabinet for observation. After two days it was found that there had been practically no fermentation had taken place in the pasteurized milk, while the raw milk had developed an offensive odor, and mold had formed on its surface. We are studying properties of sanitary milk production.

Last week we met two defeats at Burlington. Our girls, off to a slow start, finished five points behind the blue and white girls. The boys game was a thriller, fast from the whistle, the Tigers ahead only twice, at first and in the last period finished 20 to 25 for Burlington. We play Hebron there this week.

FLORENCE SCHOOL NEWS

The chapel program this week was changed from Friday morning to Wednesday morning in order that the Florence boys and girls might have the opportunity of hearing Judge Fred Bale lecture on the "Relation of Today's Youth to the Community." The school was very fortunate in having the opportunity of hearing such an interesting speaker.

Our negative debate team debated the affirmative team of the Independence School last week and made a very creditable showing. This week our Affirmative team will debate the Negative team of the Independence school at Florence. Our Negative team will debate the affirmative team of the New Haven school also this week.

Don't forget the P. T. A. meeting Thursday night. This is a very important meeting, as officers are to be elected for next year. The organization is also planning a founders' day program to be given on Thursday night.

Mrs. Louis Sullivan, president of the Florence Parent Teachers Association attended the 6th district convention and there made a report to the convention on the outstanding achievement of the year. Mrs. Sullivan considered the service rendered by the organization toward taking care of and feeding those children whose parents were on relief was the outstanding accomplishment for the organization. So she took this as her subject. The publicity chairman of the convention commented on Mrs. Sullivan's report as being the most outstanding report made during the convention. This comment was made in both the Times-Star and the Post. So come to the P. T. A. meeting Thursday night and join with the other Parents of the community in making this a successful school year.

Our basket ball teams played the Hamilton High School girls and boys Saturday night at Hamilton. The Florence girls won by a score of 10 to 9, while the Hamilton boys defeated the Florence boys 20 to 5. Good Sportsmanship prevailed during both games, and the Florence school together with a number of friends who accompanied the team to Hamilton want to take this opportunity of expressing our thanks for the hospitality shown them Saturday night by the Hamilton school children, teachers and people. Be sure and see the game of the season. Also the Independent team will play their last home game of the season.

The girl reserve and the Hi-Y club have both enrolled for the Bible Study and they will have their first lesson Thursday Feb. 14. One hundred per cent in both organizations have signed for the course. The name of the Text is "Life Or Merely Living."

Don't forget the P. T. A. meeting Thursday night, and the last ball game of the season Friday night.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for his foster daughter could not save him from the childless from the hatred of his wife, who had never wanted him. Their affairs ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to a baseball game. The boy, who was in the bleachers, struck Penelope on the nose and the neurotic Mrs. Gatlin removed her from the hospital to which her former husband had hurried her. Mrs. Gatlin spirited the child to her home. Gatlin retired from business, while Penelope all his money, and was about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II.—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a rising young psychiatrist, was presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality, for which her "middle nose" was in part responsible. McNamara did not think she was a criminal, but she had obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Even Lanny, the doctor's faithful office boy, who had known her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III.—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's clear explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny visited her and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter, with a confederate stole from her handbag outside the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV.—Nance escaped, although shot, by climbing out to a speed-boat manned by friends and sent to Lanny's apartment. Lanny told Chief McNamara who ordered her to bring Nance to his apartment and phoned for Doctor Burt.

CHAPTER V.—One of the men in the boat on which Nance escaped—two of them ex-convicts, the other a bootlegger—had been wounded and they went to Burt's office, where McNamara found them. The bootlegger he let go and he took the others to his home, ordering the uninjured one to care for Nance and her pal.

He learned that Nance's real name was Penelope Gatlin, detective Sergeant Flynn and Angellotti, seeking the reward offered for Nance's apprehension, went to Lanny's apartment in search of Nance. Looking over her San Quentin cell, McNamara found a blank check on a San Jose bank.

"You've taken her away," Flynn charged.

"If you're such good detectives, go find her," Lanny was getting her courage back again. "She did come here, but I wasn't fool enough to receive her. She came in a car with two men and she did faint in my hallway and lie there for a little while. Of course she expected—why, I can't imagine—that I'd hide her and nurse her. But she's neither a friend nor a relative of mine; she met me once in Doctor Burt's office where I am employed and, took a liking to me—in her funny way. She's a psycho-neurotic personality. She wrote me, asking me to call upon her, and I did—like a fool—because I felt sorry for her. She should be in a sanitarium, not a jail."

"Who brought her to Doctor Burt's office?"

"Chief McNamara."

Messrs. Flynn and Angellotti sat up. They glanced slowly at each other. "The old man's been up to his old tricks again," said Flynn. "What became of Nance Belden after you refused to receive her?"

"She left in the automobile," Lanny was careful not to state which automobile or whose.

"You're an accessory to her escape. It was your duty, as a citizen, to hold her here, telephone police headquarters and have her taken down to the emergency hospital for treatment. You can go to the pen for this."

"Get out of my house," Lanny commanded fiercely.

"Sure, but you come with us," thus Angellotti.

"You can't arrest me without a warrant."

"I said before, you ain't such a good lawyer. We can always pick up anybody that carries a gun without a permit. Into your hat and coat, Miss Lanning, and come with us."

"I'll telephone my lawyer and then go with you," said Lanny with dignity.

"Nothing doing," Flynn declared firmly.

"You two dare lay hands on me and I'll have you both broke, understand. Be careful. Call up Chief McNamara before you get fresh with me. The telephone is in the kitchen."

Flynn went into the kitchen and called up Dan McNamara. He was much subdued upon his return, and Lanny smiled. "We'll get you yet," he growled. "You must have a drag with the chief. He's pulled us off the case. Good night."

When they had gone, Lanny put out the hall light and watched them from behind the door curtain. They crossed the street to their car, climbed in and settled down for an all-night vigil—at least so Lanny decided.

So she dragged the hall runner into the kitchen, scrubbed the bloody spot thoroughly and dried it over the gas stove, reviling herself the while.

To the surprise of the machine gunner, Chief Dan McNamara did not ask him a single personal question—not even his name. Nor did he question him regarding his wounded friend. He and the chief partook of a breakfast which the Tommy man prepared, and discussed marksmanship, wounds, battles and sudden death. As the chief was leaving, he gave the machine gunner a list of tradesmen who supplied his house, and told him to telephone his orders; when delivery was made, they were to be left on a table in the basement.

"And don't you answer the telephone and don't show yourself outside or near the front windows," he warned. The fellow nodded. "By the way, Chief, what's going to become of that speed boat? It belongs to Nance. She bought it for forty-five hundred dollars."

McNamara sat down and looked his amazement. "She paid forty-five hundred dollars for that boat—and yet she was doing time for pinching silk stockings? I don't like to ask you any questions you might be embarrassed to answer, boy, but today will be a total loss to me unless I find out where she keeps her bank roll."

"That's Nance's business and I'll not discuss it. She sent the check out in the letter outlining her plan of escape."

"Who received the letter?"

"A friend who showed it to us—and we decided to help Nance out. We both owed her a debt we couldn't see no other way of payin'."

"But didn't you figure out the risks?"

"Sure—an' discounted 'em. Machine gun fire ain't no new thing to us. We figure them guards wasn't top-notch machine gunners anyhow—that is, at long ranges. They never expect to have to do anything but close-range work; they know how to handle their guns, but they don't have their regular periods of target practice on the range like a soldier does. In our boat, headed straight away from the fire at forty-five miles an hour, it would take an expert to get on us. An' they wouldn't know for sure whether we were accomplices or not until Nance reached the boat and we started pullin' her in; then, of course, they'd let us have it. But their first bursts on the boat were just as liable to be overs and shorts and we'd have the girl aboard before they could correct."

"There were eight other boats in the cove. Six of 'em was in our pay an' they was strung along in a line, so close together that as we run down the line of 'em the guards would hold their fire for fear of riddlin' innocent parties."

"An' we had another advantage. That speed boat throws a wide white bow wave, an' the water for fifty feet behind her and twenty feet on each side is a smother of foam when she's doing her stuff—bullets couldn't throw up any water that could be seen from a distance in the big spray. When you're machine gunnin' a fast movin' target, you got to aim at the spot where the shots are droppin' if you're goin' to correct your range fast an' accurately. Then we had another advantage. The guards are in a watch tower on a hill or a high wall an' at the early ranges they'd be firin' down hill. Even the work of an expert gunner, firin' at a down angle, goes off considerable. The cockpit was lined with steel, so after the boy friend got Nance aboard, they fopped and were safe. The only trouble was that the edge of one burst got Cates before he could flop. The front cockpit was steel lined, too."

The man grinned sheepishly. "I wouldn't take that chance again. Chief. Those gunners were better than we figured them."

"You're both men after my own heart. Well, take good care of your friends. I've got to be on the job till midnight tonight."

"How long you goin' to keep us here?"

"You can bet your sweet life it won't be very long. You're too dangerous to me."

In his official car, driven by a policeman chauffeur, McNamara motored down to central station, where he immediately sent upstairs for Nance Belden's record and photographs and proceeded to San Quentin.

"Did that Belden girl who escaped yesterday leave anything in her cell? Letters, photographs?" he asked the warden.

"I've been in such a stew over her escape I haven't thought of investigating that angle," the warden confessed.

Ten minutes later he was in the cell, carefully looking over the clothing Nance Belden had left behind her. On a slip he found a small, cloth-covered metal tag, such as dry cleaners clamp on garments to identify them. This tag bore the initials "N. B." Inside and just below the collar of a worn tailored suit he found the silk tag which tailors sew into the garments they manufacture. This tag carried the name of "L. Abrahams, Ladies' Tailor, 314 San Fernando avenue, San Jose."

He snipped this tag out of the coat and rummaged through a suitcase under the bed. It contained a deck of playing cards, some clothing which yielded no clues and a blank check of the Security Trust company, of San Jose.

"Nothing of interest in the girl's abandoned effects," he reported to the warden. "By the way, I want to have a chin-chin with one of your prisoners—Benny Beetle, Number 41,322."

"Will you do me a favor, Benny?" the chief asked him when he came in.

"Only one, Dan? I owe you three."

"We'll forget the other two and collect on one. Do you know the good conduct prisoner who works in the identification bureau?"

The Beetle nodded.

This Tag Bore the Initials "N. B."

"Know anybody whose time is up shortly?"

"My cell-mate."

"If he could bring me word that the photographs, fingerprints and Bertillon measurements of Nance Belden—remember that name?—have mysteriously disappeared, I'd be inclined to be his friend if he got into a jam later on and it wasn't too serious."

"I'll do what I can for you, Chief. I'll ask Bender. He's assistant to the tie clerk."

"See him in the mess-hall at noon. And see somebody in the prison print shop. They're probably running off placards to send to all the postmasters in the state. That's where they advertise for escaped prisoners—in post office lobbies. Can't let those placards with the half-tone photos and Bertillon measurements get out, you know. Good-by, Benny and thanks a lot."

From San Quentin Dan McNamara motored down to San Jose and called upon L. Abrahams, ladies' tailor.

"Mr. Abrahams, have you ever made a tailored suit for a girl with a nose that something has smashed flat in the middle?"

"Sure I have," Abrahams replied. "You mean Miss Penelope Gatlin, don't you?"

Abrahams looked in his card index cabinet, then opened a large book in which he kept his customers' measurements recorded, together with a sample of the cloth from which each order has been cut. Dan McNamara hesitatingly placed his finger on one of these samples. "That was the cloth."

"Sure, that was the suit I made for Miss Gatlin when she was in this city? If so, I'd like to have her address."

Ten minutes later, McNamara was pressing the bell at the door of the house in South Marlissa street.

"Does Miss Gatlin live here?" he queried.

"Not any more. She used to live here with her mother, but she disappeared about two years ago, and her mother sold this house to the lady I work for."

"Where is Mrs. Gatlin now?"

"We don't know."

"Thank you," and McNamara directed his driver to go to the Security Trust company, where he sent his card in to the president. He was received promptly.

Loan Policy

THE right kind of a bank is just as anxious to make good loans as the manufacturer, merchant or farmer is to sell his products.

This Bank welcomes every opportunity to make sound loans to its depositors whether the amounts required be large or small.

The point that many would-be-borrowers overlook, however, is that the money a bank lends is not the bank's nor the banker's—it is the depositors' money.

Hence, a bank must investigate the guarantees given by the borrower very carefully.

THE BOONE COUNTY RECORDER

ESTABLISHED 1875

Volume 59

BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY THURSDAY FEBRUARY 21, 1935

NUMBER 53

FORMER PARTNER

IN FOUNDING OF RECORDER WRITES INTERESTING LETTER ABOUT FORMER DAYS.

The present Editor wished to know the exact date of the founding of the Boone County Recorder and the circumstances surrounding its founding. These facts were supplied by one of the co-founders who is still living in the city of Northfield, Mass., Mr. Charles C. Conner. Mr. Conner lived in Boone County sixty or more years ago. The following appreciated and most interesting letter will be of interest to our many readers:

Editor of the Recorder:

You have asked through a niece of mine, what I might tell you about the start of the paper which is now under your management, and have asked to know something about myself.

A room for publication was fitted up in the large building on the second floor opposite the postoffice. A starway led up from the outside which connected with a lawyers office besides. Two printers were brought from Cincinnati to help Mr. W. L. Riddell and me start, one Mr. Trimble, a man with wife and little child staying a long time with the work.

The first issue under name, the Boone County Recorder, was made September 23, 1875. My father had bought a half interest in the enterprise for me, yet in the teen age. Mr. Riddell, the fine, capable man, was the editor and manager-in-chief. As junior editor, I did some writing, even poetry for the paper. I learned to set type and became a proof reader, but remained only a year in the office, finding it was too confining for me. As a poet I went voluntarily out a rear door and never returned.

The almost direct connection with the lawyers' office we found a convenience—Green and Riddell were the occupants of that office. R. C. Green was at the time County Attorney, and had occasion to place some official communication with us to print. He spelled phonetically and his handwriting almost or quite concealed the sense of his article. At the time spelling bees were in town. To give an example of his spelling: A group of us were one day in the county clerk's office rehearsing for an evening contest. Mann Garnett was pronouncing the words—words of one syllable when he gave to Mr. Green 'socks' which he proceeded to spell 's-o-x'; wrong, said Garnett; Mr. Green responded, "If that doesn't spell sock what does it spell?"

Fountain Riddell, a brother of W. L., contributed some splendid humorous articles for us over a fictitious name. His handwriting was possibly harder to decipher than Mr. Green's. When we could not, as a combined printers' force, make out a word, we would take the article to the author, next door. He would hold it before him, squint at it, hold it a little further away to get in perspective, and after a while could tell us what it was meant to be!

Not long after leaving the paper I began reading for the ministry, which was entered upon with my home people. Since, I have wandered from the South to the Middle Northwest, and then to the East, where the most of my time has been occupied. Many incidents of interest to me, of course, have occurred which will not be here rehearsed.

At present, I am not in the active ministry, but am writing and publishing. The making of the manuscript for a book, which bears title "In the Living Way," suggested other work along literary lines.

60 ATTEND

CANNING SCHOOL—MANY SECTIONS REPRESENTED

Sixty women and men attended the meat canning school held at Burlington High School last Monday afternoon according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The attendance was not only local but from various sections of the county.

Mrs. Rosina K. Maxwell of the Ball Brothers Company of Muncie, Indiana, gave a most forceful and interesting demonstration in the various recommended ways and methods of canning meats. Mrs. Maxwell knew her demonstration and presented it in a way that was interesting and of value to all attending.

utilizing material which was accumulated in the years.

I have lived largely with a pen in my hand, and for many years have done much reading, averaging of late more than a hundred books a year. In 1934 it was 161 books, the year before 131. This year to February 12, it is 24 books already, with another thick volume half through. I read for pleasure and suggestion of material for my work.

Many faces of Boone county or Burlington friends are recalled. How I would like to see them again! But few are left to see. I am surprised, as my brother sends me occasionally the Recorder, at the passing of one and another at 74 or 81. When I knew them they had hardly reached middle life. While with the years we live not just as in the days of youth, yet in the consciousness of a youth of the spirit there is a blessed realization.

CHARLES C. CONNER,

E. Northfield, Mass.

Anderson has a fine reputation for this kind of work and his many friends are pleased to know of his appointment to this position.

TOURNAMENT

IS ON AT FLORENCE NEXT WEEK—WILL YOU BE THERE?

It's about time for the annual madness called "the tournament," when every kid from school age on up to 80 or 90 in this and many other counties gets the fever and wants to see their favorites "turn on" the worst way to beat the "hated" enemy from Sandblast Junction, Weehawken Center or Wishwashville at a game called basketball, and looking something like ten or twelve crazy males trying to throw a big brown pumpkin through a couple of hoopsnakes hung on the wall.

Right here in our own county, Boone county if you don't know it, and named after Daniel Boone, one of the leading patriots of early days, in this grand and glorious county, seven communities will send high school teams to the yearly ruckus at the Florence Gym, as well as hundreds of supporters to back them vociferously, and spiritually and in every way possible, and out of that delicious, sport-maddened crowd about one tenth of the gang will come away satisfied, because only one first place cup or banner is awarded.

Sometimes a citizenship or good sportsmanship cup or banner is also awarded. But who ever heard tell of a crowd of people going nuts over the announcement that "Wishywashus" high school gets the citizenship award, because her boys or girls were the quietest throughout the season, and they allowed themselves to be tramped over the most Hells Bells, who ever heard tell of anything like that in red-blooded sportsmanship? Who gives a continental, outside of a few scholarly looking professors, when there's strife of clean, hard competition on the field of battle to attract the attention? Basketball is still a "he-man's" game, although it should always be played clean, for a good sport never plays any other way.

Next week is the time and Florence Gym is the place. The battle royal of Boone County's best high school athletes will be there to do or die for the glory of Old Siwash, as it were. The tournament is for the public and the public should be there in full blast. Look at the pleasure you will have condemning the referees and criticizing the coaches and players. That should be worth the price of admission. Remember the first game starts on Thursday, February 28.

STATE P. T. A.

TO HAVE MEETING AT OWENSBORO, KENTUCKY

J. L. Foust, superintendent of Owensboro schools, has issued invitations to all Parent-Teacher organizations in the state to attend the state convention of the P. T. A. which is to be held at Owensboro April 17 and 18.

Complimenting the great work the organization is doing in the interest of child welfare, Mr. Foust urged all P. T. A. presidents and as many delegates as possible to attend the convention, stating that the entire personnel of the Owensboro school system united in extending an invitation to all such associations.

MRS. ROOSEVELT HONORS WOMAN FOR KENTUCKY

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt doubly honored Mrs. Mary Breckinridge of Kentucky, pioneer in mountain nursing, by inviting her to the White House to dinner last night and introducing her at a meeting held here today.

Mrs. Roosevelt told her press conference she had been interested in Mrs. Breckinridge's work of sending nurses on horseback into the remote regions of the Kentucky mountains for many years.

TROPHIES

IN 4-H CLUBS WON BY CONSTANCE AND HAMILTON

The Constance "Corncrackers" and Hamilton "Silver Leaders" 4-H Clubs scored highest in Achievement and work for 1934 and were declared by the Boone County 4-H Council last Thursday winners of the 1934 Banks of Boone County trophies in group 1 and 11 respectively.

The "Corncracker" 4-H Club under the adult leadership of Prof. and Mrs. R. V. Lenz, Mr. and Mrs. Will Zimmer, Mrs. Henry Kottmyer and Mr. A. D. Hunter has been one of the most consistent high scoring clubs in the county for the past six years. This club scored highest in members completing projects and points in special events. The junior officers of the club are Earl Dolwick, President; Harold Prabel, Vice-President; and Ruth Kottmyer Secretary-Treasurer.

The Hamilton "Silver Leaders" have also been one of the consistent high scoring clubs. The splendid progress of the club in a large measure may be attributed to the fine adult leadership. The adult leaders of the club are Mrs. J. L. Jones, Jr., Prof. Reuben Asbury, Mrs. Orin Edwards, and Prof. Garland Huff. This club for the past four years has sponsored cooperatively with the school and the Community and Hamilton Free Community Fair. The club has also done a splendid job of project work with 100 per cent of members completing and taking an active part in Community, County and State events. The junior officers of the club are L. M. Moore, Jr., President; Sara Betty Ryle, V-President; and Mary Calvin Atha, Secretary-Treasurer.

Ten Community Clubs enrolling 307 members competed the past year for honors in Achievement and work. Group 1 clubs were composed of Constance, Hebron, Florence, Burlington and Petersburg. Group 11 Clubs was composed of Hamilton, Grant, New Haven, Walton and Verona. The Banks of Boone county trophies are two large masterpieces paintings selected for their educational value. These trophies will be awarded again in 1935 to the Community 4-H Clubs scoring in Achievement and work.

Between courses the Employees Forum of the company presented Miss Mamie Hames of the Burlington exchange with a beautiful umbrella in commemoration of her 20 years as operator at the Burlington exchange. Prof. Davis made an excellent talk which was much appreciated by all attending as every one in the community admires Mr. Davis very much.

The affair adjourned immediately after the luncheon looking forward the next occasion bringing together the employees and outside guests for a good time and the building of more good will among the people of Boone county.

W. L. Kirkpatrick who has killed and packed quite a few hogs the past winter, will not make many more butchering, as hogs cannot be found in the county. He says they are scarce as hens teeth.

No plant beds have been sown in the county so far this year.

LOCAL FIRE

INSURANCE CO., HAS MADE FINE RECORD—OF GREAT SERVICE TO BOONE COUNTY

The Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Company whose office is located in Burlington has made a fine record during the 57 years of its existence. During this time it has served the local communities admirably well and has protected the farmers in the matter of their insurance. It gives great pleasure to this paper to give a brief summary of the benefits of this company and to give credit where credit is due.

The Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Company was organized April 9, 1878 under a special act of the legislature. The charter members at that time were: G. W. Ransom, William Watts, J. C. Jenkins, J. H. Watson, Cyrus Crisler, J. R. Kelly, N. Talbot, T. J. Booth, Stanton Aylor, Z. T. Kelly, J. Berkshire, M. Rouse, R. Conner and V. Finnell. The first president was J. A. Gaines and the first secretary was J. H. Walton. All these worthy men have passed on to the Great Beyond but their work still remains.

The company has been well managed during all these years and is still a force and power in the county. Its present officers and directors are as follows:

Hubert Conner, President; John L. Jones, Vice-President; Frank H. Rouse, Secretary; Peoples Deposit Bank, Treasurer, and L. R. Barlow, Agent. The directors in addition to the first three mentioned are: E. O. Rouse, W. B. Arnold, J. C. Bedinger, Hugh Stephens, O. K. Powers, H. J. Stephens, Joe W. Cleek, H. L. McGlasson, and Wallace Rice. The insurance in force as per December 31, is $4,417,205. All this is in Boone county. This amount includes about $300,000.00 on live stock. There are about 1700 policies in force. These policies cover all kinds of buildings and live stock.

Since 1928 there have been but six assessments, each assessment being 20c on each $100 of insurance. In 1933 the loss by fire was $12,670.43 and last year the loss paid to members was $10,270.51. The company is very economically managed. This is shown by the report of the State of Kentucky which indicates that the local company has been conducted at about half the cost in comparison with other similar mutual companies.

The Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Company is under strict supervision of the State Insurance Department which inspects most thoroughly every transaction of the company at stated intervals. This provides adequate protection and information to all the members. The last inspection of the company by the State Insurance Commission was made by Cotton & Eskew, Louisville, certified public accountants, on Nov. 7th, 1934. This report was very complimentary to the management of the company and highly praised its conduct of the business.

The Boone County Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Co., serves two main purposes. It affords insurance to the farmers and gives them this insurance at about half of the usual rate of other companies. This is especially important when it is considered that insurance of any kind on farm property is a difficult matter to obtain now at any premium. For these reasons this company should be praised for what it is doing for the Boone county farmers and should be liberally supported by all concerned.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR MRS. J. B. ARVIN

Mrs. J. B. Arvin was surprised with a party Saturday night in honor of her 57th birthday.

Those attending were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Hugh W. Bell and children, Hugh Jr., Leslie Arvin and Mildred Elizabeth, Mr. Logston and daughter Mary, Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Hicks and daughter, Elizabeth, all of Louisville, and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Kelly and daughter Betty Lou, and Mr. Elmer Kelly, of Burlington.

Mrs. Nettie Hughes is ill at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Renaker. Mrs. Hughes fell down the steps at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kirkpatrick Saturday. She is suffering from the shock however. No bones were broken. We hope she improves rapidly.

THE GAS MONEY

No group bears so heavy a burden of class taxation as do motorists.

In 1933, for example, refineries produced gasoline valued at $759,000,000. The federal government taxed this gas $181,000,000. The states taxed it $519,000,000, or a total of $700,000,000. As a result, the gasoline tax actually amounts to 100 per cent of the value of the product!

were spent for building and maintaining all the gas tax money were spent for building and maintaining roads. The motorist would be at least getting something for his money. But a constantly rising number of states are coming to regard the gas tax as an inexhaustible source of revenue for all government purposes. They divert the gas tax funds to pay for schools, for unemployment relief, for harbor maintenance, and a long list of similar undertakings, none of which directly benefit the motorist. It seems perfectly obvious that such undertakings should be paid for out of the general taxes, provided by all taxpayers, and not by added taxes on that group of citizens which owns and operates motor cars.

It is an encouraging sign that aggressive opposition is developing in all parts of the country against the diversion of the gas tax money from use on roads. Road work was the reason for the tax being inaugurated in the first place and motorists has a thoroughly justified complaint against his gas tax money being used for projects unrelated to road development—and every motorist should enthusiastically join in the movement to bring gas tax diversion to a halt.

ALL MONEY IS GOOD MONEY

We have just discovered that it is now legal to pay a bill of $100 with ten thousand pennies. We haven't yet discovered where to get the ten thousand pennies, but it is cheering to know that if we had them, we could use them to pay for anything that costs $100, if we knew of anything priced at $100 that we were willing to spend ten thousand pennies for.

David Lawrence pointed out the other day something that most folk had overlooked in the so-called "Thomas Amendment," enacted in April, 1933, which gave the President authority to cut the gold content of the dollar and to remonetize silver. That is a clause which says that "all coins and currencies" shall be legal tender for all debts, public and private. It used to be that you couldn't compel a man to take more than 25 cents in pennies, nor more than $10.00 in silver.

Now all that is changed. If the government offers us a million dollars in all in pennies we'd be obliged to take it. Likewise, we can think of circumstances under which it might be a real pleasure to pay off, say a mortgage on the old home or the last instalment on that last year's car, all in nickels, and put the other fellow to the trouble of counting them.

The only fault we can find with Thomas Amendment is that it didn't tell us how to get the pennies and dimes.

AN ECONOMIC TREASURE

The statisticians of the Bureau of Agriculture Economics and the Department of Labor have got it figured out that the average American farmer's income for 1934 was 20 per cent higher than for 1933. 8 per cent, that is to say $8 of every $100 of farm revenue, was benefit payments made by the Federal government. But according to these same statistics, the cost of the merchandise which the farmer has to buy averaged 6 per cent more in 1934 than in 1933, so that the net gain in farm income figures out at 12 per cent.

On the other hand, from other government sources come figures which indicate that the average net cash income of the people who have to buy farm products is down about 2 per cent below the income of a year ago.

We are somewhat reminded of the philosophy of the late Wilkins

Micawber whose sage advice to David Copperfield is one of the treasures, not alone of English literature, but of economic philosophy:

"Income, 20 pounds, outgo 19 pounds sixpence; result, happiness. Income, 20 pounds, outgo 20.06, result, misery," said Mr. Micawber.

It seems to us that an increasing number of town and city folks are finding themselves in Mr. Micawber's unfortunate predicament. The alphabetical combination which touches consumers more closely than all the rest of them is the familiar old H. C. L.—high cost of living.

A BAD SITUATION

One bad thing after another in Clay county disturbs the entire state. Heretofore one assassination after another has revealed a condition in that county that makes it stand out. Reports have been flying for some time that in that immediate section a ring of automobile thieves have been harbored. Giving due consideration for the fidelity of the public officials, criminals have been a predominating influence.

The Governor sent his adjutant general and his troops suddenly appeared and took over the reins of government. Within three days the state troops recovered and took out of the county twenty-nine stolen automobiles and it is intimated that there are yet a number to be discovered and taken over. The sheriff has an ample force to police the county; the county seat, Manchester, has a complete set of officials. The state troops were strangers in the community. If they could find this stolen property and take it over in three days, the question naturally arises, why didn't the county officials who live in the community and know the conditions perform their duty when the first stolen automobile landed in that county and continue until the last thief was in the clutches of the law and the property returned to the rightful owners? There is no doubt but that Clay county has many splendid citizens but their local officials are either incompetent, intimidated or in sympathy with the evil doers. The adjutant general of the state admonished them in no uncertain terms. There will be impeachments and removals if they don't wake up.

Editorial of the Week

THE LOCAL PAPER

(Normangee Star)

He was a prominent citizen of the community. He controlled quite a bit of property, and had financial power. He either could not spare the small sum per year to pay for the paper, or he was too big a man to fool with taking a paper like that. At any rate he did not take the home paper. If everyone in the community had been like him there could have been no home paper.

His wife gave a swell reception. The local paper gave a good account of the affair. He would have thought it awful if it had not been in the home paper. But if everybody had been like him there could have been no home paper.

His daughter got married. It too, was a swell affair, and the local paper gave a proper account of it. He felt that a man of his importance was deserving of such notice by the home paper. But if everybody had been like him there could have been no home paper.

He got seriously sick, and the paper told all about it. His friends looked to the paper to know how he was getting along, and when his condition got worse, they all knew about it through the paper. But if everybody had been like him there could have been no home paper.

He died and was given an appropriate funeral. Care was taken to see that the home paper got full information regarding the important events of his life, so as to give him the final "write up" that a man of his standing deserved. But if everybody had been like him there could have been no home paper.

The family requested several copies of that issue of the paper, and sent in a card of thanks. But they acted as if seriously aggrieved when asked to pay for the card of thanks and the extra paper too. And the minister who had charge of the funeral, a former resident of the place but now living elsewhere, wanted the paper to send him a copy containing an account of the funeral—free, of course.

Sometimes the newspaper wonders how "prominent" a man can be when year after year he will fail to have his name on the list of the home paper, but expect that the home paper shall show him the same consideration as it does a patron.

FIRESIDE THOUGHTS

It won't be long now until the children of the state will be contesting in the spelling bee which is conducted by the Courier-Journal. This is a fine piece of work for the Courier to do and undoubtedly has done much toward better spelling. In this connection, we are reminded of the following verse by Mrs. Robertson, of Louisville:

"He knows how governments are built—

He just detests a king!

Of economic principles

He has a smattering.

He classifies the birds and beasts,

He seems to know them well;

But sometimes in my secret soul

I'd rather he could spell!

During the present winter there were times when it would have been ideal to have engaged in some of the sports of "forty years ago"—such as sucking icicles, sticking a penny to frosted window panes, arguing over the advisability of sticking your tongue to a piece of cold iron, melting snow to a point where you could finally roll it up into a ball that would be about as solid as a good healthy brick and then nonchalantly sock some one with it. There was also the sport of getting up a sledding party, a lot of boys and girls crowding into a box bed fastened to a bob sled, covering up with plenty of horse blankets and robes and on our way. Boy, the fun one could have on two bits. Now, it wasn't cold, everyone wore long underwear in those days. Times have changed, haven't they? Oh well, it's okay.

In our reading this week we noticed a few statistics regarding Kentucky. Kentucky is indeed a wonderful state. We recall what an Eastern Kentucky judge once said and think it full of thought. He said that Kentucky was a land that God had done more for and man less than any other place of which he knew. The statistics we had in mind are as follows:

Rank in area, 36.
Capitol built, 1909.
Water area, 417 miles.
First governor, Shelby.
Length, 350 miles.
Normal schools, four.
Breadth, 175 miles.
Foreign born, 13 per cent.
Longest highway, No. 60, 524 miles.
Motto: "United We Stand, Divided We Fall."

Chief mineral products, coal, petroleum, and natural gas.
Name—from Wyandot Indian, Ken-tah-teh, meaning "Land of Tomorrow."
Lowest point, Fulton, 257 feet above sea level; highest point Harlan county, 4150 feet.
Great Wonder, Mammoth Cave.
Length of telephone wires, 1,000,000 miles approximately.

QUAIL ONCE WERE SHIPPED IN BARRELS

How many of you can remember when, with the opening of quail season, that Davidson Brothers of this city, before the existing game regulations were enacted, annually shipped from forty to fifty barrels of quail to the eastern markets. These quail were shipped in sugar barrels, 600 birds to the barrel, and sold for 25 cents each. They were generally trapped or caught in nets, birds mangled by shooting were not acceptable. Most of us can remember, also, the huge shipment left the Glasgow market for Chicago and the east. Literally thousands were shipped in barrels, hide on. But that too, is now a thing of the past.—Glasgow Times.

"ONE TIMER"
NAME OF PAPER

The most unusual name for a weekly paper has been given to one recently placed in circulation by Preston Smith, in Richmond. The first edition of this paper was placed before the citizens of Richmond in September and called "ONE TIMER," the name being assigned for the reason that Mr. Smith was uncertain whether it would survive the first issue.

However, the first edition proved so popular that a second edition was put out and from then on till the present, this paper has shown a remarkable increase in circulation.—Manchester Guardian.

WILD CAT IN CHICKEN HOUSE

Last week while the ground was covered with snow, "Doc" Houchins, living about three miles south of Leitchfield, went to his hen house to fasten up the chickens for the night.

Looking in at the door he saw what he first thought was a coon sitting on the floor. Closing the door, he found a club and re-entered the hen house to kill the varmint, but before he could close the door, the animal leaped at him and gashed his face and head with its claws.

Mr. Houchins has just moved from Edmonson county where wild cats are common and he says this was undoubtedly a wild cat.

The next morning an attempt was made to track down the cat, but after finding where it had been joined by another the tracks were lost.—Leitchfield Gazette.

PIKE COUNTY HEN
PRODUCES FREAK EGG

Pike county hens have been hit by the celebrity bug and are now autographing their eggs.

T. P. Harvey, Robinson Creek farmer, is the first man in Pike county to own a hen which puts out the inscribed product. Mr. Harvey left a small egg at The Pike County News office Tuesday. On the big end of the egg was the abbreviation "Ky." Mr. Harvey believes that the hen really meant to spell out the name of the state in full but, since the egg was of unusually small size, did not have space. The only thing the hen forgot was the period after the abbreviation. The egg was from a full grown white Leghorn.—Pike County News, Pikeville.

QUEER NAMES IN KENTUCKY

Members of the Interstate Commerce Commission thought they were pretty smart when they revealed that there actually was a town in Iowa named What Cheer, but they were put to shame when the Post Office Department went into action.

The Chicago & Northwestern R. R. applied for permission to abandon a railroad that runs to What Cheer, and that started people to thinking that there might be other towns scattered around the country that grow and thrive despite funny names. The Post Office Department, which has to know the name of every hamlet in America, crashed through in beautiful fashion.

After considerable research it was revealed that Arkansas and Kentucky were tied for the leadership. Arkansas's claim to this greatness rests large on this list of towns: Bee Branch, Evening Shade, Tomato, Chimes, Ink, Love, Romance, Sweet Home, Tag, Raspberry, Solo, Umpire, Smadhover, Fifty-six (which is in Stone county and is not to be confused with Forty-four, in ??? county), Zinc, Stamps, Okay, and Kingdom Come.

Ordinarily that "Okay" would give Arkansas the championship in a walk, but it was learned that Kentucky has one, too, which is spelled "O. K." Kentucky started off with a beautiful list of girls' names: Lizzie, Maud, Minnie, Nell, Pauline, Pearl, Sophia, Susie, Tillie and Virginia. It followed that up with this inspiring list: Awe, Decide, Dingus, Barefoot, Bee, Clone, Gus, Tippee, Good Luck, Jump and Sassafras. And believe it or not, there is a burg in Kentucky named Burg.

One of the funny town names listed in Kentucky is Barefoot which is in Barren county. The county also boasts of Buzzard Roost, a voting precinct, Hogjaw, another voting precinct, Shakerag, Dog Walk, Frogtown and Bucktown.

ARE YOU ONE OF THESE PEOPLE?

It has been said that about 30 per cent of people have impaired vision and yet for some reason or other do not wear glasses.

If you are one of these, we urge you not to go on abusing your eyes in this manner. It will prove costly in the end—when you reach old age, if not before.

Come in for an eye examination, and let us fit you with glasses—ground and adjusted to suit your individual needs—and then note how much better you feel. You cannot feel real well and ambitious with strained eyes. We make our own glasses and that means a very reasonable price to you—and genuine eye comfort, too.

County High School News

HAMILTON HIGH SCHOOL

This week Hamilton was beset by club activity with the Girls Reserve, the Hi-Y, the Glee Club and the Honor Club all having meetings. The Girls Reserve and the Hi-Y began work on the Bible Study program; the Glee Club arranged for a tenor solo chorus, which, although unusual, shows signs of promise; and the Senior class presented a short program for the Honor Club which was very good even if one does not consider the fact that we have but three seniors, and that they were kept from practicing because of illness. The English IV class will present a one-act play for the next Honor Club meeting.

The Hamilton Reserves played the Burlington Reserves in a preliminary to the Burlington-Morgan game Saturday night. The Reserve's game was exceedingly close, with both teams taking the lead several times. Hamilton led at the half 9-8, then Burlington pulled ahead 18-14 but the shooting of Moore put Hamilton into the lead, the final score being 27-22 for Hamilton. Moore was high point man with 15 markers.

Hamilton "Farmers" entertained Sparta on Friday Feb. 22. The "Farmers" beat Sparta by 5 points in an earlier game, so a close game is anticipated, as the "Farmers" will be endeavoring to end the season with a victory.

Last week at Hebron our girls were obliged to take a 27 to 17 defeat. As usual, their third quarter was best, when they scored eight points to opponents five.

TOBACCO AS FERTILIZER

An unusual number of inquiries are being received at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington regarding the value of low-grade tobacco and tobacco stalks for fertilizer.

For top-dressing grass and grain, tobacco refuse should not be applied until just before or about the time spring growth begins. It is not advisable to use tobacco leaf, stalks or stems as a fertilizer for tobacco because of the danger of transmitting disease.

The College of Agriculture at Lexington will send, upon request, a circular on the use of tobacco stalks and low-grade leaf as fertilizer. In most cases they should be supplemented with superphosphate to make a balanced fertilizer.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for their foster daughter could not shelter her childhood from the hatred of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affair ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they went joyfully to a baseball game. A ball hit into the bleachers, struck Penelope on the nose and the neurotic Mrs. Gatlin removed her from the hospital to which her former husband had hurried her. Mrs. Gatlin retired from business, while Penelope all his money was used to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a rising young psychiatrist, was preceded by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality, in part responsible. McNamara did not think she was a responsible person and obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Even Lanny, the doctor's faithful nurse, who was over to her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's clear explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny visited her and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter, which a confederate stole from her handbag outside the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV—Nance escaped, although shot, by swimming out to a speed-boat manned by friends and went to Lanny's apartment. Lanny told Chief McNamara, who ordered her to bring Nance to his apartment and showed for Doctor Burt.

CHAPTER V—One of the men in the boat on which Nance escaped, the two of them ex-convicts, the other a bootlegger—had been wounded and they went to Burt's office, where McNamara found them. The bootlegger he let go and he took the others to his home, ordering the uninjured one to care for Nance and his pal. From them he learned that Nance's real name was Penelope Gatlin, Detective Sergeant Flynn and Angellotti, seeking the reward offered for Nance's apprehension, went to Lanny's apartment in search of Nance. Looking over her San Quentin cell, McNamara found a blank check on a San Jose bank.

CHAPTER VI—From the San Jose banker McNamara learned that the girl he knew as Nance Belden was Penelope Gatlin, heiress to $750,000. The banker ordered Detective Sergeant Flynn and Angellotti to "lay off" Lanny, whom they suspected of harboring Nance. When he went to Doctor Burt's house to treat her gunshot wound, Nance and the two men who helped her escape saw them first and fled.

CHAPTER VI

"Do you happen to have an account in the name of Penelope Gatlin?" Chief McNamara asked the banker.

"Both a trust account and a checking account, Chief. We had her father's account for years before he was unfortunately killed in an automobile accident some eight years ago. We had the account of his divorced wife for quite a while, too, but she has closed that."

"Do you know where she lives at present?"

"I do not." He was interested. "But I remember her quite well—a very beautiful woman. Her first husband was a splendid chap—retail shoe dealer in this city, and very prosperous. He and his wife had a row and she divorced him and got the child. Gatlin was permitted by the court to have the child on two Sunday afternoons a month, and one day he took her to a ball game and they sat in the bleachers. A long hard ball flew into the bleachers and flattened the little girl's nose; Gatlin rushed the unconscious child to a hospital and his ex-wife came and took her home before anything but emergency treatment could be given. Gatlin suspected she was going to try to cure that ruined nose by prayer—so he kidnapped the child, was caught, arrested, and did sixty days in the county jail."

"While he was in jail Mrs. Gatlin fled to Europe with the little girl, and Gatlin was desolated. Subsequently Gatlin sold out his business, made most of his estate liquid and established a trust with us in favor of himself and his daughter. He had made a settlement with Mrs. Gatlin."

"When his wife fled to Europe with the child, Gatlin ceased to deposit the monthly check to her credit, in the belief that she'd write to know why. She didn't, but in some other manner he located her, and started for Europe with the intention of stealing the little girl from her. On the way to the station, an automobile hit the taxi he was in and Gatlin was killed."

"Did he leave a will?"

"He did. His daughter was his sole beneficiary. We were the executors and probated it. There was the ten thousand dollar letter of credit he had purchased just before starting on his fatal trip, and half a dozen pieces of city realty, which has since increased enormously in value. We advertised for the heir but received no answer, the will was closed and we handled as trustee."

"How do you know Mrs. Gatlin has become Mrs. Merton?"

"She had leased the house Gatlin gave her in the divorce settlement, and about two years ago, when the lease expired and the old tenants departed, she came down here to have the place renovated and secure a new tenant. It was only then that she heard of Gatlin's death. She came to this bank, with her husband, making inquiries about Gatlin's estate, and tried hard to get control of it, but she was out of luck. That's how we located the heir."

"What were the conditions of the trust?"

"The income was to be permitted to accumulate and be reinvested and the child was to have two hundred and fifty dollars a month until her eighteenth birthday, when the total income from the trust was to be turned over to her. She can never touch the principal, however, although Gatlin did provide that she might have up to ten thousand dollars of it at any one time if, in the judgment of the trustee, the emergency requiring such withdrawal was deemed good and sufficient. Gatlin had faith that the real estate, if held long enough, would appreciate tremendously—and it has. The trust is now worth three-quarters of a million and the income is close to twenty thousand a year."

"You say Penelope Gatlin has a checking account also?"

"Yes. We deposit the income from the trust semi-annually, in her account."

"Has she ever asked for an emergency withdrawal of ten thousand dollars?"

"No."

"Is her checking account active?"

"Not very. The cashier was speaking to me about it less than two weeks ago. She draws checks sporadically. Her checking account has interested us considerably for the past two years, because her monthly statement and dead checks have all been returned by the post office. With the exception of about a dozen checks made out to local merchants and probably in payment of her bills, Miss Gatlin's checks have all been in favor of one Ella Cates, of San Francisco. We traced the Cates woman down through the indorsements on the checks, but she stated she didn't know Miss Gatlin's address; that Miss Gatlin visited her occasionally, wrote out checks and asked her to cash them for her at the local grocery store or drug store. These people stated that Ella Cates never received the money at once, but that they collected the checks for her and then gave her the money. I don't like the looks of this, Chief."

"I'll soon find out all about it," McNamara promised. "And I know where Penelope Gatlin is—only I'm not going to tell you now. Would you mind letting me look over her old bank statements and the dead checks?"

The banker readily granted him the privilege, and McNamara went through the checks carefully, noting those drawn in favor of Ella Cates. The last one drawn was in favor of a man named Hugh P. Taylor, in sum of five thousand dollars, and deposited by him to the credit of his account in the Federal Trust company of San Francisco.

"I have all the information I want, with this exception," He drew forth one of the rogue's gallery photographs made at the central station by the police photographer. "Is that Penelope Gatlin?"

"That's the girl, Chief. Is she in trouble with the police?"

Dan McNamara laughed. "Not at all. She's the sweetest little thing on earth. The only trouble she's been in is that she's been lost. Amnesia. Can't remember who she is or anything about her past life. Has several aliases she uses at will."

"How interesting—and how sad."

"Neither interesting nor sad—to me. We handle lots of cases like this. They're curable. You'll be good enough to regard this interview as strictly confidential, of course. It would be very embarrassing for the girl if news of her unfortunate predicament should leak out, for, of course, after her mind has been restored to its normal functions, she will have no memory of the period in which she has been lost. I know a doctor that will fix her up in jig time."

"And after he's done that," the banker suggested, "have a plastic surgeon fix up her nose. She used to be as lovely as a violet."

"Sorry about the nose," McNamara lied, "but I've had the best plastic surgeons in town examine it and there's no hope." He held out his hand. "Thanks for your courtesy. You've been a great help. Meanwhile, don't send out any more of those bank statements and dead checks. Mum's the word."

Back in San Francisco, McNamara went directly to the city prison and looked over the blotter to see what strange fish his men had brought in during his absence.

He found a woman, an old offender, booked for drunkenness, and ordered her sent to his office. When she arrived he locked the door, and fingerprinted her on the appropriate card, after which he lectured her on the error of her ways. Then he went upstairs to the identification bureau and asked the filing clerk to have pointed out to him the filing cabinets containing criminal records for the years 1914-15 and 1916.

He was searching for a face that was photographed on his remarkable memory, and at last he found it. It was that of a young woman, black-haired and with a "saddle" nose, but not quite so badly deformed as Nance Belden's nor did the contour of the face resemble Nance Belden's. However, since the original of that photograph had, to the chief's knowledge, been dead six months, he decided it would do. He slipped this record into his breast pocket and went back to his office. Here he carefully removed the three photographs from the card to which they were pasted in a row across the top. Below the row of photographs appeared the typewritten criminal history of the subject and in appropriate spaces on the reverse of the card appeared the subject's fingerprints.

McNamara picked up the fresh card, upon the reverse of which he had fingerprinted the woman who at times drank too much. He placed this card in the typewriter of his secretary, who had gone for the day, and carefully filled it in with Nance Belden's criminal record. Then he pasted over the top of this record the three photographs of the dead woman he had taken from the old files, carefully burned all the evidence of the substitution, went upstairs and handed the record to the clerk, who replaced it in the files.

Promptly at six-thirty a knock sounded on his door, and to his hearty "come," Messrs. P. Flynn and A. Angellotti entered.

"I sent for you two boys to tell you in no uncertain terms to lay off Miss Rebecca Lanning," the chief began. "However, I owe it to you to tell you why. Miss Lanning is a friend of mine of long standing, and I know she is a worthy and dependable woman and absolutely truthful. She isn't interested in this girl, Nance Belden. It happened this way. I regarded that girl as a nut, see—and I haven't any confidence in the bone that does our medico-legal work. So I took Nance up to see Dr. Stephen Burt. Miss Lanning, is his nurse. She was very kind to the girl—very understanding—and the Belden brat got stuck on her. She has an affection complex, understand."

Flynn and Angellotti had had to listen, many a time and oft, to Dan McNamara's dissertations on complexes in prisoners. They nodded languidly now.

"Apparently," the chief continued, "Nance hasn't any friends. The poor lonely kid remembered Miss Lanning, so she wrote and asked her to visit her in the pen—and now the warden swears she smuggled out of San Quentin a letter with Nance's plan of escape. Well, maybe she did, but if she did, Miss Lanning didn't know it."

"Now, when the Belden girl came to Miss Lanning's home she realized she couldn't harbor her. Within a minute after the girl entered, Miss Lanning had me on the phone."

"I've just heard a thump out in the hall," Flynn said. "I think the girl's fainting. Better let me put her to bed, Chief, and have Doctor Burt come over to bandage her wound; then the ambulance can call for her in the morning."

"I thought that was a good idea. When she came back Nance was just going out of the door. Miss Lanning tried to stop her, but her boy friends were still waiting, and grabbed her and beat it. The trouble was that Miss Lanning thought the girl was unconscious but Nance heard her and beat it. Now it's up to you two to find her."

"How long have you known Miss Lanning?"

"Quite a while," McNamara lied. "Well, even if she is a friend of yours, Chief, she's no clinging vine."

"Well, leave her alone from now on and don't waste your time watching her house. The Belden devil won't come back there again. Another thing. We have criminals loose in our midst who are more important than a poor out of a girl that only swiped a mess of silk stockings, so don't get excited and waste much time. That will be all, boys."

Outside of Chief McNamara's office door, Detective Sergeants Flynn and Angellotti looked at each other meaningfully.

"He's up to his old tricks, Amadeo."

"Always feeling sorry for the underdog, Pat. He makes me sick."

"I'll bet a month's salary he knows where the Belden girl is this minute."

"I'm not quitting such a hot scent, Pat."

"Well, just spit that two hundred and fifty-dollar reward—and see how the chief likes it. That old Lanny girl warned us to step softly or she'd have us broke, didn't she? Well, where does she get her drag with the old man?"

A. Angellotti jumped to the natural conclusion of his kind. "She's got something on him, I suppose."

"Sure she has. She knows he knows where she's hid the body."

"We've got to see the Belden girl's photograph and thumb prints and Bertillon measurements. They're in the upper office."

They went up to the identification bureau, called for the record of Nance Belden and studied it for a couple of minutes.

"I'd recognize that dame now if she was burned to ashes," Thus Angellotti.

Flynn drew his partner into a corner. "The girl was wounded. We know that from the guard that shot her and we're sure of it after looking at the blood in that speedboat."

"If she'd bled that much all by herself she'd never have gotten ashore under her own power, Pat. I'm inclined to think one of the crew got hit, too."

"There's hope for the dogoes yet, my boy. You're right. It stands to reason some doctor fixed them up. Now, then, what doctor?"

"Dr. Stephen Burt," Angellotti decided.

"It stands to reason that if this Doctor Burt dressed their wounds last night he'll call on his patients every day until they're out of danger. If we catch him at his dirty work there ought to be a little something in this on the side, Amadeo."

"I'd Recognize That Dame Now if She Was Burned to Ashes." Thus Angellotti.

P. Flynn thought that a thousand each would be a very modest sum to charge Stephen Burt for their silence—very modest.

An hour later they pulled up in front of Stephen's house, and behind a coupe parked at the curb. Flynn, circling around it, noticed a red cross on the radiator.

They circled the block and returned, to park at the lower edge of the block. At a quarter past eight they saw Stephen come out, bag in hand, enter his coupe, and drive away. So they followed him and came, in time, to Dan McNamara's house, into which they saw him enter, as they rolled slowly past.

"He had a latch key. He didn't ring the bell. An' no lights in the front of the house," Angellotti cried excitedly. "Drive back, Pat, and I'll get the number."

"That house," Flynn informed him dramatically, "is the habitat of His Royal Highness, Daniel McNamara, Chief of Police of San Francisco. I always knew he was a fox, but I never suspected he was fool enough to hide an escaped convict in his own house."

Angellotti was excited, but like all smart Italians he was not impulsive except when he was in a fight, or angry. "This pinch will keep several nights, because some of these birds ain't in no condition to be moved. This situation is ticklish an' requires calm an' mature deliberation."

Loan Policy

THE right kind of a bank is just as anxious to make good loans as the manufacturer, merchant or farmer is to sell his products.

This Bank welcomes every opportunity to make sound loans to its depositors whether the amounts required be large or small.

The point that many would-be-borrowers overlook, however, is that the money a bank lends is not the bank's nor the banker's—it is the depositors' money.

Hence, a bank must investigate the guarantees given by the borrower very carefully.

HEBRON MAN

ARRESTED AS A SUSPECT IN KENTUCKY TAVERN THEFT

Two more men suspected of being participants in a roadhouse robbery Wednesday night in Brent, Ky., were arrested by Covington detectives which brought to five the number of suspects charged with the crime.

One of the men apprehended was found in a clothes closet after he had attempted to conceal himself by hanging from a rack so that his feet and body could not be seen by the officers.

John Stevens, 30 years old, tool worker, Hebron, Ky., was the suspect who did not evade the keen eyes of the officers. He was arrested at his home on a charge of grand larceny.

Stevens was arrested by Sheriff W. B. Cotton, Boone County Deputy Sheriff Frank Walton, and Campbell County Policemen Harry Rossenbogen, Robert Livingston, and Edward Offenbacher, and Covington Detectives Leroy Hall and Albert Seiter.

TRI-STATE CLOSED FOR YEAR, FEB. 15

V. W. Gaines, who has been connected with the Tri-State Tobacco Warehouse, Covington, advised the Recorder that this tobacco company closed for the season on Friday, February 15. He states that the Tri-State had a good season from all standpoints. The Tri-State and one other tobacco company in Louisville were the only ones in the state that sold more tobacco this season than last year. Mr. Gaines says that this company wishes to thank all their customers for their patronage and hopes to see them back next year.

BURLINGTON BOY HAS FINE ARTICLE IN COURIER-JOURNAL

In a recent issue of the Louisville Courier-Journal appeared a column article on the "Need For Criminal Law Reform" by Robert Hensley, local Burlington boy who is attending law school in the State University. The article is full of thought and worthy of reprinting in the Recorder. However, its length is such that lack of space will not permit its publication at the present time. We hope to publish the article as the earliest opportunity.

We read the article with interest and consider it a fine example of what the University of Kentucky Law School is doing in the training of law students there. This article was sent to the Courier-Journal at the suggestion of the law professor in the department of Criminal Practice in order that the reading public may have some idea of the work that the law students are doing in Lexington. It is quite an honor to Mr. Hensley to be assigned for such a duty and we congratulate him for so fine an exposition of this particular subject.

CLOSING ON MARCH 2—FARMERS EXPECTED TO SIGN CONTRACTS

The AAA Corn-Hog sign-up campaign will close in Boone county March 2nd according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent, and John E. Crigler, Secretary. The campaign progressed rapidly the past week with more than sixty farmers both new and old signing applications for contracts, approximately 200 farmers are expected to sign contracts before the close of the campaign. Meetings were held the past week at Florence, Hamilton, Grant, Petersburg and Verona. Meetings this week will be held at New Haven, Wal'on, Hebron and Burlington.

The election of the permanent Community Committee will begin the first of next week. Community elections will be held in the seven districts set up according to location and number of contracts. A Chairman, Vice Chairman, and a third Committeeman will be elected in each district. All producers signing applications for contracts by the time of the Community elections are eligible to vote or hold immediately.

The 1935 County Board of Directors and County Control Committee will be organized next Monday week, March 11th. The Community Committees will begin appraising corn yields on the following day.

The corn-hog program this year will be completed rapidly as possible and contracts forwarded to Washington. Producers signing the contracts will soon after contracts are received at Washington, receive first payment of $7.50 per head for hogs reduced and 15 cents per bushel for corn reduced. A similar payment of $7.50 per head on hogs and 20 cents per bushel on corn yield will be received at a later date.

YOUTH COUNCIL

TO BE HELD IN FLORENCE

Florence, Ky., made to live in the minds and hearts of countless numbers through Prof. John Uri Lloyd's book "Stringtown on the Pike," seeks further claim to immortality. On February 26, at 7:30 p. m., there will be called a meeting designated as "A Youth Council," the purpose of which is to bring the young people of Kenton and Boone counties into conference with their adults for a consideration of the strength and weakness of our social order as it pertains to them.

Believing there is a solution of the present problem and that the church is in a key position to lead in the search of it, they are coming together unhampered by convention or creed to dispassionately discuss ways and means of overcoming the sterility that has possessed most churches and making of them agencies of a virile Christianity.

Representing adult thought, the Rev. H. C. Runyan will speak on "What Has the Religion of Jesus to Offer the People of Our Community?" The Rev. J. R. Savage will take for his topic, "The Church as a Means of Vitalizing the Christian Ideal." W. E. Hutton of the Covington Y. M. C. A. will discuss "The Individual's Responsibility in the Social Gospel."

There will follow a discussion by youth of the following topics: "What Has Youth to Offer Christ Today?" "A Young Man's Evaluation of the Church Today." "A Modern Youth Looks to Jesus." "What Price Must Modern Youth Pay for Following Jesus?" and "Can I Make a Living and Still Maintain the Ideals of Jesus?" The public is invited.

FINE QUILTING

BEING DONE BY THE SOPHIA WEBSTER LLOYD MEMORIAL SOCIETY

The Sophia Webster Lloyd Memorial Society entertains with a quilting party each Thursday afternoon and all day first Saturday in each month.

The old schoolmates and their friends are patching and quilting three quilts for Prof. John Uri Lloyd for his children.

Mrs. Fannie Tanner Clutterbuck is chairman of the Quilt Committee, and pays high tribute to the skill and workmanship for the needlewomen of Florence. Quilt making is a fine art and within the last few years has been revived, as there is scarcely a home in Florence that is without quilting frames, and the rivalry in making beautiful quilts is considered a fine pastime.

Mr. Ezra O. Rouse presented to the society a set of quilting frames made by his hands and from wood taken from the old Hopeful church built in 1837.

Names of some of the quilters and friends are Mrs. R. L. Pearson, president; Mrs. Fannie Clutterbuck, chairman; Mrs. Sally Thompson, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Georgia Myers, Mrs. Grace Castleman, Mrs. Florence Riggs, Mrs. Jennie Lewis, Mrs. Annie Stephens, Mrs. Nettie Collins, Mrs. Ezra O. Rouse, Mrs. T. McCrandy, Mrs. Annie Beeman, Mrs. Jennie Crisler, Mrs. Annie Southern, Mrs. Wm. Corey, Mrs. Annie Pierce, Mrs. Frank Bauer, Mrs. Thos. ### LOCAL MAN

BADLY BURNED WALLACE ACRA NOT EXPECTED TO SURVIVE HIS INJURIES

A sad accident occurred last week when Wallace Acra, Sanders Drive, Florence, Ky., was severely burned at his home there. Mr. Acra, who is the son of Arch Acra, attempted to start a fire in the furnace by using a small quantity of gasoline. The gasoline exploded and sprayed Mr. Acra, setting his clothing on fire. He unthoughtfully broke away from his brother, Edgar, and ran which made matters worse. He was badly burned on his arms and the lower part of his body. The injured man was immediately rushed to the St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, Ky., where he was given all the treatment possible. However, he was so badly burned that there is much doubt that he will recover. His arm was so badly burned that it is thought amputation will be necessary even if he recovers. He may recover if he succeeds in passing the crisis which is expected to come today (Tuesday) although the doctors do not hold out much hope for his recovery.

FOR TRUCK CROP MARKETING BEING CONSIDERED BY BOONE COUNTY FARMERS

Truck crop growers of the Cincinnati marketing area are completing plans for the formation of a cooperative truck crops marketing association in Cincinnati. The new association will begin business about May 1st. Growers going into the organization will pay an organization fee of $1.00 per acre for fruit and more extensive crops $2.00 per acre for beans, potatoes, and the more intensive crops. Ten per cent selling charge will be made to take care of all expenses after the organization is set up. Growers agree to sell all truck crops sold in greater Cincinnati through the organization.

Plans for such an organization have been under way for more than a year. Representatives of the sign-up organization explained the program to the growers at the regular meeting of the Farmers Alliance held in Hebron last Saturday night. Plans for the organization were received by those present with considerable interest.

FARM COSTS ON THE SPOT

IN 4-H CONTEST OFFERING $7,500 HARVESTER PRIZES

FARM COSTS AND LEAKS of the 1935-36 year will be put on the spot by 4-H club members of the nation and in addition to the fun of doing it they have a chance to earn some wonderful prizes.

The contest is a renewal of one widely participated in the past year in which winners of merchandise and purchase certificates prizes given by the International Harvester Company aggregating at least $7,500 are soon to be announced by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club, which conducts it.

Officially accepted by club leaders for this state, the contest is open to every enrolled boy or girl, and offers county, state, sectional and national prizes on the same basis as the previous contest except that winners of more than one prize must surrender the lower ones to an alternate.

The record books must be opened any time between Jan. 1 and March 1 and cover the 12 consecutive months following. Contestants may use any record book providing an opening and closing inventory record of money expended and received, cost of principal crops, etc., and balance sheet.

Contestants are encouraged to enlist the aid of leaders, parents and others in keeping the record, but it must be in the contestants own hand. It is hoped thus to spread the value of cost accounting which is of increasing consequence in meeting federal production control requirements, obtaining credit, and making tax returns.

The records, which may be kept of the home farm or a neighbor's, are to be confidential and returned after judging to the club member. Detailed rules may be obtained of the county Agricultural Agent.

EVERETT L. DIX VISITS BURLINGTON LAST SUNDAY WAS FIRST PRINCIPAL HERE

Everett L. Dix, Assistant Director of the Eastern Area of the U. S. Red Cross was an unexpected visitor in Burlington last Sunday. Mr. Dix was the first principal of the Boone County High School and served in that capacity here for four years about twenty-one years ago. His many friends here were glad to see him looking so well and appreciate his continued interest in the old town. His time was limited and for that reason he stated he could not meet all his old friends. He said he wished he could stay long enough to renew his friendship with the three or four hundred people who lived here when he served as principal of schools. Mr. Dix has succeeded in the world of achievement and occupies a very important position in the U. S. Red Cross. His many friends hope he will return at a time when he can stay longer. This was his first visit since he left over twenty years ago.

A. A. Neagle of Green county spread 140 tons of marl on his crop land during the winter.

TO BE HELD BY DEMOCRATS TO NOMINATE STATE OFFICERS

On Tuesday the Democratic factions in the House of Representatives united to complete legislative approval of the administration proposal for a "double" primary to nominate state officers.

The first primary will coincide with the primary for members of the Legislature on the first Saturday in August. The two high men in the races for major offices will engage in a "run-off" primary the first Saturday in September, if no candidate in these races obtains a clear majority of all the ballots cast.

The vote of the House passing the bill was 69 to 20. The Senate had approved the bill previously. The bill will be sent to Gov. Laffoon for his signature on Wednesday. His approval is a foregone certainty.

The passage of the compulsory primary bill puts a legislative veto on the call of the Democratic State Central Executive Committee for a nominating convention to meet at Lexington, May 14. A love feast of factional leaders preceded the final vote, with spokesmen for both sides urging the party to unite behind the nominee, who ever he might be.

OFFICERS

OF CONSOLIDATED TELEPHONE CO. VISIT LOCAL COMPANY IN FLORENCE

C. T. Dehove and Marshall V. Robb, president and vice-president of the Consolidated Telephone Co., were in conference the entire day of Saturday Feb. 23, with general manager C. O. Hennessy in the latter's office in Florence. The main subjects discussed were "How to serve the people of Boone county better," a detailed discussion of the "Bring 'Em Back Campaign" now being put on by the employees to regain old subscribers and get new ones which at present is progressing very nicely. The officers of the company are keenly interested in rendering good service and in making this one of the best independent companies anywhere.

They have faith in the future of Boone county and appreciate the many good patrons they now serve. Public relations are very good and every effort will be made to maintain these relations at all times. Mr. Dehove and Mr. Robb will visit us frequently and aid in the betterment of the service and efficiency in operation, both being men of long experience in the operation of utilities.

ELSMERE MEN

HURT BY HIT-SKIP DRIVER—TWO TRUCKMEN LEFT LYING IN ROAD

Northern Kentucky police were on the lookout Saturday morning for a dark green automobile with a headlight and a door handle missing.

The car became the object of a police search after two Elsmere, Ky., men were injured by a hit-skip driver Friday night on the Dixie Highway at Kyles lane.

Raymond Dobell, 30, 432 Buckner street, Elsmere, driver of a truck for the Louis Hellman Company, Cincinnati furniture dealers, and Arthur Cramer, 28, 605 Bedding avenue, Elsmere, were in the St. Elizabeth Hospital Saturday morning as a result of the crash. Dobell has a compound fracture of the left leg, while Cramer has a fractured left leg and lacerations of the scalp. Both were bruised and cut on the body.

Dobell and Cramer told Chief George Langley of the Kenton co., police that they got out of their truck to see if a lantern on the rear was burning when they were run down by the hit-skip driver. The crash tore one of the headlights and a door handle from the car.

It is said by the sportsmen of Boone county that Joe Huey has the best pack of fox hounds in Northern Kentucky. He is willing to stake them against all comers.

Joe Huey purchased a Crosley Radio from Stanley Easton, Friday.

NO LOTTERIES

Many well-meaning people still continue to advocate both National and State lotteries to raise funds for unemployed relief. Their argument is that, since most of us are born gamblers, and are willing to take chances "behind doors" if we cannot do so openly, it would do well to legalize what we cannot prevent; and let the government, instead of the gambling kings, take the profits.

The argument may be good as far as it goes. But it doesn't go far enough. It should be admitted that gambling is wrong. It would be equally wrong if the government should countenance it. And two wrongs never yet made a right.

The remedy for the gambling evil is not to have the government sanction it, but have officials, both State and National, wage active war against it. There has been far too much closing of official eyes at gambling in this country. This is the reason it has assumed the proportion it has. It is illegal and unlawful, and any attempt to cloak the practice in governmental vestments is not going to make it any more virtuous.

LOCK YOUR CAR

Do you lock your car when you leave it parked on the street or in your garage? If you do not, you are guilty of a negligence that is nearly criminal. Of course, if an experienced thief goes after your car, he'll get it whether it is locked or not, but thousands of boys would never steal a car if all cars were locked. Maybe they want to take a joy ride—find a car unlocked, maybe the key is in the ignition, all ready to go. It's too easy to resist. Keep your car locked and your neighbor's boy honest.

HARD TIMES MORALE

A high school student whose work and attendance were formerly good became irregular in attendance and careless about his studies. The principal finally called him and wanted to know about it.

The boy looked him in the eye resentfully and asked: "How would you like to go to school in clothes like mine, with everybody looking you over?" His family, once well off, had been reduced to poverty by the depression.

The principal's reply surprised the lad. "As a matter of fact," he said quietly, "I came to school in clothes that are not much better than yours. You and I, and thousands of others, are in the same boat, my boy. We have yet a long way to row, and many will pull to the shore in clothes far shabbier than yours and mine."

Then he went ahead and discussed his own clothing, item by item, telling what he paid for everything, how long he had worn it, what pains he took to get the utmost use out of it. And he did it entirely without shame or self-pity. Business conditions, he explained, had made this sort of thing necessary.

The boy went back to his class feeling better, and since then has been holding his head up and doing good work.

A similar frank and honest recognition of facts has saved the self-respect of millions. It isn't so hard, when you only have to endure what many others of your kind are enduring.

AN HONOR CODE

Many interesting stories are told of the honor code at Washington and Lee University, where it was established by General Robert E. Lee when he became president of the school in 1867.

No supervision of students is exercised during examinations, yet cheating is virtually unknown. Nothing is locked up about the institution; books, articles of clothing and all sorts of property are left anywhere with the assurance that they will not be disturbed.

Several students help to pay their expenses by selling sandwiches, candy, apples and the like, but the sales are made without the presence of clerks. The articles for sale are displayed with price cards and customers help themselves, placing their money in the cash box. During one football game more than $125 worth ofapel buttons were thus bought and paid for without the supervision of anyone, except that when the box was filled with bills a passing professor placed a weight on them to keep them from blowing away.

New students are thoroughly instructed in the requirements of the honor code and impressed with the importance of rigidly observing it, because, it is explained, this school is built around tradition is that "it's a pleasure to be a gentleman."

A SHAMEFUL RECORD

The year 1934 produced the unenviable record of 36,000 deaths in this country by reason of automobile accidents. This was a 16 per cent increase over the previous year, shameful enough in itself.

One person is now killed every fifteen minutes in the United States by automobile accident. This is an appalling record. It constitutes a proof of our own recklessness and an indictment of law enforcement agencies which have to do with the movement of traffic.

We may admit the seriousness of the situation. We may pass resolutions demanding that this waste-fulness of human life be halted. But as Mark Twain once remarked about the weather: "We talk of it a lot, but never do anything about it."

PENSIONS VS. BUSINESS

Why retard American business that lay the golden egg from which taxes must come and which can only adequately take up the slack of employment, just to change the method of supporting the aged? Why, in addition to the multitudinous taxes, put the government into various kinds of business that cannot be other than in competition with business men? Why enact non-contributory old age pensions, in addition to contributory forms, if it will take the bread from the millions of self-supporters who depend on their savings invested through savings banks, co-operative institutions, insurance companies and public utility, industrial and transportation companies, that pay but fractions of dividends or none at all under the present confused state of affairs; but who do pay for the support of the government.

Every additional burden put on business reduces its ability to get out of the red into the black, and by so much causes men and women to lose their jobs. And the near-poor dependents on savings from which few dividends come, draw near the fatal line when they, too, must be supported.

Editorial of the Week

GOOD ADVICE TO CHILDREN
(Oakland, Calif. Tribune)

Up in Oregon the sheriff of one of the major counties has had issued cards for distribution among the children. They carry point in any state and it may be recommended that attention of children hereabouts be called to the following copy:

1—Don't ever ride with strangers.
2—Always walk on the left hand side of the road, and get clear off the road when you meet an automobile. Give them plenty of room.
3—Don't ever cross a road or highway until you are sure there are no cars coming from either direction.

4—Don't attempt to cross an intersection until you are certain that there is plenty of time.

5—If you see an accident go for help quickly.

6—Keep clear of the wreck. Let grown people give aid to the injured.

While the sheriff is doing this good work in the interest of the smaller citizens, the Oregonian of Portland suggests that he might get out another card directed to adults and that it reads:

1—Don't ever pick up strangers.
2—Always drive on the right hand side of the road, and when you meet a pedestrian give him plenty of room.

3—Maintain a look-out for persons crossing the road.

4—Have your car under control

when entering an intersection, and recognize the right of pedestrians to cross ahead of you.

5—If you see an accident, offer help.

6—If you cannot be helpful, leave the wreck. Don't block the highway out of curiosity.

With one or two exceptions the points in each apply to the grown-ups as well as the children. It will hurt no one to read what the Oregon sheriff has to say, and what the Oregonian thinks he might add.

OUR CANDIDATES

(Since it seems likely that our nominee for governor will be selected in a primary, the Recorder is submitting a brief sketch of the record of each candidate. We thought this might be of some interest to the voters who will be called upon to make the decision. We will continue these biographies until all active candidates are included.—Editor.)

THOMAS S. RHEA

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 27.—Thomas S. Rhea of Russellville, chairman of the State Highway Commission and a prominent candidate for the Democratic nomination as Governor at the Lexington convention next May, has been a prominent figure in Kentucky politics for many years.

More of an organizer than a stump speaker, Rhea, in his quiet and unassuming manner, has been a veteran of many political campaigns in Kentucky and is generally credited with having organized the 1934 legislature for Governor Ruby Laffoon. "The Sage of Russellville," as Rhea is often referred to, was a staunch supporter of the candidacy of President Roosevelt in 1932 and helped line up the Kentucky delegation behind Roosevelt at the Chicago nominating convention, to which he was a delegate.

Rhea was born in Russellville on December 29, 1871. He married Miss Lillian Clark on January 25th, 1916. He was educated in the Russellville public schools and at Bethel College.

In 1905 Rhea was elected sheriff of Logan county and in 1911 he was elected state treasurer. He was appointed a member of the Highway Commission from the Third district in 1932 and in January of this year succeeded Ben Johnson as chairman.

Tom Rhea Highway, which runs through Logan county, Simpson, Allen, Monroe and Cumberland counties, was named in honor of Rhea. Republican officials of Monroe and Cumberland counties are credited with having selected the name because, they said, Rhea had done more for those counties "in one year than all other officials had done in more than 100 years."

NAT B. SEWELL

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 27.—Nat B. Sewell, state inspector and examiner and announced candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination this year is one of the most widely publicized public officials. His official reports made at the rate of one every other day, have kept his name in the state press almost continuously since he assumed office in 1932 under an appointment from Gov. Ruby Laffoon.

Sewell is 56 years old. He was born in Laurel county, where he still lives. He attended Sue Bennett Memorial College at London, National Normal University and Yale University. At different times he has been a farmer, a school teacher, a newspaper reporter, a coal mine operator, a coal digger and a lawyer. He is a widower.

Sewell was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention that nominated Woodrow Wilson in 1932. He formerly was a member of the Workmen's Compensation Board. His first appointment as inspector and examiner came from Governor A. O. Stanley. Following the Stanley administration, Sewell held no public office until his appointment by Gov. Laffoon. He successfully sought election as congressman from the old eleventh district.

Sewell is a member of the Christian church and the Odd-Fellows. Six feet tall, sturdily-built and gray haired, he is one of the most impressive looking officials in the Capitol.

KENTUCKY'S
HEALTH IN 1934

The preliminary figures, just issued by the Vital Statistics Bureau of the State Department of Health, show an appreciable rise both in the gross death rate in Kentucky in 1934 and in the death rates of many of the most important diseases. At the time this tabulation was made, 29,790 death certificates had been recorded, giving a rate of 11.3 per 1,000 population. This rate will, no doubt, be somewhat raised by delayed certificates, through the increase will, it may be reasonably assumed, be comparatively slight. In 1933, deaths recorded aggregated 28,528, with a rate of 10.8 per 1,000 population.

"A decided increase," said J. F. Blackerby, State Registrar, "is found in mortality among infants under one year of age. The total number of deaths in this group was 3,805 in 1934, as against 3,309 in 1933. Increases are also shown in deaths in the age groups 1-5 years and 65 years and over, through the increases in both cases are comparatively slight. In the 1-5 year group, the total for 1934 is 1,526, as against 1,451 for 1933. In the 65 years and over group, 10,926 deaths have been recorded for 1934, as against 10,271 in 1933. These increases, while regrettable, are not unexpected. The effects of under-nourishment and other conditions consequent upon protracted economic depression would naturally first appear among the very young and those weakened by age and its infirmities.

"Diseases of the heart, which continue to constitute the leading single cause of death, show an increase. The figures for 1934 are 5,490 as against 5,055 for 1933. Cancer, the death rate from which has been steadily going up for the past decade or more, also shows another slight increase. The rate for pneumonia, which is the second leading single cause of death, jumped from 83.2 in 1933 to 89.1 in 1934. The total deaths from this cause were 2,352 last year, as against 2,199 the preceding year. Other diseases showing increases are whooping cough, scarlet fever, meningitis, measles, infant diarrhoea and dysentery in persons two years of age and over. Particularly noteworthy is the increase in automobile accidents, which jumped from 498 in 1933 to 625 in 1934.

"It is encouraging to note that the tuberculosis (all forms) rate dropped from 85.9 in 1933 to 76.3 in 1934. Total deaths from this cause numbered 2,013 in the latter year, as against 2,266 in the former year. It is particularly gratifying to observe that the diphtheria death rate fell off nearly three full points—13.4 in 1934, as against 16.3 in 1933. This no doubt, reflects, in some measure, the effects of efforts put forth to secure immunization of pre-school children, among whom the larger percentage of diphtheria mortality occurs. It is hoped and expected that the intensive campaign which the State Department of Health and the full-time county health department have inaugurated for pre-school immunization will bring this rate down several points further for the current year. The typhoid fever rate dropped a full point—from 12.0 in 1933 to 11.0 in 1934. Decreases are also shown in the influenza rate and in the rates for infantile paralysis, pellagra and malaria.

KENTUCKY GIRLS VIE FOR STATE HONORS
IN ESSAY CONTEST

A 1935 high school essay champion is to be crowned in Kentucky. Miss Alice Marie McMillan of Somerset, 1934 state title winner, must yield her throne to another student of his state who will be selected within the next three months.

Full details of a contest, which again will be open to high school students enrolled in home economics courses, has just been received by teachers of this city. The contest not only is state-wide but national in scope, it is said. It is sponsored by the live-stock and meat industry through its organization, the National Live Stock and Meat Board. The topics for essays will deal with phases of the subject of meat.

University scholarships will be the goal of students who enter. They will be given the opportunity to compete against girls in other states for sectional and national honors. Last year the national championship went to Miss Anne Ockewicz of Everett, Washington. Prominent home economics authorities will select the winners according to the contest announcement. In a similar event last year, Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the bureau of home economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, was chairman of the judging committee.

The free turnpike fever threatens to become an epidemic in this State. Where that system is practiced it will be a great advantage.

C. G. Riddell, of Rabbit Hash, was in town yesterday. Some of the boys suggested that he came for his license, but it is generally believed that he was on business which he considered of a great deal more importance.

Clinton Gaines and C. W. Riley were in town Monday. They are among the most prosperous men in the northern part of the county. Mr. Riley is negotiating with Dr. J. C. Terrill for his 125-acre farm near Bullittsville, the price offered being $12,000.

Dr. Furnish and wife entertained quite a number of their friends at an elegant supper, last Friday evening. After supper sometime was spent at games and in other pleasant ways, and the guests were sorry when the hour came for taking their departure.

The Boone County Harvest Home Company has leased for a term of fifteen years, the large woods belonging to W. P. Carpenter, and located adjoining the town of Florence and between the Florence and Union and Covington and Lexington turnpike. We understand that the grounds will be prepared, and all the necessary buildings erected, for a fair on the order of the old Florence Fair.

A colored man who belongs in the Kenton county poor house, has been loafing about here for several days. He was given a suit of clothes by Mr. J. F. Blythe, superintendent of the poor, who found him full of vermin, and exceedingly filthy his person.

Florence

ARE YOU ONE OF THESE PEOPLE?

It has been said that about 30 per cent of people have impaired vision and yet for some reason or other do not wear glasses.

If you are one of these, we urge you not to go on abusing your eyes in this manner. It will prove costly in the end—when you reach old age, if not before.

Come in for an eye examination, and let us fit you with glasses—ground and adjusted to suit your individual needs—and then note how much better you feel. You cannot feel real well and ambitious with strained eyes. We make our own glasses and that means a very reasonable price to you—and genuine eye comfort, too.

HAMILTON SCHOOL NEWS

Drawing the season 1934-35 to a brilliant close the "Farmers" of Hamilton went on a scoring spree and defeated Sparta 50-33 Friday night. The Hamilton boys have won thirteen games and lost five, winning from Warsaw twice, Florence twice, Hebron twice, Sanders twice, Verona twice, Sparta twice and Holy Cross once while dropping two to Burlington and New Haven and one to Holy Cross. The undefeated Reserves inflicted a 37-9 score upon the Sparta Reserves.

In the Tournament to be held at Florence the "Farmerettes" will meet the Hebron "Cardinals" Friday afternoon, March 1, and the Farmers will meet the victor in the Verona-New Haven clash, Friday night. The Tournament race this year is the closest in years and although several teams are reputed to have the "inside track" it will surprise few if a "dark horse" comes down the home stretch leading the field.

NEW HAVEN SCHOOL NOTES

This is an unusually full week. It closes a six week's period and calls for tests, is moving time for many, and the district basketball tournament.

El-Y boys had a guest leader last week, Rev. Rayburn. His varied experiences and special preparation make him very capable.

The debaters journeyed to Independence one night last week. Monday we were at Florence. Those in the group were Frances Stevens, Dorothy Mae Judge, Jennie Hart, Ralph Coppage, Harold Rouse, Mary Elizabeth Senior and Addie Jane Laibly. At least, two teams make each trip. All of our meets so far have been non-decisions.

Last Friday night our entire girl squad formed two groups, the Tigettes and Kittens, for a regular match. It was a close score all the way and ended 23-19 in favor of the Tigerettes.

Our Reserves took the little end of a 22-9 score from Walton Reserves. In the main tilt Walton took a 25-23 game, winning on foul shots. Each team made nine field goals, and each team had ten free tries. New Haven made five good while Walton made seven. The Tigers led most of the final period but permitted two long ones in the final minute that threw a splendid tussle to the visitors.

This week we meet Florence and Verona Thursday night at Florence in the district tournament.

HEBRON SCHOOL NEWS

The Cardinals closed their basketball season with one victory and one defeat. The girls won over the Kittens by a score of 47-7. The conflict between the Tomcats and Cardinals was an exceedingly good one. Our boys put up a hard fight but when a Tomcat chases a bird the bird seeks safety and that is what the Cardinals did. The score at the half was 17-16 and the final score 41-31 in favor of the Wildcats.

The Cardinals are looking forward to the Tournament which is to be held at Florence beginning on Feb. 28th. The girls will meet Hamilton on Friday afternoon and the boys will play Burlington on Friday afternoon also.

A large crowd witnessed a very interesting basketball game between Petersburg and Corinth Coca-Cola teams Saturday night. This was the game to determine the State Championship and Petersburg won by a score of 49-40.

The library is still increasing. We have purchased several sets of books for the juvenile department, and each class in high school has purchased a book and added it to the library.

The Latin play given by the first and second year Latin classes was quite a success.

The Debating teams will have their first debate on the afternoon of March 6th with New Haven at Hebron. The members of the teams are Affirmative—Dorothy Burns, George Hankins, Riley and Earl Hinbach. Negative—Evelyn Kilgour and Wood Edwards.

The Seniors have ordered their invitations.

The members of the basketball teams who are Seniors received their gold basketballs from the school Monday. The following received them: Betty Criger, Dorothy Conner, Anna Lea Burton, Dorothy Holton, Ben Kottmyer, Gilbert Dolwick, Omer Dolwick, Allen Whiter, and Edgar Snyder.

Chief Foster joined Chief Lewis in the statement that Mr. Setters "was one of the best officers in the detective department. Meanwhile patrolmen, traffic officers and detectives—all of whom at one time or another in the past 13 years had known Setters as one of their rank, were preparing last night for a fitting floral tribute to their dead comrade.

Death came to the detective only an hour before he was scheduled to report for work at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. He was sitting in a chair waiting for his wife who was preparing to ride to town with him.

When Setters became a member of the police department he started out with the rank of patrolman, and as his work drew the attention and praise of his superiors he was rapidly advanced to this position of an officer of the juvenile court, then a traffic officer, and three years ago he graduated to the detective division.

Detective Setters was born and raised at Jordonia. He was the son of the late Squire William Setters and Mrs. Sallie Setters. The latter survives him. After obtaining his education in the county schools he became an employee of the State Agricultural and Training school in his neighborhood community of Jordonia. He was a member of the Cedar Grove Christian church.

HOW ONE FARMER HELPED HIMSELF

A farmer accustomed to keeping records found that it cost $16.50 to produce an acre of corn. His average yield was 33 bushels, selling for 50 cents per bushel. On this basis he was producing without either profit or loss.

A study of his costs indicated means by which the yields might be increased without proportional expenses. By making use of facts discovered at the Experiment Stations, the farmer secured an increased yield of four and one-half bushels per acre (37½ bushels, instead of 33). By increasing the yield and holding down expenses, this farmer was able to make a profit of six cents per bushel.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for their foster daughter could not shelter her childhood from the hatred of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affairs ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to baseball game. A ball hit into the bleachers, struck Penelope on the nose and the neurotic Mrs. Gatlin removed her from the home to which her former husband had hurried her. Mrs. Gatlin spirited the child to Europe. Gatlin retired from the world and Penelope all his money, and was about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II.—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a rising young psychiatrist, was presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" was in part responsible. McNamara did not think she was a responsible criminal, but Burt, after expert testimony from court physician Dr. Lanny, the faithful office nurse, was won over to her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III.—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's clear explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny visited her and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter, which a confederate stole from her handbag outside the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV.—Nance escaped, although shot, by swimming out to a speed-boat, manned by friends and went to Lanny's apartment. Lanny told Chief McNamara, who ordered her to bring Nance to his apartment and phoned for Doctor Burt.

CHAPTER V.—One of the men in the boat on which Nance escaped—two of them ex-convicts, the other a bootlegger—had been wounded and they went to Burt's office, where McNamara found them. The bootlegger he let go and the others he ordered to care for Nance and his pal. From them he learned that Nance's real name was Penelope Gatlin. Detective Sergeant Flynn and Angellotti, seeking the reward offered for Nance's apprehension, went to Lanny's apartment in search of Nance. Looking over her San Quentin cell McNamara found a blank check on a San Jose bank.

CHAPTER VI.—From the San Jose banker McNamara learned that the girl he knew as Nance Belden was Penelope Gatlin, heiress to $750,000. The banker did not know Penelope's whereabouts. Mrs. Gatlin was now the wife of a man named Morton. McNamara ordered Detective Sergeant Flynn and Angellotti to "lay off" Lanny, whom they suspected of harboring Nance. The detectives trailed Doctor Burt when he went to McNamara's house to treat her gunshot wound but Nance and the two men who helped her escape saw them first and fled.

CHAPTER VII.—When Lanny got home one evening she found Nance sound asleep, curled up on her guest-room bed. Several days later the hotel exterior of Nance Belden suddenly vanished and the girl became the refined Penelope. Her apparently restored memory led her to tell Lanny of her wealthy father, Theodore Gatlin, and of her childhood in France. Fearing his detectives would locate Penelope, McNamara furnished her with tear and stick bombs and showed her how to use them to escape if they did. She used the bombs and gets away. Flynn and Angellotti continued hot on Nance's trail—and McNamara's.

"Maybe you're right at that, Amadeo. Well, well, stick round a while." They struck around half an hour before Doctor Burt came out, and drove away. "Drop off an' watch the house," Flynn suggested to his partner, "an' I'll follow his nibe. I'll be back later."

He trailed Stephen Burt to the latter's home and saw him pull up along the sidewalk, preparatory to opening the door of his garage. So Flynn rolled past, circled, picked up Angellotti at the end of the block.

"After you an' the doc left, I went up to the corner drug store and phoned the chief's house, but nobody answered," Angellotti confided. "The gang's in there, all right."

"I'm as nervous as an old woman," Flynn confessed. "I wish I had a drink."

Angellotti was a resourceful fellow. "Let's call on that Lanning woman, apologize for our rough work last night, an' maybe she'll slip us some of that pre-war Bourbon again."

Flynn nodded, and they drove to Lanny's house. Lanny received them coldly. "Have you come to search my house again?" she demanded irritably.

No mule's face could possibly have been longer and sadder than P. Flynn's. "We didn't come to annoy you, Miss Lanning. The chief's gives us the inside story. We just called to apologize for even suspecting you."

"An officer," Angellotti explained, "has got to do a lot of things he don't like to do in the discharge of his duty. The apology goes double, Miss Lanning."

"It's accepted." Then they shook hands. "How about a shot in the arm?" Lanny, the worldling, suggested, much mollified.

Angellotti shrugged expressively. "Well, seel'n as how," P. Flynn murmured. So they had three drinks and spent a very pleasant evening with Lanny and she was loath to see them depart.

Now, Lanny was aware that Stephen had planned to visit his queer patients after dinner that night. So she telephoned—and Dan McNamara answered.

"I shouldn't ring you up this late and get you out of bed—"

"Not at all. Just got in this minute."

"I'm glad. How's everything, Dan?"

"I haven't seen the patients, but my chief of staff was up waiting for me, and reports everything jake."

"That's all I wanted to know. Thanks, Dan. Oh, by the way, Flynn and Angellotti called on me again, tonight."

"What's that?" The chief's voice was a roar. "What are those two eggs up to? I told them to lay off you."

"They're doing that, Dan. They just called to apologize. They spent the evening with me. They only left a moment ago."

"The liquor must have run out."

"Oh, Dan!"

"I know those two. It would never occur to them to apologize to anybody if they didn't have a reason. It's just as I suspected. Lanny. They're going to hang on to this case on the quiet and trail you around."

An anguished thought popped into Lanny's agile brain. "Oh, Dan, suppose they took a notion to trail Stevie!"

"Hush! You don't have to paint me any picture, Lanny. When did these two bumbodies call at your house?"

"At nine-fifteen."

"Wait a minute," Lanny waited a minute and then McNamara said: "Stephen left here just about that time, so I guess we're safe tonight. And tomorrow I'll cover that loophole. I'm an ass not to have thought of it before. Good night."

In the morning Dan McNamara sent for Flynn and informed him he was to depart that night for Los Angeles to bring back a prisoner. Flynn begged Angellotti to keep his eyes on the job. But that night McNamara found other work for Angellotti. By the time Flynn returned, Angellotti was gone, and the same night, without a moment's notice, McNamara shot him up to Seattle on a similar job.

He let himself into the house that night with his latchkey, turned on the hall light and whistled. "Hello, everybody," he shouted. Nobody answered, so he hurried down to Nance's room. The door was open. He switched on the light and found a disordered bed with nobody in it. He searched the house thoroughly, only to discover he was alone in it; finally, on the living room table he found a note:

"Dear Chief: We think you mean well and we thank you for what you have done, but the dicks are watching this house. They trailed the doctor last night, but a friend of ours trailed them. Forgive us if we just can't trust any cop. Anyway, it would be embarrassing for you if your men found us here. Good-by and good luck."

McNamara sat down. He was suddenly weak. So he hadn't fooled Flynn and Angellotti after all. The smart devil! Well, they might suspect all he guessed, but unless they had seen his guests and recognized Nance they could never prove anything.

He realized now that his act in sending them out of the state would clinch their suspicions; they would be sure to have somebody in their confidence keep the house under constant surveillance until they got back. Evidently they had sent a bungler and the ex-soldier had spotted the fellow—he wondered if Nance and her loyal friends had made a clean getaway.

The front doorbell rang and he went to answer it. A thin, bent man stood in the entrance, and even in the dim light from the hall McNamara knew him for an ex-convict in a prison suit of civilian clothes.

"Chief, McNamara?" he queried huskily.

"Yes, I'm the chief."

"I got out of San Quentin this morning. I had a message for you, but I didn't want to come to headquarters to deliver it. Benny the Beetle told me to tell you to rest easy."

"Thanks, friend. Come in and rest easy yourself. Let's get acquainted," McNamara invited hospitably. In the clearer light of the living room he saw his visitor was far from being a saw man. "What is it, kid?" he demanded. "Hop—or T. B.?"

"The old cough'n' sickness, Chief. The prison directors shortened my term to let me out for treatment. As if I can get treatment anywhere," he added bitterly.

"Oh, yes, you can. I'm living alone here for the next thirty days, so I'll get a nurse in to take care of you, and you stay here."

The man looked at him suspiciously. "You mean it, Chief?"

"What did Benny tell you about me?" McNamara asked.

"He told me to trust you. He said you was one human being, even if you was a chief of police."

He changed the linen on Nance's bed, put the room in order, laid out a suit of pajamas and ordered his guest to bed.

"And now, me bold bucks," he reflected, "keep on trailing Doctor Burt to my house, if you feel like it."

He waited until Stephen Burt arrived, and explained the situation to him. Stephen considered it a tremendous joke but commended his line of attack on Flynn and Angellotti.

"The man does need treatment very badly," he told the chief. "I'll send around a practical nurse early tomorrow morning to look after him, and I'll continue to call upon the poor devil nightly until further orders. We're both involved in a tricky game now and must play the hand thought."

Doctor Burt was suddenly serious. "I do hope we haven't lost Nance, Dan. She's the most interesting psychological case I've ever seen."

"She ain't lost, but I'll bet a cookie-she's well hid. But I'll locate her within twelve hours," Chief McNamara added, thinking of Ella Cates.

"I've run Nance's early history down since I saw her last, Doc," he announced suddenly. "I got busy the other day and luck was with me. She's an heiress and her name is Penelope Gatlin. She got it in the nose by a baseball—a long fly into the bleachers. But I also discovered something else. It's a question whether she ain't just a natural nut. Her mother is. She led Gatlin a h—l of a life."

"No, I don't think it's congenital, Dan. There's something about that girl that's healthy—mentally and physically. Did you meet her mother?"

"No, but I'm going to run her down easy enough."

Stephen sighed. "Oh, poor Nance! I'm afraid she's beyond my skill, after all. A bad family history, Mac—very bad. There's a structural weakness in some families that never gets bred out, and I suspect poor Nance has an inheritance of mental instability from her mother."

"Well, with that busted nose, her inheritance and her hellcat mother, she certainly had a fine start on the road to the foolish farm, didn't she, Doc? Excuse me, there's the telephone."

Lanny was calling. "Dan," she quavered, "my house has been burglarized. They jimmied the back door, and for all I know the burglars are upstairs still. I'm watching the staircase—got my pistol covering it. Come over quick, Dan—please."

"Coming right away, Lanny." He hung up and faced Stephen. "Lanny has burglars. Into your car, boy, and we'll beat it over."

CHAPTER VII

Lanny, very white and shaken, was in her living room, pistol in hand, watching the stairs, when McNamara and Stephen came noiselessly in the back door. The chief whipped out his pistol and went unhesitatingly up the stairs. Presently he called them to come up.

They found him standing in the doorway leading into Lanny's guest chamber. "Take a look at that," he ordered.

They looked. Lying in the bed, sound asleep, was Nance Belden! McNamara switched off the light and softly closed the door. With his great head clasped in both huge hands he went down the stairs to the living room. "Doc," he pleaded, "whose loony now? I think I am because I'm seeing things that ain't in the book. Ochone, ochone, and wirra, wirra, the fairies have me in tow!"

"Got to get her out of here," Dan McNamara decided. "Flynn and Angellotti finally got on her trail, no doubt about that—and it's a mighty cold trail those two dicks can't follow. I suspected this, and the note she left at my house confirms it. It's just the mercy of God that Flynn and Angellotti didn't happen to slip into my domicile and find the note. If they had I'd be sunk. They can suspect all they want to, but hanging it on to me is another pair of boots, as the French say."

"Why, they wouldn't dare invade their own chief's house," Lanny protested.

"They wouldn't? You don't know those two boozes like I do. They'd dare anything if they figured they could get away with it."

"Can't you give the miserable snoopers an office job?" Lanny demanded. She was faintly provoked at Daniel for his lack of initiative.

"Would you herd cows with a couple of horses that had won the derby?"

"Oh!"

"Wake that psychopathic nuisance up, Lanny, and get her down here. I've got to find out things or go crazy. Besides, she hasn't had any dinner."

"Let the poor lamb sleep, Dan," pleaded Lanny.

"I need a lot of sleep myself and I can't get it until I know how, when and where Nance and her gang made the getaway. Suppose Flynn and Angellotti let them make the getaway; suppose Flynn followed the men and Angellotti followed Nance? They'd do that; they wouldn't risk getting in Dutch with me by making the pinch as the gang came out of my house. They have some loyalty and a lot of common sense, and they know which side their bread is buttered on. When they take the girl they'll turn her in to me. They'll wait her straight back to San Quentin to the warden and let his men get the credit for recapturing her. All they want is the reward. Suppose they know she's here now and suppose they've seen me come here? Ouch! Murderation!"

"Have her down, Lanny," Stephen commanded in his operating room voice, and Lanny had no alternative save to obey. So presently Nance came down the stairs with her. The girl was arrayed in an old faded dressing gown of Lanny's, her hair was tousled, and she yawned sleepily.

"Hello, Stevie, old darling; hello, Dan, you great big beautiful thing. Here I am."

"Sit down," McNamara invited in honeyed accents.

So Nance sat down promptly—on his tremendous knees—put her arm around his burlap neck and kissed him. "Now, don't get excited," she cooed. "I know exactly what's burning you up, but you needn't worry. One of the boys recognized Flynn and I recognized Angellotti, because he's the dick that pinched me the first time I got in Dutch. They kept circling the block in their car all the afternoon, and when it was almost dark we saw Flynn go into an alley alongside a vacant house across the street.

"Hello, Stevie, Old Darling."

"We decided the back of the nose wasn't guarded, so we telephoned the boy friend that met us at the yacht harbor that night, and he came and parked in the next street. We went out your back door, leaving the light in the front room burning and shared over the back fence. Some job for two members of the party, I'll say. Once over the fence we had to crawl through the back yard of the house that abuts against the rear of your house—and a dog bit me, but not very hard. We got out in front and into the next street before anybody could come out and see what luck the dog had had; our car was there and we beat it. We're pretty sure nobody followed us, but we drove out to the park first with our lights doused, and when we were sure nobody was trailing us, the boys brought me here. We jimmied your back door, Lanny dear; then the boys said good-by to me for keeps. It seems you don't want me associating with them any more and they think you're right about that, Dan."

"Did your men scout the street in front of this house before pulling up in front of it?" asked McNamara sharply.

"Certainly. We circled the block twice."

"Feed our Nance, Lanny," McNamara urged happily. "She's a smart girl. How's the shoulder, dearie?"

"Fine. It'll be O. K. in another week."

"So am I," Mr. McNamara grinned. "Flynn's home eating his dinner now, and Angellotti must be on guard in that alley. I'm going to mistake Angellotti for a suspicious character, lurking there in the dark—and put a mark on him so I can recognize him later. He just can't stand to mix it with me, and get recognized, of course, so when he runs I'll fire in the air. He'll know who I am but he'll never suspect I know who he is."

McNamara bade Nance, Lanny and Stephen goodnight and hurried away in a taxi. A block from his home he alighted and walked down the side of the street opposite his own house. He was whistling softly as he came abreast of Angellotti's hiding place, where he turned at right angles, apparently with the intention of crossing in the middle of the street to his own house. A step from the curb he halted, turned, bent his head in a listening attitude, then stepped resolutely into the alley.

"Who's there?" he demanded. Receiving no answer, he got out a small flashlight; he seemed to have some difficulty flashing it on, for he cursed softly, and suddenly a beam from the flashlight illuminated his own face for an instant, but long enough, he decided, to permit the watchful Angellotti to recognize him. The alley was empty, but in a little garden strip a large syringa bush grew, and instinct warned the chief that his prey was behind it. So he walked past it, his flashlight held close to the bush, and as he had anticipated, it was snatched from him. As he turned, one of his stout legs was jerked from under him by a man crouching low; so, before permitting himself to topple backward, McNamara dropped his good right arm to the level of his knee and swung a short, stabbing punch. He felt a creakbone and the side of a nose; so he punched, again, a little higher up, and then fell over backward. Instantly his assailant rose and fed like a doe.

"Halt! I'm an officer," McNamara shouted, and fired into the air. But the running man did not even hesitate. In the morning he sent for Angellotti for a report on a certain case, and was charmed to note a faintly lonesome spot on the Italian's left cheek and a very noticeable iridescence under the left eye. The chief grinned. "What's the other fellow look like, Angelo?" he queried innocently. "He couldn't have been more of a flyweight or hold more done more damage! How come you let some runt one-two you like that?"

"It was a dame I picked up for drunkenness," Angellotti lied with the gibbous of long practice.

THE right kind of a bank is just as anxious to make good loans as the manufacturer, merchant or farmer is to sell his products.

This Bank welcomes every opportunity to make sound loans to its depositors whether the amounts required be large or small.

The point that many would-be-borrowers overlook, however, is that the money a bank lends is not the bank's nor the banker's—it is the depositors' money.

Hence, a bank must investigate the guarantees given by the borrower very carefully.

BURLINGTON WINS

TOURNAMENT—HEBRON GIRLS VICTORIOUS. WONDERFUL TOURNAMENT HELD AT FLORENCE

Last week the 37th District Basketball Tournament held forth in Florence at the High School Gym. All the Boone County High Schools were represented by teams, both boys and girls. The weather was ideal and every game was witnessed by large and enthusiastic crowds. In fact, it is believed that there were larger crowds in attendance than at any previous tournament held in the county. It was the consensus of opinion of all those with whom the writer talked that this tournament was one of the most successful and enjoyable of any that have been conducted in this section. This was due largely to two things: first, to the fine and hospitable attitude of Florence as a host to the tournament and to the thorough and systematized manner in which it was conducted by Prof. W. R. Davis and his staff of teachers. Opportunity to obtain meals by the players was furnished through the school and the Florence P. T. A. Fine spirit was displayed by all present and most admirable of all was the excellent sportsmanship shown by all contestants.

The winners of the tournament were the Burlington High School Boys' team and the Hebron High School Girls' team. These teams were the best without a doubt. Neither team was ever in danger throughout the tournament. At no time were their opponents ever in the lead. Both teams took the lead early in every game and always maintained it. Boone county as a whole is exceedingly proud of these two winning teams.

Trophies were awarded as follows: Tournament Trophy for Boys—Burlington Team.

Tournament Trophy for Girls—Hebron Team.

Runners-up Trophy — Hamilton Boys.

Best Sportsmanship Trophy—Florence Boys.

Best Individual Player (Boys)—Leslie Voshell, Burlington.

Best Individual Player (Girls)—Betty Crigler, Hebron.

As a result of the tournament the Burlington Team will represent the 37th District at the Regional Contest now being held in Dayton, Ky. The Hamilton Team, as runners-up will also participate in the Dayton Regional Tournament. The winner of this tournament will enter the tournament to be held at Lexington to determine the state championship.

OHIO MILK

COMMISSION MEETS FRIDAY—MILK PRODUCERS URGED TO BE PRESENT

For some time the Northern Kentucky milk producers have been trying to bring pressure on the Ohio Milk Commission to establish a more favorable and equitable price. Since Northern Kentucky milk is sold largely in Cincinnati the price is determined by the Ohio authorities. Under the new governor of Ohio it begins to look like some action may be taken to remedy this condition. At least Governor Davey has been persuaded to appoint a Milk Investigating Committee for the benefit of the milk producers.

This Committee will meet in the City Hall, Cincinnati, Friday morning, March 8, at nine o'clock, fast time. It is very important that milk producers in Boone County and Northern Kentucky meet this Committee at that time. This Committee must be given the viewpoint of the local milk producers who are so vitally interested. A large delegation should be present. If this Committee will give a favorable report it will result in higher prices for Northern Kentucky milk.

FIRE CAUSES MUCH DAMAGE TO FT. MITCHELL ORPHANAGE

Fire that started in the chapel steeple at St. John's Orphanage, Horse Branch Road, Fort Mitchell, yesterday, swept through the chapel interior, causing damage estimated at from $10,000 to $20,000 and necessitating removal of most of the institution's 118 charges to temporary dormitories over kowak temporary quarters, since water made the dormitories virtually uninhabitable.

98% OF HOME OWNERS ELIGIBLE TO GET LOANS

Fully 98 per cent of every 100 owner-occupied homes in the U. S. come within the $20,000 value limit of the Federal Housing Administration for insured mortgage loans, according to the Real Property Inventory conducted by the Department of Commerce.

Under Federal Housing regulations for insured mortgage loans, the maximum loan allowable on any one residential property is $16,000, or 80 per cent on the appraised value of $20,000. The table of values for owner-occupied homes shows studied in the inventory were valued at $20,000 and over, while the that only 1.46 per cent of the homes value of 0.49 per cent of the homes was not reported.

This table further reveals that the average value of owner-occupied homes is $4,000, with 29 per cent falling within this classification. Nearly 18 per cent average $2,500 and 24 per cent less than $2,000. Less than a third of the homes were above the $4,000 mark, 17 per cent averaging $6,250 and 12 per cent $7,500 or more.

It was further shown that 54 per cent of these homes were mortgaged, the range being from 16 per cent in Frederick, Md., to 78 per cent in Waterbury, Conn.

Ralph Maurer and James Ogden of Richmond spent the week end with their parents. They returned to see the basketball tournament and were well pleased as to the outcome.

AAA CORN-HOG

CONTRACTS SIGNED—DIRECTORS TO MEET MONDAY

Boone county farmers the past two weeks have signed 109 A-A-A Corn-Hog contracts. This represents a much faster sign-up this year than last year in which a total of 222 contracts were signed. The period for the sign-up will likely be extended the next week or ten days. Approximately 25% of the contract signed to date are new or contracts not signed in 1934.

The educational campaign was completed last Saturday and the holding of Community elections to set up the local or Community Control Committee began on Monday of this week. The dates for the Community Control Committee elections are as follows:

Union-Beaver—March 4; New Haven School 1:30 p. m.
Petersburg-Belleview—March 5; Belleview School 1:30 p. m.

Hebron—March 6—O. O. F. Hall, 7:00 p. m.
Hamilton—March 7—Hamilton School—7:00 p. m.

Florence—March 8—Tanner's Feed Store—7:00 p. m.
Walton-Verona—March 9—Walton, Equitable Bank—1:30 p. m.

The County Board of Directors will meet at Burlington next Monday morning to elect the County Control Committee. The 1935 Community Control Committees will meet at Burlington next Monday afternoon to receive final instructions on the appraising of corn acres.

All corn-hog producers who sign applications for contracts by the date of the Community elections are eligible to vote or hold office. Those producers who have not signed applications and expect to, should do so immediately. The 1935 contract is far more liberal than last years and the payments are good for what is required. No one should expect to be asked to sign. The County Agent's office or any of the Committees will be glad to explain this program.

OVERHEAD

OF KENTUCKY TOO HIGH SAYS NAT B. SEWELL

Maysville, Ky., March 1—Nat B. Sewell, State Inspector and Examiner, urged a greater interest in government in an address before the Mason County Women's Club.

The speaker said the cost of operating the state in 1900 was $4,000,000, while in 1932 it has risen to $45,000,000.

Sewell attributed a large part of this increase to four additional normal schools which receive approximately $250,000 each every two years, the State University which receives $800,000 to $1,000,000 and the cost of highways which did not exist in 1900.

Overcrowded conditions of state institutions were decried by the speaker together with the existing idleness. Sewell suggested that farms should be obtained so prisoners might be employed.

BOONE CO. GAME & FISH PROTECTIVE ASSN. MET

The Boone County Game and Fish Protective Association held a very interesting meeting February 27th at the court house. There were twenty-five of their membership of sixty present.

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday night March 13th at the court house. Mr. Rogers, of the Game and Fish Commission, will be present and make it worth your while to come and hear him.

"BABY BONDS"

ON SALE HERE NOW; ALSO, AT OTHER POSTOFFICES IN COUNTY

Post offices throughout the United States will offer, beginning, Friday, United States Savings Bonds to the public, as a "safe investment of idle funds," according to placards in the various postoffices.

These bonds will be on sale at the Burlington postoffice, according to Newton Sullivan, postmaster, and will be in the following denominations: $18.75 increases in ten years to $25.00; $37.50 increases in ten years to $50.00; $75.00 increases in ten years to $100.00; $375.00 increases in ten years to $500.00; $750.00 increases in ten years to $1,000.00.

These bonds will be redeemed by the Government if the owner desires at any time after sixty days from the issue date. Their redemption value is at the cost price during the first year but thereafter increases every six months until the maximum return is obtained by the owner for the full ten years.

Protection against loss or destruction is afforded by registering the purchaser's name on the books of the United States Treasury; or the Government will hold the bond in safekeeping for the owner.

The posters further claim this new Government security affords a convenient means for employment of savings with safety and definite return. It also says the individual's future needs for money may be met by the regular investment of small amounts in United States Savings Bonds.

These bonds are for sale in all other Boone county postoffices. Anyone desiring further information should see the local postmaster.

ANNUAL FRUIT

MEETING TO BE HELD MARCH 12

The annual Boone County winter orchard field meetings will be held next Tuesday, March 12th according to County Agent Forkner. Mr. W. W. Magill, Orchard Field Agent, from the College of Agriculture will meet with growers in these meetings to discuss the fruit projects for 1935 and the various approved practices in management that will be followed by growers in other sections of the state.

The morning meeting will be held at the farm of J. W. Goodridge near Burlington and will begin at 9:45 a. m. The afternoon meeting will be held at the farm of Mr. Hubert Conner near Hebron and will begin at 1:00 p. m., slow time. These meetings are looked forward to as friendly gatherings for all leading fruit growers of the county. The meetings are of a strict educational nature and all who are interested are invited to attend.

STUNT PARTY

TO BE GIVEN BY LOCAL P. T. A. MARCH 12—TO BENEFIT SCHOOL GROUND IMPROVEMENT

The movement which was started several days ago to landscape and beautify the Burlington school grounds is showing fine results already. A number of men are now working on the project. They are cutting out and grubbing certain unsightly trees of small growth and leveling up a number of places. Later the grounds will be graded and landscaped and shrubbery and other plants set out. The Burlington school grounds have needed this treatment for many years, in fact, ever since the building was erected. The movement now in progress should not stop until the local school grounds have as pretty and inviting an appearance as any in the county.

In order to obtain further funds for this purpose the Burlington P. T. A. is having a Stunt Party at the school auditorium on Tuesday night, March 12th, at 7 p. m. The price of admission will be 10 and 20c and the proceeds of course will go toward the improvement of the grounds. Immediately afterwards the officers and members will hold a business meeting. All patrons and well-wishers of the local schools should make it a point to be on hand.

RENDER AAA TOBACCO UNMERCHANTABLE

Growers must render unmerchantable excess tobacco and obtain a certificate from their Community Committeeman before signing their 1934 AAA marketing cards according to John E. Crigler, secretary of the County Association. The Chairmen of the local committees have been supplied with forms for certifying as to excess tobacco in the near future. The second payment will greatly exceed the total amount paid Boone County farmers in the rental and first adjustment payment. Growers who reduced one third will receive 15% more than their 1934 crop brought and growers who reduced one half will receive 35% more than the 1934 crop brought.

BRADLEY BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE; 17 COLTS PERISH

A barn on the farm of Col. E. R. Bradley on the old Frankfort Pike, valued at $16,000 was destroyed by a fire of unknown origin early Sunday. The barn, for brood mares and foals, housed certain of the best mares and foals owned by Colonel Bradley.

Eighteen mares and seven foals were in the barn at the time of the blaze.

The fire was seen by an employee of the farm who at first believed someone had left a light burning.

BARKLEY PRAISES

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IN KANSAS CITY ADDRESS

Supporting the view of President Roosevelt in the controversy over wages which shall be paid under provisions of the work relief measure now before congress, U. S. Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky said: "We cannot afford to place the government in competition with private industry by offering a wage so attractive that men will desert private industry to become enrolled on government payrolls" in an address before the annual banquet of Kansas Democrats.

"At the same time," said Senator Barkley, "we ought to pay a wage on relief work projects sufficiently high to induce men to leave the rolls of charity to become enrolled among those who are earning what they may receive at the hands of the federal government."

Expenditures which are being made to relieve the destitute from suffering, although such appropriations unbalance the national budget, were defended by the Kentucky solon.

"Guided by the same providential hand, I predict that Franklin D. Roosevelt, acclaimed as the hope of the nation, without party, color or religion, will take his place among those who have given and have preserved the rights, the privileges and the hopes of millions of people here and throughout the world."

Denying that individual liberty has been destroyed by legislative policies of the national administration, Senator Barkley declared, "I challenge those who complain that we have robbed the people of their liberties, to point to a single instance where they have lost any liberty which they should have retained. I challenge those who criticize everything we have done, to tell us what they would have done if the people had placed responsibility in their hands instead of ours. I challenge them to give us a bill of particulars, containing what they ever proposed, or what they now propose, as a substitute for what we are attempting to do to rescue the American people."

EQUALIZATION BOARD HAS SECOND MEETING

The Equalization Board reconvened on March 5th to hear further data in regard to this year's assessments. A number of persons appeared before the board in reference to the assessed valuation of their property. The board adjourned Wednesday. The members this year were James E. Gaines, M. G. Martin and Hugh Stephens.

J. G. RENAKER ILL

We regret to learn of the illness of J. G. Renaker, Cashier of the Florence Deposit Bank. Mr. Renaker was taken ill suddenly and is now confined to his home. His many friends in Florence and all over the county wish him a speedy recovery.

Shelby-Acra has moved to the Hebron neighborhood where he will farm the coming season.

BIG MINSTREL

TO BE HELD AT HEBRON MARCH 15 FOR BENEFIT OF HIGH SCHOOL LIBRARY

There will be a big minstrel given at Hebron on Friday night, March 15 in which thirty or forty actors will participate. This minstrel is being put on in the interest of the Hebron High School Library. The only thing that is keeping the Hebron High School from being classified as an "A" school is the lack of a library that will meet the requirements of the State Department of Education. Everyone realizes the great importance to a community to have a Class A school and it is the intention of the Hebron citizens that their community will have such a school. For this reason all well-wishers of the Hebron High School are bending every effort to raise the necessary funds. They hope this minstrel will be so well patronized that the receipts from it will make up what is now needed to purchase the required books.

In the first part of the minstrel there are eleven musical numbers made up of solos, quartets, and choruses. The soloists are: Daniel Bullock, Russell Hodge, Pericles Grubbs, Robert Hafer and Chas. W. Riley.

The after pieces are: "The Pilfered Pants," a mock trial; "Oh! Doctor," a burlesque of a doctor's office; a negro sermon, "You Dog-gone Sinners," by Harold Crigler; A Monologue, "De Low-Down on Scientifics," by Joseph Peeno; Musical Number, by Winfield Waters.

Those taking part in the minstrel are as follows:

L. C. Beemon, Lloyd Slekmann, Wilford Slekmann, Charles W. Riley, Verner Tupman, Earl Tanner, Earl Tanner, James Tanner, Clifford Tanner, John Burton, Lawrence Rodamer, Robert Hafer, Paul Hafer, John Crigler, George Casper, Luther Rouse, Daniel Bullock, Pericles Grubbs, Harold Crigler, Woodford Crigler, Elmer Goodridge, Edgar Goodridge, Parker Hollis, Edwin Walton, Jerry Fowler, Chester Goodridge, Robert Reimer, Russell Hodge, Vaughn Hempling, Kenneth Woehly, Winfield Waters, Joseph Peeno.

Further notice of this minstrel will be given in next week's issue of the Recorder. However, it can be stated at this time that the minstrel will start at eight o'clock (slow time) and that the price of admission will be 15c for children and 25c for adults. It is expected that a large part of Boone county will be there, see a fine show, have a good laugh, and a pleasant evening and at the same time help along a worthy cause.

4-H CLUB

MEMBERS ARE ENROLLING IN LARGE NUMBERS FOR 1935

Boone County 4-H club members are enrolling in large numbers for 1935 according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. Enrollment applications are being received from all sections of the county and prospects are for a bigger and better club this year in every way.

Community clubs are holding their first organization meetings this week and next. The following organization schedules have been arranged.

Petersburg—March 5—10:00 a. m.
New Haven—March 6—11:00 a. m.
Florence—March 7—9:15 a. m.
Hebron—March 7—2:00 p. m.
Grant—March 8—10:15 a. m.
Burlington—March 13—1:00 p. m.
Dates for other community club meetings are being set as rapidly as possible. Immediately following the first meetings a second series will be held to supply members with project circulars and record books. 1935 members will learn to make money, and enjoy a healthful and good recreational program.

Mrs. Myrtle Offutt and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McBee entertained with a card party one night last week. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Yelton, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Pope, Mr. and Mrs. Arden Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Guiley and son, Mrs. Lallie Eddins, Miss Lucille Cotton, Frank Kelly, and Wilton Stephens.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Walton and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Williamson and son were shopping in the city Tuesday.

OPPORTUNITY FOR WOMEN

Modern social life is being gradually altered through the entry of women into business and commercial activity. The old idea that a woman, once married, retired to the home for the purpose of keeping house and raising a family, is being shot to pieces.

Like all other alterations of the established order, this change has produced some absurdities, but, on the whole, we believe it is working for the best interests of everybody. Particularly it is to the interest of women. Before the opening up of opportunities for making her living, the average woman had to do one of three things in order to keep from starving, either marry, live on male charity or else throw herself on the streets.

The fact that women can make their way in commercial activities and retain their self-respect, without being dependent upon the men of the world, gives to women in general an independence that is good for us all. It will also enable them to make the men toe the mark in domestic life, which after all is not a bad idea.

STYLES AND THE TIMES

Probably one should not pick a quarrel with experts like the chairman of the national style committee of the National Association of Clothiers and Furnishers, but indubitably facts are facts. Thus when the chairman says that people dressed economically during the depression and will go in for more and better clothes as times improve, his statement has the ring of truth. When he says the depression brought somber clothing, and returning prosperity will bring gay ones, one wonders if this must be so.

Fashion probably goes its own mysterious way without especial regard for the economic situation. If we recall correctly, the Eugenie hats and puff sleeves came along about the time banks were failing right and left, while the shepherd's plaid in men's clothing at least got its start long before the first rays of sunlight were visible between the depression clouds.

The "times" indeed may work the opposite way on styles. Nothing is so comforting when things look black as to buy a new suit or a new dress. And if the incentive to purchase is relief from spiritual depression, the new possession is apt to be a gay one.

THE POSTAL SURPLUS

The Postoffice Department is out of the red for the first time since 1919 and has a surplus of $12,161,415 to its credit. This is the largest surplus in history with the exception of 1918 under the Wilson administration and is an eloquent testimonial to the administrative ability and business-like methods of Postmaster General James A. Farley.

Every year for the last fifteen years the taxpayers have been called on to meet a postoffice deficit. In recent years millions of dollars have been taken from the federal treasury to pay the difference between the cost of the postal department and income realized from the public. The deficit had come to be such a chronic case that the public had about concluded that it just couldn't be helped, that it was necessary to take money from the treasury to make up the difference in postal income in order to provide mail service.

Postmaster General Farley did not subscribe to the theory that it is impossible for the postal department to be self-sustaining. He set about effecting economies, reorganizing the service along more efficient lines. He now sees his judgment vindicated and has the satisfaction of seeing a postal surplus where deficits have grown hitherto for many years.

BILL OF RIGHTS

For that vanishing reactionary, the pedestrian, some one should propose a bill of rights. He has been honked at, cursed, injured and killed long enough. To be sure, there is not much chance that, like the worm he has come to resemble, he will ever turn; and yet if we would preserve him from the fate of the dodo and as an object of study for future generations, something had better be done.

Ostensibly and technically, the pedestrian has a few square feet of the public thoroughfare he may call his own. In the purely legal sense, perhaps, he has equal rights with an automobile when it comes to crossing a street intersection. Upon the sidewalk, which he may laughingly think his own, his right theoretically over-shadows the right of trespassing motor cars.

All of this is protection in name only for him who travels as God originally intended—on foot. He may observe the right-of-way at intersections assiduously and is very likely to be run down by an automobile for his pains. He may walk carefully upon his own domain, the sidewalk, and be knocked flat by a motor car emerging from garage, driveway or filling station. He has rights, but he may assert them only at extreme jeopardy to his person. He will feel, usually, that life is hard enough without looking for trouble.

A pedestrian, on the other hand, is not without his fun. He may stand safely sheltered, (well, fairly safely) in a doorway and observe with glee a tilt at arms of his betters, the motoring gentry. He may amble on his unobtrusive way, getting somewhere, while motorist curses motorist in the heat of a traffic jam. These are joys reserved for the pedestrian alone, but they don't keep him from getting killed.

But occasionally when one automobile tangles with another and their occupants are maimed and injured, he may take the longer view. He may know then that his hope, his only hope, is that motorists will have killed off each other before they exterminate the lonely travelers on foot.

Editorial of the Week

A FALSE GOD

(Hillsboro News-Herald)

It seems that the false god most frequently worshipped by men and women through all ages is money. It would seem that enlightened, educated persons would appreciate that money is a false god, but it seems impossible for many to learn this evident fact. It seems to us that the people of this century have been among the most devout worshippers of this false god.

Think it over. Hasn't the measure of a man's success in the last forty years been determined almost entirely by how much money he had accumulated? We can remember as a boy and young man arguing with our friends that money was not the sole measure of success and they laughed at us. In our judgment many a wealthy man is a failure. In every community there is always to be found some person who has made money his only god. He cares not how he gets money. He will cheat, be underhanded, misrepresent, lie, stoop to the lowest methods, impose on the poor, the ignorant and the helpless to add to his share of money.

People have just two feelings about such a person. They all despise him and some fear him. When such a man dies there is no one so low as to do him honor. Does such a man when he considers his wealth think he has made a success of life? Even as low as he has fallen there must be times when he loathes himself.

Money has no value unless it brings happiness to the person who has it. One should desire money so he can have comfort and luxuries for himself and family; so he can help others; so he can secure in times of sickness and trouble and in his old age so he can do worthwhile things.

There is no doubt but that the terrible depression of the last few years was due entirely to so many men and women worshipping money and money only. We wonder if the depression will end until men and women place the proper value on things, until they again worship the basic virtues of honesty, industry, fairness, courage, kindness, helpfulness, until they do these two things Christ ordered: "Do unto others as ye would, they would do unto you" and "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Our troubles are due almost entirely to the same thing that brought disaster to the Children of Israel under Moses. We have been worshipping the Golden Calf.

A WESTERN DROUGHT PESSIMIST

A Frontiersman, essential in the opening up and gradual development of a new country, is oftentimes a peculiarly constructed sample of genus humanity.

Usually, he uncomplainingly submits to the difficulties and hardships incident in pioneer life and the substitution of civilized environment. And yet there are times when, overwhelmed by the misfortunes of drought, hot winds, grasshoppers and cyclones, he all but yields to disaster and despair.

Within the last year in Kansas, Nebraska, portions of Texas, Montana and the Dakotas, crops have been burned up, buried in sand or blown out by the roots; cattle and horses have died by the thousands of hunger and thirst; wells, springs and streams have dried up and all the while there has been no abatement of tax-burdens and no let up of the national depression.

Little wonder, then, that a victim, albeit a poet as well, unleashes his Muse and tells the world about it in rhyme and rhythm. His poetry may sound a bit rough and yet we are sure that he does not mean to be profane. It is only his way of being emphatic. Listen to a couple of his stanzas—

I live in a land away out west;
It isn't a land, it's only a jest;
Where the Russian thistle always grows
And the last time it rained, God only knows;
Where the only perfume is the barnyard smell,
Where the sand flies thick and it blows,
Where the oats are wild and the grass is dry
And there's never a cloud in the virgin sky;
Where the sun is hot and burns like sin—
O it's a helluva country I live in.

I live in a land where business is bum,
Where the crooks are smart and the honest dumb;
Where money would talk if it had its fling
But we never hear it say a thing.
O it's a land where milk and honey flows
But the milk is sour and the honey's froze;
Where the politicians are racketeers
They've stolen us blind for twenty years;
They've stolen our gold and stolen our tin;
O it's a helluva country I live in.

OUR CANDIDATES

JAMES H. RICHMOND

Frankfort, Ky., March 7.—James Howell Richmond, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, was born April 17, 1884, at Ewing, Virginia. He was educated at Lincoln Memorial University and at the University of Tennessee. In 1907 he was married to Pearl J. Thompson, of Louisville. He is the father of two children.

In the November, 1931 election, Richmond was elected Superintendent of Public Instruction, the office he now holds, by the largest majority of any of the candidates on the Democratic ticket. When he took office in 1932, he did not re-organize the department, remarking that "the politicians have come to recognize that the department of Education must be kept out of politics."

Richmond opposed the 1932 act making the office of county school superintendent elective instead of appointive. He was one of the staunchest supporters of the school code made law by the 1934 legislature.

During his term of office, Richmond has been an advocate of economy in school administration and has pleaded for additional funds to place Kentucky schools on a par with those of other states.

The Kentucky Educational Commission was created in 1932 at Richmond's suggestion and through his aid obtained private financial support for its study of the state's school needs. When, in January, 1933, Richmond was elected president of Murray State Teachers College, he declined to accept the position until after the commission had completed its work. Later he turned down the school presidency. Richmond led the pre-convention campaign in Kentucky in 1932 for Franklin D. Roosevelt. He served as a "four-minute man" during the World War and was an ardent supporter of President Wilson. In 1920 Richmond successfully sought election to Congress from Jefferson county. Before becoming superintendent of public instruction Richmond conducted a private school in Louisville. In 1928 he became high school supervisor for the state department of education. Previously he had served as teacher, supervisor, principal and school superintendent in Texas, Tennessee and Kentucky. He is a prominent Rotarian and a member of the Jefferson church.

ELAM HUDDLESTON

Frankfort, Ky., March 7.—Elam Huddleston, state treasurer and a candidate for the Democratic nomination as Governor at the state convention in Lexington in May of this year, was born in Clinton County, Kentucky on May 17, 1887.

The was elected state treasurer on the ticket with Governor Ruby Laffoon, in November, 1931. He was educated at Bowling Green and in 1912 was married to Ruby Armstrong, of Albany, Ky. He has a daughter, Margaret Elizabeth Huddleston.

Huddleston served as cashier of a bank at Albany for ten years, during which time he studied law. He served as a state bank examiner under Governor A. O. Stanley, resigning this position to become vice-president of the First National Bank of Louisville. In recent years he has been engaged in the investment banking business in Louisville.

Mr. Huddleston espoused specific principles in his formal announcement, foremost of which is the elimination of all property taxes and retention of the sales tax, exempting essential foods from the sales levy. He advocates an income tax, old-age pensions, uniform teachers' certificate and uniform labor laws, making alterations favorable to labor.

ORCHARD GRASS GROWN

ON WASHINGTON'S FARM

Orchard grass, one of Kentucky's favorite pasture crops, also was a favorite of George Washington on his Mt. Vernon estate. He recommended it highly in 1797 as a companion crop with red clover for hay, because the two bloomed at the same time, its quick recovery after cutting and its palatability to both cattle and horses, notes Dr. E. N. Fergus of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

Orchard grass has the ability to grow on rather poor soils as well as on highly fertile land, makes a good early spring and late fall growth, and withstands drought when once established. These qualities appeals to Kentucky farmers and make it a favorite pasture crop.

The reason orchard grass is not more widely used for hay is due to the fact that it often is cut too late, Dr. Fergus believes. If cut not later than full bloom it makes good hay, and cut slightly earlier makes a good dairy cattle feed. If grown with adapted red clover, which is a good companion crop, the hay is improved.

In some regions orchard grass is used as a companion crop with alfalfa. It is liked for this purpose because of its long life, its maturity with the first crop of alfalfa, the excellency of the mixed hay and the high value of the mixture for pasture. It also helps to prevent soil washing and leaching. Dr. Fergus says it appears better than any other grass as a companion crop with lespedeza.

Much of the orchard grass seed used in this country is produced in Oldham, Jefferson and Shelby counties.

CARS OR HOMES

Last week we ran onto an editorial in the Sioux City Tribune that was so full of interesting figures that we are reproducing it for the benefit of our readers. The editorial, concerning the buying of automobiles and the building of home, says:

"Washington has generated a vast amount of steam on the housing question—with relatively small results. Washington's enthusiasm for home building does not seem to carry beyond the confines of some steam-heated office.

"There must be a reason. What is it?

"This year the American people have purchased 80 per cent more automobiles than they bought last year. No special effort was made to sell them. They wanted and needed new cars, felt they could spare the money or assume the obligation to pay for them and so they bought them.

"More people have had jobs, more money has been circulating this year, there has been a general feeling of greater security, yet there has been no appreciable increase in investment for permanent living. Why did they buy cars instead of homes?

"Perhaps there is something in the record of the automobile industry for the building industry to ponder.

"Twenty-five years ago the average cost of an automobile was $1,662. In 1934 the average cost per car is $678. And the 1934 car is not to be compared with a 1909 model for beauty, durability, usefulness and cost of operation.

"In 1909 the average cost of a one-family house was $2,173. In 1934 the average to date for a one-family house has been $4,020.

"Granted that the 1934 house is a better structure from the standpoint of heating, insulation, plumbing, etc., than the 1909 building, the difference in cost cannot be attributed to that.

"It seems to this newspaper that the reason people buy cars and neglect homes lies in the fact that the automobile industry has put its product within the reach of the masses while home ownership has been put beyond the reach of the average family.

"The average family demands both a home and a motor car, and first satisfies the want which can be filled without too great a strain on the family purse.

"And our own guess is that home building will continue to lag until family incomes are brought up to the point where they will support both homes and automobiles and that until such time purchases of new cars will continue to exceed construction of homes."

Plan now to have the chicks hatched not later than April. March and April are the favorite hatching months. Leghorns begin laying when 5 to 6 months old, and the heavier breeds when 6 to 7 months old. April hatched chicks should lay in October.

Good seed is the first essential to a good potato crop. Then comes consideration of soil and fertilizer. See a county agent regarding good seed and fertilizer. Recent tests indicate that the fertilizer should be placed to the sides and a little distance from the seed pieces.

The pig crop last fall was 48 per cent under that of the fall of 1933, and a substantial decrease is expected in the spring crop. The government reports that summer slaughter this year may be the smallest in 25 years.

The new agriculture is furthering the adoption of business methods, since contracts are made and records required of sales and other transactions. Some one member of the family should be encouraged to be the bookkeeper and devote considerable time to keeping complete records.

The fattening qualities of Irish potatoes probably have been exaggerated. Who ever saw a fat Irishman? Baked potatoes are among the most nourishing, economical and easily digested of the more common foods.

See a county or home demonstration agent for help in making good bacon when butchering hogs. Methods have been so improved in recent years that first-class bacon can be made at home, with comparatively little effort and expense.

Scrape the brooder house thoroughly, brush it out and scrub it with scalding water before the chicks are put in it. The addition of a pound of lye to each 30 to 40 gallons of hot water will help to clean and disinfect it.

Do not overlook the importance of thoroughly chilling the carcass when butchering hogs. First-class cured products can be prepared only from chilled carcasses. Killing on warm days should be avoided unless it is possible to cool out the carcass at night.

Cream may be churned equally well whether sour or sweet. When sweet there is less chance of off flavors in the butter. It is especially convenient to have high-class sweet cream butter during the winter months.

A revised catalog has been issued describing the farm building and equipment plans available at the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Persons who intend to build should study this catalog and order plans suitable to their needs.

When meals are carefully planned, only one-sixth to one-fifth of the total food cost need go for meat, fish and eggs. However, unless meat buying is done with care a much larger proportion of the food budget will be spent for these products.

MARRIED PERSONS

MAY ATTEND SCHOOL IS OPINION JUST RENDERED

Any ruling to prohibit married persons from attending common school in Kentucky would be "arbitrary and unreasonable" and "void," Assistant Attorney General William H. Atkinson ruled yesterday.

In a ruling for Supt. J. W. Bradner of Middleboro, Atkinson held married persons were entitled to attend the common schools of Kentucky and cited the Kentucky statutes holding that "any child between the ages of 6 and 18 years of age has the privilege of attending common schools and providing further that nothing shall prevent any person over 18 years of age from attending common schools without contributing to their support."

Bradner also asked whether a board of education had a legal right to enact a ruling preventing married students from attending school, declaring there is a "growing tendency on the part of young people to disregard parental rights; also to look lightly upon social conduct."

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for his foster daughter could not smother his childhood from the hatred of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affairs ended in the divorce court, and ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to a baseball game. A ball that threw the bleachers, struck Penelope on the nose and the neurotic Mrs. Gatlin removed her from the hospital to which her former husband had hurried her. Mrs. Gatlin spirited the child to Europe. Penelope returned from Europe, and Penelope all his money, and was about to begin a life with his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II.—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a rising young psychiatrist, was presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a terrible childhood and left her with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" was in part responsible. McNamara did not think she was a reasonable criminal and obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Even Lanny, the doctor's faithful nurse, was won over to her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III.—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's clear explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny visited her and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter, which she wrote to her mother, her handbag outside the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV.—Nance escaped, although shot, by swimming out to a speed-boat, manned by friends and went to Lanny's apartment. Lanny told Chief McNamara, who ordered her to bring Nance to his apartment and phoned for Doctor Burt.

CHAPTER V.—One of the men in the boat on which Nance escaped—two of them ex-convicts, the other a bootlegger—had been wounded and they went to Burt's office, where McNamara found them. The bootlegger he let go and the wounded man to his home, ordering the uninjured one to care for Nance and his pal. From then he learned that Nance's real name was Penelope Gatlin. Detective Sergeant Flynn and Angellotti, seeking the reward offered for Nance's apprehension, went to Lanny's apartment in search of Nance. Looking over her San Quentin record McNamara found a blank check on a San Jose bank.

CHAPTER VI.—From the San Jose banker McNamara learned that the girl he knew as Nance Belden was Penelope Gatlin, daughter of the dead banker. The banker did not know Penelope's whereabouts. Mrs. Gatlin was now the wife of a man named Merford McNamara ordered Detective Sergeant Flynn and Angellotti to "lay off" Lanny, whom they suspected of harboring Nance. The detectives trailed Doctor Burt when he went to McNamara's house to treat her gunshot wound but Nance and the two men who helped her escape saw them first and fled.

CHAPTER VII.—When Lanny got home one evening she found Nance sound asleep, curled up on her guest-room bed. Several days later, the hard-boiled exterior of Nance Belden suddenly vanished and the girl became the refined Penelope Gatlin. Her partially restored memory led her to tell Lanny of her wealthy father, Theodore Gatlin, and of her childhood in France. Fearing his detectives would locate Penelope, McNamara furnished her with tear and stink bombs and told her how to use them to escape if they did. She uses the bombs, and gets away. Flynn and Angellotti continued hot on Nance's trail—and McNamara's.

Following some discussion of the report, McNamara dismissed him, and sat down to decide what to do with Nance Belden. That Flynn and Angellotti were keeping his house under surveillance he knew now; undoubtedly they would enter his house at the earliest favorable opportunity.

The chief wondered what he would do if he stood in the shoes of his two detectives. "I'd wait for a night when I wouldn't be disturbed for a couple of hours," he decided. "What night would that be? Why, Thursday night, when the board of police commissioners meet and I am in attendance there. Stephen will make his usual early evening call—and as soon as he leaves the house those two will slip into it. The cellar door, of course. I'll make it easy for them. I'll leave the door unlocked."

He concluded that until then, Nance would be safe at Lanny's house. In the meantime, however, he must arrange to get her out of the city at an early date. The detectives were both absolutely satisfied Lanny had once given Nance sanctuary for a brief period; trust them, therefore, to keep an eye on Lanny's house.

He had in his office a telephone line that did not connect with the private exchange system in the central station, so he called Lanny on his phone at Doctor Burt's office now.

"Dan speaking, Lanny. Tomorrow morning you had better buy our pet nuisance a lot of clothes, so she'll be all ready to get out of town when I send for her. I think I'll have to fly her out and down to Tia Juana, Lower California."

"What will she do there?"

"I don't know. We'll think about that when she gets there. At least my two dicks won't be there and Tia Juana is one place where that saddle nose of hers won't surprise anybody. And when she acts rough and tough in Tia Juana nobody will pay any attention to her. They have experts down there in that line."

"I'll think that Tia Juana stunt over," Lanny decided. "It has possibilities. Is there a good hospital there?"

"I don't think so. Why?"

"You numbskull, Dan McNamara! We have to find a quiet hospital where we can have her poor nose operated on."

"Well, if we can get her beeper restored and change that black bob of hers to a movie-tone gold, she could take Flynn and Angellotti out to dinner and they'd never suspect her."

"Stevie says her nose must be operated on first. Her present state of dissociated personality probably started in an inferiority complex, and the inferiority complex probably arose out of the knowledge that her nose made her unlovely. When it's safe to bring her back to this city, Stevie will take her out and look at it, dust it off, put it back and do a Little Jack Horner."

"Can he do that?" McNamara's heavy voice was freighted with awe.

"He can, provided he can find a starting point for his investigation into her past life. There is always a reason for a dissociated personality. The ground for the mental shock that causes it is usually prepared long before the psychosis occurs. Rebellious thoughts, unhappiness, brooding—all these eventually have a serious effect upon sensitive and highly intelligent people and particularly, women of the hysterical type."

"All women are hysterical," McNamara said with conviction.

"You're a dear boob, Dan. Eight women out of ten can throw a fit of hysterics as easily as you'd break an egg, particularly if there is a man to be impressed. They never simulate hysterics to impress a woman, however, because they know better. However, there are women who have hysterics that are real, but it has been the experience of this office that most of these are just a trifle balmy—neurotics."

"Well, you get our girl a trousseau and warn her to keep away from the window and not to answer the doorbell, or do any telephoning, or leave the house until she has my permission. I don't expect she'll obey, so tonight when you go home have some hysterics to impress her."

"Dan, dear, I couldn't. I'm hard as a picnic egg. Did you stage your little comedy after leaving us last night?"

"I did—and it worked out exactly."

"Good gracious. Well, I'm busy. Good-by."

Nance Belden's personalities were a source of keen professional interest to Lanny, who regretted that for the present Doctor Burt was unable to share her observations with her. She had, as yet, had no opportunity for ascertaining anything regarding the girl's past history, but she had a suspicion that Nance had had advantages superior to most girls.

Her hands were the very first thing (with the exception of her poor wrecked nose) that Lanny had noticed. They were soft, shapely, small and well kept, decidedly not the hands of a factory girl. While her vocabulary was a trifle "salty," running at times to the idiom of the ill bred and ignorant, her voice was soft, with well bred intonations. Her clothing, on the occasion of her visit to Stephen Burt's office, had been, in Lanny's judgment, in splendid taste; rich but not flashy, up to the mode but not beyond it. Then, too, Nance had a slow, leisurely walk, she knew how to enter a room, she was sure of herself at all times without display assurance. To Lanny, the girl, in his abandoned moments, appeared to be amateurish; a bit of a showoff, unreal.

Thus far she had observed the girl only in this showoff phase of her personality. She was amazed, therefore, on coming home from the office after her conversation with McNamara, to find her a complete chameleon. As she entered the house she caught the odor of cooking, and going into the kitchen, she discovered Nance, with one of Lanny's kitchen aprons on her, preparing dinner.

"Good evening, Lanny dear," she saluted her hostess. "It occurred to me it must be a very great trial to you, coming home night after night from the office, tired, and having to prepare dinner for yourself. I'm sure you're too tired most of the time to prepare more than a very sketchy meal, and that isn't good for you." She smiled. "So I thought I'd have a nice dinner for you."

"Now, I call that real sweet, Nance."

"My name isn't Nance, Lanny. It's Penelope."

"Penelope what? Silly old Lanny, how could you forget?"

"You've placed your finger on my dread secret, Penelope. When I'm tired my memory fails me."

Lanny knew that during the day a psychological door had opened and Nance Belden, otherwise personality B, the abnormal, had walked through it and emerged Penelope Gatlin, or personality A, the normal. Also, she knew now that Penelope Gatlin probably had more or less amnesia for her former personality as Nance Belden. Lanny had heard Doctor Burt discuss such rare cases and she glowed with pride in the knowledge that at least he had secured a perfect specimen.

"I decided we wouldn't have broiled lamb chops, Lanny," the girl went on brightly. "So I've made a ragout."

"You mean, in good old Americanese, you've concocted an Irish stew."

"You're so amusing, Lanny. A stew, of course. The difference between a stew and a ragout is entirely geographic. A ragout is French, an Irish stew is the United States."

"Have you lived in France?"

"Eight years, Lanny. Went to school in Switzerland and learned French there."

"Are your people French?"

"I think I was there alone." The girl appeared puzzled. "I don't remember my mother, but I had a father. He was such a dear, but he's dead."

"Were you happy there?"

"No, I was perfectly miserable."

"Why?"

"Because my father wasn't with me. We'd been such pals."

"But you must have lived with somebody."

"There was Laurette, the cook, and Babette, the maid."

"Did you graduate?"

"No, I left school when father died. He was killed in a motor accident en route to Europe. I've always had a feeling he was coming over to see his Penelope. He loved me very much, Lanny. He was adorable. He used to tell me that I was all that made his life bearable. Somebody—I forgot who—told me he wasn't my real father, that I was a foundling he adopted. I wouldn't believe that at first, but when I read his will I knew it was so."

"What sort of woman was his wife—or did he have one?"

"I haven't the slightest idea, but I remember the will stated very positively that he had settled with her, that she had accepted the settlement in full satisfaction of her dower rights, and he made my income from the trust just sufficient to support me decently until I should come of age. He said in his will that he did this not because of any lack of affection for me, but because if he made me an excessive allowance, his divorced wife would have control of it during my minority. He must have despised her."

"Well, if she could have control of your income during your minority, she must have been your adopted mother," the practical Lanny reasoned. "And you must have lived with her following the divorce. That's why you didn't see your father in Europe. You must have been there with your foster mother, Laurette, the cook, and Babette, the maid, argue an establishment. Do you remember everything that has happened to you since that day Dan McNamara brought you to Doctor Burt's office?"

"Perfectly."

"Ever have funny thoughts about it?"

"The girl stared at her shrewdly. "How strange that you should ask that question, Lanny. I do have funny thoughts. Sometimes I'm horrified at the memory and could die of shame; at other times it seems perfectly all right, but those are the times when I've been nervous and sleepless; sometimes I think there's something wrong with me, because people often refer to me as Nance Belden and to things I've done and which I know very well I haven't done. And yet it seems to me sometimes as if I had—just a wraith of memory, like an old dream. But still I'm strong and healthy."

"But a little given to spells of nervousness?"

"I'm moody." The girl seemed interested in herself to an unusual degree. "Some days I like to do things that are perfectly intolerable to me on other days. Some days I'm so democratic I could go out to dinner with a garbage man—other times I can't bear to be with anybody but nice people."

She sighed and turned to inspect her savory ragout. "I wish I knew what I wanted in life and I wish I knew somebody that wanted me. Of course I can pay my way through life, but it's terrible to be lonely, Lanny."

She faced Lanny again. "Now, when I decided to cast myself on your hospitality, Lanny, it seemed to me the most natural thing in the world to do. But today I'm covered with confusion. I've deliberately imposed myself upon your peace and privacy."

"Listen here, Penny, my dear. You aren't the only lonely woman in the world. Believe it or not, the first spring buttercup isn't a bit more welcome in old lady Lanning's house than you are."

The lost one beamed upon her. "I believe that Lanny. Oh, Lanny, when I'm happy I'm so happy and when I'm wretched I'm so wretched."

"You think too much about that pose of yours, my poor child."

The girl's hand flew to that organ (automatically, Lanny thought) as if she would hide it. "Isn't it terrible?" she quavered. "I'm so ugly nobody can ever love me."

"Quit that," Lanny commanded in her most ferocious manner. "If I hadn't found you lovable I wouldn't have you in my house this minute. I'd turn you over to Flynn and Angellotti. By the way," she continued, "show did you get that sock on the beeper?"

"Father took me to a baseball game and a long drive flew into the bleachers and struck me on the nose, Lanny, you mustn't use slang. It isn't polite."

"I wrap myself around a highball when I'm tired or want to be sociable, and I smoke cigarettes," Lanny protested. "I suppose a perfect lady wouldn't do those things, either?"

"A perfect lady may without marring her perfection, old fuss-budget. That's a matter of personal liberty, and only becomes distressing when carried to excess. But there's no excuse for a highly intelligent and cultured woman to employ the language of the streets."

"I have my human moments," Lanny excused herself meekly.

"I'll set the table in the dining room. Won't you order some flowers? And Lanny—I'll do something for you some day."

"For instance?"

"Well, have you ever been to Europe?"

"Certainly not."

"Then I'll take you."

"I accept the nomination. In return I'll do something else for you. I'll have that pose of yours split open, the shattered bone of the bridge scraped out and a cute little piece of pliable cartilage whittled off one of your spare ribs, and grafted into your funny nose to form a new bridge. Then the doctor will sew your nose together again over it."

"What's the difference between having a nose like a Pekinese and a makeshift with a big scar on it, I'd like to know?"

"Oh, there won't be any scar, dearie. The surgeon will cut a strip of epidermis off your forehead and without detaching it from your forehead, bring the flap down, drape it over your new scarred nose and graft it there. It will grow and cover the scar, and when everything's lovely, that skin connection with your forehead will be severed and the ragged edges trimmed and presently nature will do the rest. Six months after the operation I'll defy anybody but an expert to discover you've got a custom-made nose."

"The girl's eyes shone. "Is it true, Lanny, is it true? It's so hard to believe in miracles."

"Science pulls 'em off daily, my dear."

Nance changed the subject. "Here, here, we're gabbling like a pair of geese. The linen, woman, where's the linen? Off with your hat and coat."

"Yes, Well, when the doorbell rings, you answer it. That will be Nance's tip to peek out the second story window and lob three bombs down on the cement beside whoever she sees standing there. They explode with a sound like a gunshot and diffuse their gas almost instantly over a considerable area. Now, whichever one goes to the back door will never be expecting a citizen to shower this sort of bomb down on him, because they are not accessible to citizens; so he will think they're electric light bulbs tossed down to scare him away. By the way, have Nance toss one electric light bulb down first and then follow with two tear bombs—here, I'll make a mark with my pencil on the tear bombs. Before he realizes what has happened he'll be weeping like Niobe and unable to see anything in the darkness."

"But bear this in mind, Lanny. He'll not desert his post. He'll hug the back door and be ready to grab her when she comes. He'll stick it out. That's the time Nance must drop a stink bomb beside him."

"Meanwhile the man in front will hear the explosions. If the one in back tries out, the one in front will figure he has been shot and will run to the back door to help him. As he opens the back door his pal will grab him. You must follow at his heels and shut and bolt the door instantly, or you'll get yours, too. There will be a momentary struggle between Flynn and Angellotti in the dark because the front door man will think he has the scoundrel that hurled the bombs; and by the time they discover each other's identity, the front door man will be as sightless and ill as the back door man."

"Nance, a word to you now."

"My name is Penelope Gatlin, Dan."

"My error, Penelope, the instant you drop those first two bombs, shut down the window. And, remember, all the lights in the rear of the house and particularly in the kitchen must be turned off. When the front door man is struggling with his pal and Lanny has closed the door, her scream will give your cue to open the window again, just long enough to pay the rest of your eyes on the scrimmage. You must be dressed for the street and have some money in your pocket. Got any?"

"No."

"Here's two hundred."

"I'll send you my check. Thanks. And she took the money."

"Immediately after tossing the last of the bombs, close the window and beat it downstairs and out the front door, I'll leave a coupe, with the motor running, parked at the curb across the street. Can you drive?"

"I can drive, Dan."

"Very well, then. Climb into the car and beat it."

"Beat it where?"

"Los Angeles, San Diego, anywhere. Keep on going, and when you get there, send me a wire to the central station merely giving your address. Then lay low until somebody comes after you. Keep off the street, Lanny, you must disguise her nose. Clamp a wadding of cotton and a neat dressing over it to hide the dish in it. Any lady is liable to have an injury to her nose and wear a dressing on it. Now, is everything understood?"

Nance nodded, and Lanny's silence gave consent. "You'll probably get a whiff of what's good for Flynn and Angellotti," McNamara advised Lanny, "but you'll get over it. When you lob over the last of your rotten eggs, Penelope, do not breathe, and close your eyes tightly until you have closed the window again. Then—out of the house like a shot. This plan of mine is fool-proof if followed absolutely, but it's you for San Quentin again if it isn't, my brave lassie, and all the chiefs of police in town cannot help you then."

"Now, I'll tell you exactly how they'll make the pinch. They'll not come during the day, because they'll know you aren't at home and that Nance wouldn't answer that bell anyhow. But tonight, one of them will ring the front doorbell and shove the search warrant under your nose and step inside. The other will, in the meantime, have gone around to your back door to prevent the girl's escape in that direction. There's a cement floor around your kitchen door, is there not?"

"Yes, Well, when the doorbell rings, you answer it. That will be Nance's tip to peek out the second story window and lob three bombs down on the cement beside whoever she sees standing there. "My name is Penelope Gatlin, Dan."

"My error, Penelope, the instant you drop those first two bombs, shut down the window. And, remember, all the lights in the rear of the house and particularly in the kitchen must be turned off. When the front door man is struggling with his pal and Lanny has closed the door, her scream will give your cue to open the window again, just long enough to pay the rest of your eyes on the scrimmage. You must be dressed for the street and have some money in your pocket. Got any?"

"No."

"Here's two hundred."

PLANS AMPLIFIED IN ELECTRICAL SURVEY

Louisville, Ky.—Extension of the Rural Electrification Survey now in progress by the Kentucky Emergency Relief Administration to include a vast amount of information not outlined in the original plan was announced today by H. Pect, Jr., state engineer in charge. The original survey, Mr. Pect said, was set up to include such information as would aid the Federal Government in ultimately bringing power to the Kentucky farmer in the event the survey shows on its face such a plan is workable.

Additional information sought by the survey as outlined by Mr. Pect will show whether the prospect is white or colored; whether or not the home contains sanitary plumbing; the approximate amount the farmer would be willing to spend in wiring and equipment in the event electricity is brought within his reach; the amount the farmer would be willing to pay per month for wiring and appliances; the maximum amount the farmer would be willing to pay for current per month; the horse power of any existing gas or oil engines, exclusive of tractors on the farm.

Mr. Pect pointed out that the fact the K. E. R. A. is conducting the survey is not conclusive assurance the government will construct the power lines or from what source electricity will be drawn. The survey, he said, is being carried on with the full cooperation and support of power companies now operating in Kentucky.

HAWKS ARE FRIENDS

(Courier-Journal)

Because quail were scarce this fall in Arkansas, some hunters put the blame on hawks and tried to stir up a war on the big birds. The Arkansas Gazette pointed out that the only exhaustive and complete study of the food of American birds of prey was made by Dr. A. K. Fisher of the United States Biological Survey and that of all the hawks, the only injurious ones found in Kentucky as well as Arkansas—were the Cooper's and sharp-shinned hawk, two smaller but exceedingly fierce marauders which are commonly called "The darters." Three others also called injurious are to be found in this region while thirty-one other species of hawks were classed as useful, being destroyers of rats, mice, rabbits, rodents and snakes, classed as vermin.

As a general rule, the hawks which soar are friends of man. They do exact toll in the form of a game bird or chicken now and then, but they kill far fewer than rats, and the hawks are the rats' worst enemy. In the South the marsh hawk is considered most beneficial. This is the bird with the white patch at the base of its tail. One illustration may show how valuable they are. On a large quail preserve these birds had a roost. Twelve hundred regurgitated pellets were examined and these contained the remains of 900 cotton rats and four quail. Cotton rats are destroyers of quail eggs and young birds.

The large red-tailed hawk, also mis-called "hen hawks," so common in Kentucky where it is not murdered, is 85 percent beneficial, and the red-shouldered hawk almost as great a destroyer of men's enemies.

The big hawks do not destroy quail but rodents on which hawks principally feed. But nothing in nature kills so many game birds as man.

Dairy and sheep raisers of Barren county are boosting use of korean lespedeza.

Loan Policy

THE right kind of a bank is just as anxious to make good loans as the manufacturer, merchant or farmer is to sell his products.

This Bank welcomes every opportunity to make sound loans to its depositors whether the amounts required be large or small.

The point that many would-be-borrowers overlook, however, is that the money a bank lends is not the bank's nor the banker's—it is the depositors' money.

Hence, a bank must investigate the guarantees given by the borrower very carefully.

FINDS BANKS WILLING, BORROWERS CAUTIOUS

Prominent Writer Refutes Statements Bankers Are Refusing Sound Loans—Describes Reasons for Reduced Volume of Credit.

FIGURES supplied by typical, well-managed banks in different parts of the country show that a high proportion of all applications for loans have been granted in the past year or two, says Albert W. Atwood in a recent article in The Saturday Evening Post on "The Idle Dollar." Excerpts from Mr. Atwood's article follow:

"Frequently banks state that as high as 90 per cent of all such applications are granted and for from 60 to 75 per cent of the amount asked for. Allowing that the bankers make these figures as favorable to their own case as possible, it seems strange that we are told again and again that banks are not lending at all.

"If we take into account the whole class of regular bank borrowers, the plain fact is very few want to borrow yet. For the word 'borrow' is merely another name for the word 'debt,' and we face a great world-wide drive to get out of debt.

"An experienced small-city banker, asked if banks were lending freely enough, wisely replied: 'The really good borrower does not wish to borrow now. In fact, I think our customers are making a remarkably fine showing in paying off their loans, especially loans of long standing.'

The Shrinkage of Credit
"Or if we think of business concerns rather than of individuals, it is conservative to say that those able to maintain high credit ratings have been mostly the ones able to maintain ample cash resources and, therefore, least in need of credit. As prices and costs fell, many concerns found themselves with plenty of cash because of the shrinkage in operations. Cash resources were still further swollen by reduced dividends, and smaller inventories. made bank borrowing still less necessary.

"Expressed in another way, banks cannot expand credit, they cannot make loans, unless there is a demand for the same. Fundamentally, the business transaction makes the loan, the loan does not make the transaction. It is a mistake to try to force upon business organizations funds which they do not need. Under the circumstances the 'idle dollar' is a natural and proper enough phenomenon. A demand for credit is difficult to create artificially, and there is always danger in so doing. "Banks must be liquid enough at all times to pay depositors. The idea of a commercial loan is that it represents a self-liquidating process in business. If the banker makes only those advances that are inherently sound, and selects his maturities wisely, he will have incoming funds to meet demands.

Government Lending
"As everybody knows, the Government has vast lending agencies, for home owners, farmers, and the like. These have nothing to do with the subject of this article, except that all such Government operations would be impossible if the banks did not lend the Government money for the purpose. "No one can set a time when borrowing will be resumed. But it will come when men once more feel that conditions are sufficiently settled to warrant them in taking chances, in entering upon deals, and in trying to make money."

Mr. Atwood says that it may be that the banks are overcautious now, just as they were overconfident in 1929, but calls attention to the fact that until a little more than a year ago banks were failing "partly because they had loaned too freely, and were being criticized right and left for precisely that fault." He adds:

"Indeed the banks which had been cautious in their lending policy came through the crisis safely. Under such conditions it is utterly useless to criticize banks for not making loans. After the experience they had for several years, especially in 1932 and 1933, it is only natural that they should relax their requirements very slowly and gradually.

"Unfortunately, many of the applications for loans are not people who want temporary banking accommodation for three or six months and are quite able to meet their maturity dates, but are from those who really need permanent capital. They are busted and they want someone to stake them to a new start. What they really seek is a partner to furnish them with long-time capital. But depositors insist upon being paid on demand, and, therefore, it is a grave question whether banks should tie up their funds for any length of time."

OVER A FOURTH OF KY. BABIES

ARE BORN IN FAMILIES ON RELIEF—16,964 BORN IN 1934

A survey recently completed by the Kentucky Emergency Relief Administration shows that 29.24 per cent of all the babies born in the state in 1934 were born to families on relief rolls.

According to figures of the State Board of Health, 58,000 children were born in Kentucky in 1934. The survey made by the KERA shows that of this number, 16,964 came into 103,924 relief families.

Another interesting fact the KERA survey shows is that within the 103,924 relief families there are 95,608 children under the age of six years. Figures upon the basis of five persons to the family, 18.4 per cent of all persons on relief in Kentucky are under the age of six years.

Out of the 16,964 births to relief families the KERA paid for 5,458 deliveries of 32.2 per cent. Of the remaining 67.8 per cent, 25 per cent of the deliveries were made by purported midwives, which leaves 42.8 per cent of the relief babies that came into the world with little or no expert assistance.

In many instances, KERA social workers have found husband had delivered wife, and mother had delivered daughter of her baby. It is not an uncommon sight, they said, to see a mother going about her house work the second day after the birth of her child.

"These children," George H. Goodman, state administrator for Kentucky, said, "have a right to expect adequate provision for their welfare and future. The health and welfare of these children marks the future of Kentucky and brings us to ponder the enormity of the job we face."

BURLINGTON

WINS SECOND PLACE IN REGIONAL MEET AT DAYTON GYM.

As winner and runners-up of the 37th District Tournament the Burlington and Hamilton High School Boys teams represented the District in the Regional Meeting held at the Dayton, Ky., High School Gym. The Regional Meeting was held the latter part of last week. While our Boone county boys did not succeed in winning the opportunity of going to the State Meet at Lexington they performed in a very creditable manner and let their opponents know that they were in the Meet.

The Hamilton team drew the Covington High School as its first opponent. This was a hard luck drawing since Covington was considered as one of the strongest teams in the State. This game was played Friday night and resulted in Hamilton's defeat by a one-sided score. Hamilton was thus eliminated early in the contest.

The Burlington team drew as its first opponent the Morgan High School boys. This game was played Wednesday night and resulted in the defeat of the Morgan team by the score of 49 to 23. After a day's rest Burlington played the Ludlow High School, reputed to be the dark horse of the meet and a very strong contender. This game was played on Friday night and Ludlow was put out of the race by the local boys by the score of 27 to 21. In the meantime Newport High eliminated the Covington boys by a large score. This left Burlington to face the strong Newport team in the finals, which was held on Saturday night. This game decided the winners of the Tenth Regional when Burlington was defeated in a hard fought game by the score of 18 to 32.

In the awarding of the trophies Burlington received a trophy for runners-up in the Tenth Regional Tournament. The Burlington Team as a whole and Coach Moore are to be congratulated for the fine showing that was made at Dayton. This is especially true when the size of the local high school is taken in consideration with that of the leading opponents in the Meet. Everyone is proud of the 1935 boys' team of Burlington High School.

VERONA GIRL

WINS LOCAL COURIER-JOURNAL SPELLING CONTEST

Supt. D. H. Norris held the Boone County Courier-Journal Spelling match in the Court House Friday afternoon.

The schools which had grade pupils entered were Burlington, Hebron, Constance, Bellevue, Florence, New Haven, Hamilton and Verona.

Miss Elizabeth Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd Kennedy, of Verona, was the winner with Miss Ruth Kottmyer of the Constance school as second.

Miss Kennedy won the free trip to Louisville where she will enter the State Courier-Journal Spelling match, and we wish her success at Louisville.

DROUGHT APPARENTLY BROKEN

A fine rain descended upon Boone county and Northern Kentucky the past week, which relieved conditions in this section to some extent. The rain was just the right type to do the most good since most of it was absorbed in the ground as it fell. It had been a long, long time since a worthwhile rain had fallen here and conditions were becoming really serious. This applied particularly to wells, cisterns, and creek beds. The rains of the past few days filled the various creeks to overflowing, providing stock with plenty of water. Of course much more rain will be needed to saturate the soil to any depth, but once it has started, it may be that this section will receive its average rainfall. This of course will be the salvation for agriculture for the coming year.

Many Warren county farmers who did not cooperate in the tobacco adjustment program last year are signing contracts for 1935.

Mrs. Ida Balsley has been ill for the past few days at her home in Burlington.

ROSE UNION MEETS IN FLORENCE M. E. CHURCH

The Rose Union met at the Florence Methodist church for their March meeting Monday night.

There were fourteen members of the Burlington Union present. However, the general assembly was not as large as usual on account of the bad weather.

The guest speaker of the evening was Rev. Raymond Smith, of the Bellevue Baptist church.

Refreshments were served by the Florence Union.

HEAVY BLOW

DEALT TO NEPOTISM IN SCHOOLS

Nepotism in the public schools received a severe blow Monday when Assistant Attorney General William K. Atkinson held that two trustees of a subdistrict, could not name or recommend a person as teacher who was not legally eligible to be recommended by the third trustee.

Trustees are forbidden by statute to name or recommend certain relatives as teachers. According to complaints received frequently by the state department of education, the statute has been avoided since the number of trustees was increased from one to three.

The practice, according to the complaints, was for the two unrelated trustees to recommend for a teaching position a person related to the third trustee and whom the third trustee could not legally name.

FOOD HIGHER

PRICE OF FOODS HAS DOUBLED

Louisville housewives with fixed budgets for meat, eggs, butter, poultry, can stretch their money only half as far now as they could two years ago, a check of current prices against those of 1933 disclosed Thursday.

In some cases the cost of eating has more than doubled; in others not quite. But a rough average of the field yields a figure that is, for all practical purposes, two to one.

Here are a few of the straws in the new high-price wind:

Smoked ham is double.

Eggs are more than twice what they cost in 1933.

Creamery butter is just a trifle less than double its former cost, while the buying price of butterfat in Louisville is almost three times what it was in February 1933.

Beef rib roast is 40 per cent higher than 1933; pot roasts was up 30 per cent.

Turkeys now quoted at 18 cents wholesale, brought 6 to 12 cents in the second month of 1933.

Capons wholesale, are worth 17 cents a pound for seven-pounders and above. In 1933 they were bought at 12 cents.

Leghorn hens are up 25 per cent colored spring chickens 33 per cent. Declines in production account for some of the upswing; changes in dollar valuation for some.

Pork production in January reached and broke a 24-year-old record, while processing taxes added $2.25 to the cost of each hundredweight. Drought last summer boosted prices of beef on the hoof, and consequently retail prices.

Co-operative organizations are a factor in some rises, while many items, without production cuts are other basic reasons for price rises, merely tagged along with a generally climbing market.

PRODUCERS

TO SIGN MARKETING CARDS FOR 1934

Tobacco marketing cards for 1934 which brings the second adjustment or third payment to producers who signed tobacco contracts in 1934 are being rapidly signed at the County Agents Office. Notices mailed to each contract signer requested that any excess tobacco above a reasonable amount to be retained for smoking and chewing, be rendered unmerchantable immediately. This should be done before a Committeeman visits your farm to save time and expense of the Association. Community Committeemen have been visiting farms known to have excess tobacco and if the producer had rendered the tobacco unmerchantable, the committeeman has given him a receipt which shows the number of pounds and the method employed in rendering the tobacco unmerchantable.

If a producer has no excess tobacco, the marketing card should be signed at the first opportunity as a delay in signing the marketing card means a delayed second adjustment payment.

BEST KNOWN

GOVERNOR IS OUR OWN LAF-FOON

The best known chief executive in the United States is Gov. Ruby Laffoon, writes George Tucker in his column of New York chitchat for the Associated Press.

"It's like this," wrote Tucker: "If you want to become the best known governor in the United States, you should get yourself elected in a state which confers upon celebrities certain honorary commissions."

"Governor Laffoon, of Kentucky did, and today (in New York, at least) is better known than any other governor—Mr. Lehman excepted of course."

An usual system of values came to light in local high schools on a recent day when students were requested to write down the names of all the governors they could call to mind. Mr. Laffoon won going away, his margin being 3 to 1 over any rival. An explanation of this may be gleaned from the statement of a lad chosen at random from the senior class.

"Everybody knows who Mister Laffoon is, don't they? He makes all his friends Kentucky Colonels."

TAX COMMISSIONER AND BOARD VISIT FRANKFORT

On Thursday of last week Wilton Stephens, Tax Commissioner, M. G. Martin, J. E. Gaines and Hugh Stephens, members of the Boone County Board of Equalization appeared before the State Tax Commission in an effort to prevent the 15 per cent increase on personal property asked by the State.

These men feel that their efforts were not in vain and that the State will accept the assessment as it is. Should the State attempt to place an extra levy on the assessment after receiving the second recap, the Tax Commissioner and Board intend to go before the State Board again and fight it.

WATER MAINS

WILL PROVIDE FLORENCE WITH CITY WATER

Short mention was made last week that the Movl Construction Company, Covington, was gradually extending the mains in the Florence water project. The mains have been laid along the Dixie Highway from the northern boundary line to about the fairgrounds. They have also been laid along Shelby Street. If favorable weather continues the construction company should be able to complete the work on time. Quite a number of side streets are yet to be laid.

This project will not only give the Florence residents city water which is chemically pure but will provide them with fire protection. It is reported that there will be about twenty fire-plugs and that they will be so located that ample fire protection will be provided by means of hose to all the homes in the town. If this is the case the fire insurance rates should be very materially lowered. Just how much will depend on the type and set-up of the fire apparatus which Florence is able to install at this time or in the near future. This problem will be taken up by the council at the proper time.

MILLION-DOLLAR

PRISON IS ADVOCATED BY GOV. LAFFOON

A proposal for construction of a million-dollar-prison in Kentucky for first offenders was outlined Tuesday by Governor Laffoon. The proposed prison would be built with funds the Governor said he hopes to obtain from the Federal Government.

The request for the $1,000,000 allotment was included by the Governor in his application to the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works for $1,953,500 for Kentucky. The money, the Gov. said, would be an outright gift for the purpose of aiding unemployment by providing work for persons now idle.

In addition to money for the prison project, the Gov. sought the following amounts for the following purpose: $219,500 for improvements at Eastern State Hospital at Lexington, including the erection of a new women's dormitory for $75,000; $135,000 for a dormitory at Central State Hospital at Lakeland; $200,000 for improvements at Western State Hospital at Hopkinsville, including the erection of an infirmary and two dormitories; $99,000 for improvements at the Kentucky Houses of Reform at Greendale, $50,000 of which would be used for a new dining hall; $300,000 for the erection of two dormitories at the State Feeble Minded Institute at Frankfort.

The location of the proposed new prison, the Governor said, has not been determined.

COST OF PROPERTY

The cost of owning property is still too high to encourage investment in real estate. Even at the present distress prices many who could afford to make such investments find themselves dissuaded, because when the taxes which must be paid are added to the interest upon the money, even at present low rates, the attractiveness of the investment is lost. Yet the property or home in question is obtainable at a price considerably below that which would be entailed in building at present prices.

RENTAL RATES RISING

Rental rates are rising and fewer concessions are being granted. This is especially true of the better grade apartments and homes. Rental rates for commercial and industrial properties are still low and irregular, but the last three months have brought about a stronger stand on the part of owners of these properties. They are willing to lease at low rates in many cases for a short time, but will not make long term leases on present levels.

All of this change in rental conditions is, we believe, indicative of the new stability that is coming into the general real estate market. It is a fact that while real estate stood the depression for a time, when it did cave it dropped so far that it was, until recently, completely out of relation to other business factors, bad as they were. This tendency toward a revival of normal relations to other known business factors is highly important and significant. The improvement in the rental situation, is a good omen of sound recovery.

TWO KINDS OF JUSTICE

German citizens must prefer American justice to the variety meted out to them in Germany. The alien carpenter, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted of the blackest deed in American criminal annals and sentenced to forfeit his life, appealed and his case will be heard in a higher court. Hauptmann, of course, was tried by a jury. The proceedings were public and the case was given the widest publicity.

Meanwhile, in Germany, two German women citizens, convicted in star chamber proceedings, of spying—revealing government secrets for a price—were sent to the block and had their heads chopped off. They had no trial by jury, according to our law and custom. They were granted no new trial. One man, Hitler, held their fate in his hand. He, a plebeian decreed death instead of life sentence because it so happened the women were socially prominent and of noble birth.

THE LITTLE MAN ## AND THE CODES

We note that the tobacco code has at last been adopted. We don't know what difference it is going to make in the price of cigarettes, if any. For that matter, we are not quite clear just what difference the codes in general have or are likely to make.

There are certain things in which it is reasonably easy to determine what "fair practice" consists of. It certainly is not fair practice to make a profit by paying wages below what the same workers could earn somewhere else, or by compelling them to work longer hours than do other businesses in the same line. But we have never been able to see it as unfair practice for the man who has special advantages of location, facilities or access to raw materials to profit by those advantages.

The small business man who lives in the rear or over his shop for example, and perhaps owns the property, ought not to be compelled to charge for his product as much as the big industry in the same line that has a heavy overhead burden of interest, taxes and rent. The most that the little fellow can do will make no appreciable dent in the big fellow's earnings, but if the big fellow can fix it so that the little fellow will have to charge out of all proportion to his expenses then it won't be long before the little men is put out of business. We hear complaints about the hardships they work on small business men, in many lines.

The coal mining, oil production, steel making, perhaps a number of other industries in which there is no material difference in the product, it may be all right to fix prices by means of a code. It would take a standing army ten times as big as the largest force America ever turned loose on the liquor bootleggers, to police the entire business and industrial system of the nation.

EDITING A NEWSPAPER

Editing a newspaper is a lot of fun—sometimes. Almost any one can edit a newspaper; if you don't believe it, ask the first man you meet on the street and he will probably tell you: "If I couldn't get out a better paper than that old sheet, I'd go jump in the Amargosa river."

And he might be right at that. I'm puzzled, however, about one thing—some asks: "What's in the paper tonight?" The answer is usually: "Nothing in it, never is."

And yet I've noticed when the carrier forgets to leave a paper at some subscriber's house, the telephone starts buzzing and a frosty voice starts buzzing over the wire: "Didn't you get out a paper tonight?"

Yes, editing a newspaper is a lot of fun. All you need is a sharp pair of shears, a paste pot, plenty of guts and a gun.

The best news stories seldom get in the paper. There is a reason. Most editors are firm believers that "self preservation is the first law of nature."

The editor who knows that it is impossible to please everybody has the right idea.

An editor should be like Rastus' mule. The mule was blind. One day Rastus sold his mule. The buyer failed to notice the mule was blind and in a few days came to Rastus complaining that the mule was blind. "Runs into everything," he wrathfully exclaimed.

"Dat mule ain't blind," protested Rastus. "Dat mule jess don't give a damn."

Editorial of the Week

WHY MISREPRESENT?

(Sallisaw, Okla.) Democrat

A man who deliberately misrepresents another has committed a grave offense. However, there have always been people in every community who delighted in leaving a false impression concerning some one, or some business, etc.

Some people will misrepresent their competitor, thinking that they will be the gainer, and might be for a while, but it will eventually become known, and when it does it always rebounds on the one who has thus acted.

We have seen innocent people suffer on account of a misrepresentation of their character, and in various other ways, all on account of some misstatement of some envious person. There is a golden rule which it would be well for us all to follow: "If you can't say something good about your neighbor, don't say anything."

You take most campaigns for office, and there are always a few who will stoop to misrepresent their opponent. This is wrong, and one reason why we have never had any desire to be candidate for office. You will hear one fellow speak, any you would think his opponent was the crookedest fellow in the world, and he will come along and tell you about the other fellow, and you just don't know which one is telling the truth. In such cases we wonder sometimes if they both are not right in their assertions. If they are, then both should go down in defeat.

Occasionally you will find a business man who will misrepresent his competitor, thinking he will get business that his competitor has been getting. He might succeed for a while, but when you find a fellow like this he will finally lose the confidence of the people; and when he does he is going to get a hard fall; and he deserves one and has it coming.

Let us be square with each other, and when we say anything about anybody, let it be the truth.

OUR CANDIDATES

(Since our nominee for governor will be selected in a primary, the Recorder is submitting a brief sketch of the record of each candidate. We thought this might be of some interest to the voters who will be called upon to make the decision. We will continue these biographies until all active candidates are included.—Editor).

BAILEY P. WOOTON

Frankfort, March 13.—A mountaineer by choice, Attorney General Bailey P. Wooton of Hazard, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination this year, is a native of Muhlenberg county, in Eastern Kentucky.

Wooton was born on May 21, 1871, was reared on a farm and educated in the public schools of Muhlenberg county. Later he attended Rochester Seminary and Lebanon University. He worked his way through college by alternately teaching and attending classes as a student.

In 1898 he was graduated from the legal department of Southern University and was admitted to the state bar at Hazard, in Southern Kentucky. He was elected Attorney General in 1931, assuming office in January, 1932.

Known more as "a listener" than a talker, Wooton avoided, as much as possible, participation in the factional controversies that featured the 1932, 1933 and 1934 sessions of the general assembly. Quiet-mannered and soft-spoken, his arguments before courts from the highest to the lowest in the land have been in a conversational tone rather than in the traditional oratorical style.

Wooton has devoted many years of his life to development of the mountain country of southeastern Kentucky. During his administration as principal of Hazard schools and as a member of the board of education he was instrumental in having erected six new school buildings.

In 1932 Wooton was elected chairman of the Democratic State Central Executive Committee. He was one of the original supporters in Kentucky of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. In 1916 he was a delegate to the convention that nominated Woodrow Wilson for the presidency.

Wooton was married in 1916 to Clara Collins. Two daughters, Kitty and Alice, were born to them. In addition, Wooton has a son, Thomas, as, by a former marriage.

Freak Egg Has

A Double Shell

Tip Martin of the Liberty section, tells us of a freak hen egg that he gathered last week. The egg was a little longer but not quite so big around as a goose egg. The outside shell was white and outside of an inner shell, which was of normal size, normally hard and yellowish, was both the white and yellow, but in the inside shell was only the yellow portion of an egg.—Sentinel-Echo, London.

Ten Living

Grandparents

Little Miss Patricia Ann Norris, the pretty little daughter born to Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Norris, of Middleburg, on January 26, has the unique distinction of having ten living grand parents. There are four grandparents, four great-grandparents and two great-great-grandmothers. This is quite unusual, for the ages range from 38 to 93 years and represent four generations.—Casey County News.

Banded Hawk Found in Union

The U. S. banded hawk found in Union county several weeks ago by Dan Staser, Morganfield, R. F. D. No. 2, was a Red-shouldered Hawk banded July 13, 1931 at Barrien, Michigan, by Roy Ferguson, according to information received by Mr. Staser from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Biological Survey.

By means of these numbered metal bands important investigations and other facts in the life histories of North American birds are being advanced, the letter to Mr. Staser explained.—Union County Advocate, Morganfield.

Old Map Found At Harrodsburg

An interesting old map of Salvisa as it was ninety-one years ago has come to light at the office of County Clerk Garnett Dean. The map, which had practically been forgotten except by a few persons, is dated July 12, 1818, and was drawn by Gen. Robert B. McAfee, noted among the early settlers of Mercer county, whose forebears were the original McAfees of pioneer fame.

Salvisa, twelve miles north of here, on the Louisville road, at one time bid fair to outstrip Harrodsburg, as it was the main shipping point on Kentucky river for all goods to this section before roads were built and means of transportation, other than river traffic, were undeveloped. —Harrodsburg Herald.

MAN OR MULE

—A COMPARISON

Over the hill trailed a man behind a mule drawing a Dixie plow. The clodhopper was "broadcasing." Said the man to the mule:

"Bill, you are a mule, the son of a jackass, and I am a man, made in the image of God, here we work, hitched up together year in and year out. I often wonder if you work for me or I work for you. Verily, I think this is a partnership between a mule and a fool, for surely I work as hard as you, if not harder. Plowing or cultivating, we cover the same distance—but you do it on four legs and I on two. I, therefore, mathematically speaking, do twice as much work per leg as you do."

"Soon we'll be preparing for a corn crop. When the crop is harvested, I give one-third to the landlord for being so kind as to let me use this small speck of God's universe. One-third goes to you, and the balance is mine. You consume all of your portion, with the exception of a few cobs, while I divide my third among seven children, a dozen hens, two ducks, and a banker. If we both need shoes, you get 'em. Bill, you are getting the best of me and I ask you: 'Is it fair for a mule, the son of a jackass, to swindle a man the lord of creation out of his substance?' And come to think of it you merely plow and cultivate the ground, while I alone must cut, shock and husk the corn while you look over the pasture fence and 'hee-haw' at me."

"All fall and most of the winter the whole family, from Granny to the baby, work from morning to night to help raise money to pay taxes and buy you a new set of harness and pay the interest on the mortgage on you. And, by the way, what do you care about the mortgage? Not a damn! You ornery cuss, I even have to do the worrying about the mortgage on your tough, ungrateful hide!"

"About the only time I am your better is on election day, for I can vote and you can't. And after election I realize that I was fully as great a jackass as your papa. Verily, I am prone to wonder if politics were made for men or jackasses—or to make jackasses out of men."

"And that ain't all, Bill. When you're dead, that's supposed to be the end of you. But me? The parson tells me that when I die I gotta go to hell forever. That is, Bill, if I don't do just as he says. And most of what he says keeps me from getting any kick out of life."

"Tell me, Willyum, considering these things, how can you keep a straight face and look so dumb and solemn?"

A Powell county farmer had a field that produced 25 bushels of corn per acre in 1931. He sowed it in lespedeza and grazed it for two years, and last spring applied six tons of burned limestone, 625 lbs., of 44 per cent superphosphate, and four loads of manure. The corn yield was 70 bushels per acre last year.

HAMILTON HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The Hamilton Farmers ended their 1934-35 season at Dayton, Ky., Thursday night, March 7th, when the Covington Bulldogs defeated them 50-19. Hamilton scored the first four points and held the Bulldogs to seven points in the first quarter while scoring 5, but the Covington boys were too powerful and scored freely during the rest of the game. Burlington, Hamilton's running mate at the tournament advanced to the finals with victories over Morgan and Ludlow, but were defeated by Newport, who will go to Lexington as victor in the 10th district (Boone, Kenton, Campbell and Pendleton counties).

The Honor Club presented a one-act play, "Spreading The News," before the entire school Friday afternoon. This was followed by a recitation by Virginia Miller and a short comedy "Charley and Jimmie" by Donald L. Perry as "Jimmie," J. Wesley Palmer as "Charley" and Itho Hubbard as the genial host.

The Seniors have selected their play and will begin work upon it this week. Further details concerning the play will be disclosed in a few weeks.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for his foster daughter could not shelter her childhood from the hands of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affairs ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to a baseball game. A ball hit into the teachers' struts on the nose and the neurotic Mrs. Gatlin removed her from the hospital to which her former husband had taken her. Mrs. Gatlin spirited the child to Europe. Penelope had been a very good girl. Penelope all his money, and was about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor ended his life.

CHAPTER II.—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a rising young psychiatrist, was pre-occupied by a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality. Her "saddle nose" was in part responsible. McNamara did not think she was a responsible criminal and obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Burt, however, the doctor's faithful office nurse, was won over to her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III.—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's clear explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny visited her and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter, which a confederate stole from her handbag outside the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV.—Nance escaped, although shot, by swimming out to a speed-boat manned by friends and went to Lanny's apartment. Lanny told Chief McNamara, who ordered her to bring Nance to his apartment and phoned for Doctor Burt.

CHAPTER V.—One of the men in the boat on which Nance escaped—two of them ex-convicts, the other a bootlegger—had been wounded and they went to Burt's office. Doctor Burt found them. The bootlegger let go and took the others to his home, ordering the uninjured one to care for Nance and his pal. From them he learned that Nance's real name was Penelope Gatlin. Detective Sergeants Flynn and Angellotti, seeking the reward offered for Nance's apprehension, went to Lanny's apartment in search of Nance. Looking over her San Quentin cell, McNamara found a blank check on a San Jose bank.

CHAPTER VI.—From the San Jose banker McNamara learned that the girl he knew as Nance Belden was Penelope Gatlin, heiress to $750,000. The banker did not know Penelope's whereabouts. Mrs. Gatlin was now the wife of a man named Merton. McNamara ordered his assistants to locate Flynn and Angellotti to "lay off" Lanny, whom they suspected of harboring Nance. The detective learned that Doctor Burt when he went to McNamara's house to treat her gunshot wound but Nance and two men who helped her escape saw them first and fled.

CHAPTER VII.—When Lanny got home one evening she found Nance sound asleep, curled up on her guest-room bed. Several days later the hard-boiled exterior of Nance Belden suddenly vanished and the girl became the refined little Mrs. Merton. Lanny's restored memory led her to tell Lanny of her wealthy father, Theodore Gatlin, and of her childhood in France. Fearing his detectives would locate Penelope, McNamara furnished her with tear and gas bombs and told her how to use them to escape if they did. She uses the bombs, and gets away. Flynn and Angellotti continue not on Nance's trail—and McNamara's.

CHAPTER VIII.—Susan Engelbright, known as "Sapphire Bussie," who had served a term for blackmail, appeared and asked McNamara's protection from Flynn. She admitted that Nance had gotten her three. Lanny's desperate rings out of heck after she had helped in her plans for escape. McNamara learned definitely that Nance (or possibly Penelope) had sailed for France. He also discovered that "Nance" was living in Paris as Penelope Gatlin. Doctor Burt had been treating her. He told McNamara, and McNamara discovered that this woman was Penelope's foster-mother, remarried.

CHAPTER VIII

"Thank you, sir," said Nance politely and with quiet dignity. "You are most kind to take this trouble for a stranger and I shall never forget it." And she held out her hand.

McNamara looked in puzzlement at Lanny. "What's happened to her?" he demanded.

"I'll explain to you some time. You're a brilliant chief of police and you've figured everything out to a gnat's eyelash for Penelope, but what's going to happen to me?"

"The concoction of the plan I've just outlined has given me brain lag, Lanny. It's cost me a night's sleep. I don't know what's going to happen to you and I don't care much. You're a smart woman, and if you can't figure a way out of your end of the mess don't call on me for help."

"I wish I could relish that compliment," Lanny retorted dryly. "However, if you think I'm not going to laugh myself sick over this you're a poor judge of women. Good-by, you old crook, and God bless you. Kiss him, Penelope."

A becoming modesty caused the girl to hesitate just a little, then she came to the chief and implanted a most lady-like kiss on his blue jowl. "You're very kind, Mr. McNamara," she assured him again.

"Cripes," he muttered and went off.

Dan McNamara's estimate of the ability of Detective Sergeants Flynn and Angellotti did them no injustice; indeed, they proved even smarter than their chief credited them with being. Angellotti's adventure with Dan Mc-Namara they passed over as an unavoidable accident; Angellotti was certain McNamara had not recognized him. He felt certain McNamara had no suspicion that his house was under surveillance, although Flynn had mental reservations on that point, for the Irish are a psychic race.

After watching Doctor Burt enter and leave the chief's house on Thursday night, when they knew the chief would not be home until midnight, they decided to investigate. The unlocked cellar door gave them pause. Flynn whispered that he was always suspicious of things that came too easy. They crept upstairs and found Dan McNamara's ex-convict guest reading in bed. Both detectives recognized him, so while Angellotti guarded him Flynn made a hurried but thorough search of the premises. They were not in the house more than five minutes.

"We've been like two pups, chasing our tails," Angellotti complained when they met at their car. "The chief's up to his old tricks, babying a convict with the con, and that's the bird Doctor Burt is calling to treat."

"The girl's been there, just the same, Amadeo, my boy. There was a lipstick on the bureau and that's something old lady McNamara don't use. And I found a roll of adhesive, the heel of a roll of bandage and a soiled sheet with some bloodstains on it in the dirty clothes basket in the bathroom."

Angellotti was convinced. "Where did she go?"

"She might have doubled back to that old nurse's house again, but I doubt that, because she knows that's risky."

"Well, let's give Miss Lanning's house a prowling anyhow."

Flynn was one of those hearty fellows who will try anything twice, so they went immediately to Lanny's house. The lights in front were out when they arrived, so Flynn pussy-footed around to the rear of the cottage to see if any lights were lighted there. Finding none, he listened for possible voices. Hearing none, he cautiously lifted the lid off Lanny's garbage can and bent his flashlight on it. He was rewarded for his courage by finding a stained bandage with clipped adhesive tape clinging to it. This telltale evidence he carried around to Angellotti; they entered their car, drove a block and inspected the clue in the light of the dash lamp. Then they silently shook hands.

"Nothing is ever lost if you know where it is," Flynn rejoiced. "I'm going to get my missus a winter coat with my half of the reward. We'll bone the district attorney for a search warrant tomorrow, and tomorrow night when the old lady gets home, we'll make the pinch."

"Shall we pinch her as an accessory?"

"Amadeo, my boy, unless you're looking hard for something, it's a mistake to see too much or know too much. This Lanning woman is a friend of the chief's. As far as the public ever need know we picked the girl up on the street."

Angellotti nodded his acquiescence; they got the search warrant on the strength of that soiled bandage, and at nine o'clock that night arrived in their car. Flynn went to the back door and posted himself there; and Angellotti rang the front doorbell. A light was switched on in the hall presently, and Lanny, dressed for the street, opened the door six inches. Angellotti had his foot in it in a flash.

"Detective Sergeant Angellotti of the central station, Miss Lanning. I have here a search warrant, giving me legal right to search your house and secure the person of Nance Belden, an escaped convict from San Quentin penitentiary. Read it an' weep!"

"You take your big flat foot out of my door and stay outside until I've read this purported search warrant or I'll shoot your foot off," Lanny informed him coldly. Angellotti withdrew his foot promptly, Lanny closed the door, and he could see her faintly through the curtained glass, reading.

"Come in," she invited—and at that moment the electric light bulb tossed out the upper window by Nance exploded with a loud report. "What's that?" Angellotti cried, instantly alert. A still louder explosion reverberated in the back yard; then the voice of Flynn crying: "Hey, stop, or I'll shoot."

"What's That?" Angellotti Cried, Instantly Alert.

"Tried slipping her out the back door, eh?" Angellotti exclaimed, and dashed through the house, with Lanny at his heels. As he went out the kitchen door, Lanny slammed and bolted it behind him, and then, even as Dan McNamara had predicted, nature took her course. Nance dropped the remainder of the bombs and came dashing down the stairs. "Good-by, Lanny, darling," she cried happily. "We'll meet again." Lanny switched off the hall light, and Nance was through the front door and gone. Across the street two coupes stood at the curb, the motors of both turning over slowly.

Alternately the girl's finger was pointed at each car. "My—mother—told-me-to-take—this—one," she murmured, and when, through the aid of this childhood formula, she had made her decision, she leaped into the coupe of Messrs. Flynn and Angellotti and went rapidly away. Lanny, watching her from the darkened doorway, saw that she had taken the wrong car, but was afraid to cry out and warn her. So she did the next best thing. She locked her front door behind her, climbed into the other car and drove down town to a late motion picture show. She carried the search warrant with her and while enjoying the show tore it into little bits.

Of the weeping, the groaning, the burning sensations in the eyelids, the bewilderment, the groping, vomiting, cursing and despair of Messrs. Flynn and Angellotti nothing need be said. Suffice that Angellotti felt his way out of the gassed area and about two minutes after Lanny's departure, stationed himself on her front steps, while the valiant Flynn, dying a thousand deaths, stuck manfully at his post, leaning up against the kitchen door, enduring for duty's sake. Convinced they had Nance Belden cornered, they waited for the night wind to dissipate the gas. Angellotti ceased to weep about half an hour after escaping from the gassed area, but continued to gag for an hour. About ten-thirty he was able to see, so he rang Lanny's bell repeatedly, but received no answer. Then he noticed that their car was missing, so he summoned the martyred Flynn around front and told him the worst.

"Don't speak to me," Flynn commanded passionately. "I'm dead! Hunt up an all-night drug store an' phone for a taxi!"

"This," Angellotti hissed, "is Dan McNamara's work. Where would they get the bombs if he didn't swipe 'em out of the police arsenal?"

Flynn commenced to sob as he considered the barren fruits of his enormous sacrifice.

"Amadeo, swear to me, by our common faith, that, come what will, blow high, blow low, come sickness or sorrow, happiness or health, you'll never lay off this job until we've landed that—that huzzy."

"Right! I swear," Angellotti's voice trembled with the sincerity of his purpose.

The respective wives of the worthy pair telephoned down to the chief of the detectives next morning and informed him that their husbands were confined to bed with influenza. It might not be amiss, also, to state that Lanny came home in a taxi about twelve-thirty, and finding the front door free of Angellotti, and the neighborhood ozone quite restored to normalcy, retired to her bed and passed almost at once into dreamless and untroubled sleep.

It was not a police car in which Nance had escaped, but the private vehicle of Detective Sergeant Flynn, and its loss troubled him until the car was found, abandoned, out in the Mission, about twenty-four hours later. A glance at the speedometer comforted Flynn. The car had been driven six miles. In company with Angellotti (both now happily recovered from their terrible experience) he drove in the same car from Lanny's house, via the most direct route, to the point where a patrolman had picked up the car; thence via the route followed by the patrolman when he came off duty and drove the car to the central station and reported it. The mileage was six and two-tenths miles!

"She's holed up within a block or two of where she left the car," Flynn decided.

"Not such a cold trail, after all," Angellotti exclaimed. "We'll just have to patrol the neighborhood in our off moments. I'm sure the girl doesn't know she swiped your car, and that she gave us a clue to follow her."

"If crooks didn't make mistakes and give us the breaks, my boy, you and I wouldn't be where we are," Flynn reminded him. "I think it might be a good idea to interview the druggist in the neighborhood and see if she's been in to buy a new lipstick."

A round of the neighboring drug stores, however, proved barren of a new lead, and as they had other matters claiming their attention, they were forced to abandon the search that day.

Dan McNamara was much too intelligent to make inquiries of the assistant district attorney who had issued the search warrant, but when informed that Flynn and Angellotti were down with flu he called up Lanny at Stephen's office, and received a meticulous report. "You say the girl fled in the car my dicks arrived in?" he queried. "That's terrible. A description of the car must have been broadcast to all outlying police and the surrounding country stations immediately by Flynn and Angellotti, and Nance will be picked up somewhere down state."

"We've done our damndest," Lanny replied cheerfully. "Angels can do no more. I borrowed the car you left out front. It's in a garage. I'll send you the claim check."

For a week, the chief waited for news of Nance Belden, but no news came through beyond some gossip around the central station that the car had been driven but three miles and then abandoned—for which evidence that the Almighty was still on his side the worthy fellow was grateful.

So Nance was still in the city! McNamara's mind worked so automatically he did not even have to tell himself that, undoubtedly, she had taken sanctuary within a short distance of the spot where she had abandoned Flynn's car, nor did he have to remind himself that Flynn and Angellotti would come to the same conclusion. He had no difficulty in ascertaining the spot where the car had been recovered.

"Poison street and Sixteenth, eh?" he reflected. "Residential-flat buildings, and cheap apartment houses, cheap rooming houses and working-men's hotels. No, she wouldn't go to one of those. Not what she is—she has class—and she has two hundred dollars in her possession. She's holed up with a friend. What friend? Why, Ella Cates, of course."

He had already secured Ella Cates' address from the banker in San Jose. However, he realized it would not be wise to call upon her and run the risk of having Flynn or Angellotti run across him in the neighborhood or see him entering Ella Cates' house. The obvious thing, therefore, was to cast about for a job in another part of the city and see that both detectives were assigned to it. If he sent them out of the city for a day or two they might suspect his purpose and have some other dick friend of theirs shadow him during their absence.

While he was considering where he could dispose of them, the president of the Security Trust company in San Jose rang up.

"Miss Penelope Gatlin has just been in the bank, Chief," he told McNamara. "She has purchased a letter of credit for ten thousand dollars and has withdrawn in cash the remainder of the funds on deposit to the credit of her checking account, amounting to eleven hundred dollars."

"Is she in the bank now?"

"Yes."

"Have one of your clerks follow her. Give him some expense money—I'll be responsible for its repayment. And when you get his report please telephone me."

At three-thirty the banker telephoned again. "She purchased a ticket to San Francisco on one of the buses leaving here at three-fifteen. She spent two hours shopping."

The buses McNamara knew, entered the city via Mission street, the bus depot was at Fifth and Mission streets. Ella Cates lived on Howard street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth. Howard street runs between Mission and Folsom—and Flynn's car had been found abandoned at Sixteenth and Folsom. Nance was smart. She had left the car a block from Ella Cates' home and waited there. McNamara reasoned the incoming bus would drop the girl off at Sixteenth and Mission streets—a regular stop—and she would then make her way to the Cates woman's house.

He glanced at his watch. He had an hour and a half to intercept her; for that hour and a half he must have Flynn and Angellotti in another section of the city. To his annoyance he discovered they were out on a detail, so he decided he would have to risk it, called a taxi and drove to Ella Cates' address. He discovered it to be a cheap wooden apartment house, but the directory in the vestibule gave him no information as to which apartment Ella Cates lived in, so he rang the landlady's bell and the door opened to admit him. To his inquiry regarding Mrs. Cates, he was informed that she had moved to parts unknown a week before, nor could his informant give him any clue to aid him in discovering her.

As he came out of the apartment house he glanced warily around and was amused to observe Detective Angellotti leaning against a cigar stand across the street. He was certain the detective had recognized him, for Angellotti immediately turned his back. The chief walked up to Mission street, boarded a street car and was at the bus terminus two minutes before the bus on which Nance had left San Jose rolled in. But Nance was not among the passengers that alighted.

McNamara chuckled. Flynn and Angellotti would waste a great deal of time watching that apartment house in vain. Nance, discovering Ella Cates had moved, had sought quarters elsewhere. What puzzled McNamara, however, was the girl's failure to communicate with him or Lanny; and he knew now that she did not intend to. The fact that she had purchased a letter of credit was proof that she intended leaving the country, and the more the excellent fellow contemplated this impending move the more inclined was he to regard it as a not unmixed blessing.

The more he thought the matter over, the more inclined did he become to take a practical and policeman-like view of the situation. While Nance remained in San Francisco she would be a constant menace to himself and Lanny; if captured she might, during one of her uncontrolled moments, consider it a great joke to tell the world how she had been enabled to escape capture so long.

"I can't baby the world," he decided. "I'll let her go. She'll probably live abroad, and when her letter of credit is gone she may remember who she is long enough to draw more checks. I can always get a line on her through the bank, and if Steve and Lanny still insist on salvaging this nut I'll tell them where to find her. Me, I'm through. If I keep this pace up I'll be as big a nut as she is."

NOTICE TO DOG OWNERS

The 1930 Legislature passed an Act requiring the Sheriffs of the various counties to collect the Dog License Fee. The law (Sec. 17) says: "On and after January 1, 1931, it shall be unlawful for any person to own or keep any dog, unless such dog is licensed by the Sheriff or Deputy of the County in which the dog is kept." (Sec. 22) says: "It shall be unlawful for any person to harbor or permit to remain on his premises any dog not having a license." (Sec. 33) says: "Any person other than an officer violating the provisions of this act or failing or refusing to comply with any of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be adjudged to pay a fine not to exceed $100.00."

Section 20 says: "For failure to perform any duty under this act, any officer shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $10.00 and not more than $100.00."

The State Man has made several trips to this office regarding the payment of this tax; and has informed me that it must be paid. I cannot afford to get into trouble by failing to enforce the law. Come and get your license before Court Orders are issued for you.

Every dog owner who owns or harbors a dog not licensed is subject to a fine. I do not want to cause any one to have to pay a fine and cost, but I must do my duty.

After April 1st, 1935, I shall with the assistance of the County Judge and County Attorney proceed to hold Courts of Inquiry to ascertain the parties who have unlicensed dogs.

Yours very truly,

Loan Policy

THE right kind of a bank is just as anxious to make good loans as the manufacturer, merchant or farmer is to sell his products.

This Bank welcomes every opportunity to make sound loans to its depositors whether the amounts required be large or small.

The point that many would-be-borrowers overlook, however, is that the money a bank lends is not the bank's nor the banker's—it is the depositors' money.

Hence, a bank must investigate the guarantees given by the borrower very carefully.

LARGEST BOY

ON RECORD—IS OVER EIGHT FEET TALL

Alton, Ill.—Robert Wadlow, Alton's biggest citizen celebrated his seven-teenth birthday Friday.

Three inches taller than a year ago, Robert measures eight feet one and one-half inches from his toes to the top of his head. He can only estimate weight—he hasn't been able to find scales big enough to find out exactly.

Last year he weighed 365 pounds, a gain of twenty-five pounds over the previous year. In that year he grew two inches taller so if the ratio has been maintained he should weigh more than 390 pounds. Physi-cians who have examined him pre-dict he may reach an ultimate height of more than nine feet before he attains his full growth in about five years. His extraordinary size is attributed by them to overactivity of the pituitary gland, a tiny endo-crine gland at the base of the brain.

Last year he required a size 35 shoe, but now he takes a size 36.

Watch for "Beads on a string" at Burlington High School Auditorium on Friday night, March 29th.

LOOKOUT HOUSE

DIXIE HIGHWAY ROAD-HOUSE ROBBED—$2,000 TAKEN BY THREE THUGS

Brandishing a machine gun and wielding sawed-off shotguns and pistol butts as clubs, three robbers help up thirty-six persons in the Lookout House, Dixie Highway roadhouse, south of Covington, Monday at 4:30 a. m., and escaped with $2,000.

The loot consisted of Sunday's receipts, the employees' payroll and money and valuables taken from the workers.

James Brink, owner, was beaten over the head by one of the robbers with the butt-end of a pistol in an unsuccessful effort to force him to open a safe.

Robert Koenig, Sr., Ft. Mitchell, washroom attendant, and his son Robert Koenig, Jr., also of Ft. Mitchell, parking lot attendant, were struck over the heads with sawed-off shotguns when they were slow in obeying the robbers' orders. Marvin Tucker, taxicab driver, West Third street, Covington, suffered the loss of several teeth when one of the robbers struck him in the mouth with a sawed-off shotgun. The elder Koenig was sent to St. Elizabeth for treatment.

Brink and a number of his employees were playing cards in "the Stable," the part of the roadhouse fronting on the Dixie Highway, and the others were awaiting the arrival of taxicabs to take them to their homes when the robbers entered. All of the patrons had departed.

The three well-dressed robbers carried a machine gun, two sawed-off shotguns and a pistol.

"This is a stick-up; everybody line up," one of the robbers shouted.

When the two Koenigs and Tucker were slow in obeying the order the robbers clubbed them. Then one of the robbers, whom the employees said they recognized as a man who had been in the resort for several hours preceding the hold-up, called Brink by name and demanded that he turn over the money.

Taken To Safe

Brink took the robber to the safe and the cash boxes and handed over about $1,500. The robber then demanded that Brink open another safe which contained Saturday's receipts. Brink pleaded that he didn't know the combination.

The robber struck Brink over the head with a pistol-butt, but Brink continued to deny knowledge of the combination.

In the meantime, the other two robbers had herded the employees and Tucker into a washroom and then forced them to come out, one at a time, and drop their valuables into a bag, after which they were forced to return to the room. Brink was herded in with the employees.

Tear Out Phone

After warning the group not to attempt to follow them, the robbers pulled the telephone wires from the wall and fled.

PRISON SURVEY

WILL BE MADE—BOARD NAMED

Assured, he said, that his proposal to release approximately 400 convicts has met with public approval, Gov. Ruby Laffoon has taken the first step to effect the wholesale releases of five men to make a prison survey.

The commission is composed of Charles Davidson of Berea; M. F. Conley of Louisville and C. Roy Steinfert of Covington, former members of the Board of Charities and Corrections; H. V. Bastin, of Lyndon, former warden of the State Reformatory and now head of Armsby Village, near Louisville, and Gus Heiken, of Louisville, a parole officer.

The duties of the commission will be to make a thorough survey at the State Reformatory here and at the State prison at Eddyville with a view to classifying the convicts preparatory to releasing a large number of them on parole to relieve overcrowding.

In his order appointing the commission, the governor said conditions at the prison are "intolerable." The appropriation made last year to set up a system of convict labor, the governor said, was inadequate and in the meantime the number of inmates of the penal institutions has "very materially increased."

The governor's idea, as outlined in an interview, is to free in the neighborhood of 1000 convicts, preferably young first offenders and men serving sentences for minor offenses, by making them eligible for parole.

LATE AAA CORN-HOG SIGNERS SHOULD RUSH

Those Boone county farmers who have not signed AAA Corn-Hog contracts for 1935 and expect to do so, should sign immediately according to John E. Crigler, Secretary of the Association.

One hundred and fifty applications for contracts have been received to date. While the benefit payments this year for hogs are less, the contract is much more lenient and beneficial to the producers than last year's contract.

Applications for the 1935 contracts may be secured at the County Agent's office in Burlington.

PROCLAMATION

ISSUED BY GOV. LAFFOON FOR KOREAN LESPEDEZA WEEK

Gov. Laffoon has issued a proclamation making the week from March 18 to 24 as Lespedeza Week. This proclamation is most appropriate because Kentucky has been the pioneer state in the development and spread of Korean Lespedeza, which has proven a wonder crop in all Central States of the U. S. The proclamation follows: WHEREAS, it has been called to my attention that the introduction of KOREAN LESPEDEZA has and is proving of inestimable value to Kentucky Agriculture and that great benefits are being derived from its use by our farmers, especially in the matter of arresting erosion, rebuilding the soil and in furnishing valuable pasture, hay and seed; and,

WHEREAS, we have thousands of acres in this State that could be advantageously seeded to this valuable crop which is adapted to any character of soil in this State, and it is a matter of common knowledge that a more general use of this legume will greatly expedite the building of a better agriculture;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Ruby Laffoon, Governor of Kentucky, DO HEREBY SET ASIDE AND PROCLAIM THE WEEK OF MARCH 18 to 24th, AS LESPEDEZA WEEK IN KENTUCKY, and I call upon all County Agents, Teachers of Vocational Agriculture, Agricultural Workers and Farm Leaders to arrange to stress the importance of Lespedeza in their respective counties during the aforesaid week for the purpose of disseminating information relative to this most valuable legume.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at Frankfort, on this, the eleventh day of March, 1935.

LOOSE LIVE STOCK

A HAZARD ON PUBLIC ROADS—STATE POLICE WARN OWNERS

With a constantly mounting toll of highway accidents and fatalities, the recently organized State Highway Police force not only is enforcing the motor vehicle laws but is turning its attention to violations of other state laws that create hazardous conditions on the public roads.

Live stock running at large on the public highways in certain sections of the State has caused numerous highway accidents, according to Adjutant General Henry H. Denhardt who has brought the matter to the attention of all members of the State Police with instructions to start enforcement of the live stock law.

In advising Eugene Stuart, Secretary-Manager of the Louisville Automobile Club, of this action, General Denhardt stated that the State Police force will begin by warning owners who are permitting their stock to run at large on the highways and instructing them to keep the stock up, but on second offense the Police are instructed to take out warrants, make arrests and prosecute.

BOONE COUNTY

RECEIVES CHECK FOR $5223.64

State Treasurer Elam Huddleston has sent to Boone county a check for $5,223.64, which represents the county's portion of the one-third of total collections from the auto sales tax for the second quarter of the fiscal year.

The law requires that this money be applied on the road and bridge bond indebtedness of Boone county, which totals $380,000.

The money distributed to the counties, representing one-third of the sum collected from the sales tax for the second three months period of the fiscal year, totalled $858,688.39, and brings the total sum of money divided among the counties in the first half of the year to $1,562,140.62.

The road and bridge bond indebtedness of counties of the state totals $28,485,700 and the distribution to counties from the sales tax has prevented many counties in dire straits, from defaulting on their bonds.

LETTER RECEIVED

FROM TAX REDUCTION ASSOCIATION

We have asked for a reversal of the ruling by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to the effect that taxpayers in Kentucky are not entitled to deduct the account of sales tax paid by them from their gross incomes.

This ruling states that the sales tax in Kentucky is a tax upon the vendor of merchandise, and not a tax upon the consumer.

The exact opposite was held recently by the court of Appeals of Kentucky; namely that the sales tax is a tax upon one consumer and that the vendor is simply the collector of the tax.

In view of this situation, our attorney, Judge Deczman, advises that any taxpayer is justified in deducting the sales tax from his gross income, especially items that he can prove definitely as to the amount and the vendor of the merchandise.

Those who have filed their income tax returns and have not included these deductions are entitled to ask for a refund.

Should the ruling be unfavorable it may be that the amounts involved on the part of Association members are large enough to merit further action in courts. We shall be glad to have any information along this line which you care to make known to this office.

The many friends of Mrs. Nettie Hughes are glad she is able to be out again after her injury caused by a fall a few weeks past.

DR. EDGAR DEWITT JONES HONORED ON FIFTEENTH ANNIVERSARY AS PASTOR OF DETROIT CHURCH

The Recorder is in receipt of an invitation to attend a dinner to be given Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones in Detroit celebrating his fifteenth anniversary as pastor of a church in that city. It will be recalled that Dr. Jones married the former Fannie Willis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Willis, and sister of Miss Eunice B. Willis. The invitation reads as follows:

"You are cordially invited to attend a dinner at Central Woodward Christian church honoring Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones, celebrating his fifteenth anniversary as pastor, Friday March 29th, 1935, 7 p. m. Informal reception for Dr. and Mrs. Jones following the dinner."

LAFFOON ELECTED

AS NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN

Frankfort, Ky.—Elected Democratic national committeeman by the State Central Executive Committee, Gov. Ruby Laffoon called on Democrats of the State to support the party ticket.

The governor pointed out Kentucky would be the only State to hold a gubernatorial election before the next presidential campaign and "we want Kentucky in line."

Gov. Laffoon was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Allie W. Young of Morehead. He will serve until after the Democratic national convention next year. Gov. Laffoon expressed his thanks to the committee for electing him, but said "he was very sorry the occasion" for such action had arisen.

"Senator Young was an outstanding Kentuckian and a true and loyal Democrat," he stated.

An effort by Senator Robert Humphreys of Mayfield to have the committee's action in calling a convention several months ago rescinded was overruled by Chairman Pelley P. Wooten.

RECORD 4-H

ENROLLMENT PREDICTED — 335 MEMBERS—TOBACCO PROJECT MOST POPULAR

Prospects are for a record 4-H enrollment of 335 members in nine community 4-H Clubs for 1935 according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The enrollment this year at the first meetings is the best on record.

The approximate enrollment at the first meeting by clubs are as follows:

Burlington—45.
Florence—60.
Grant—40.
Hamilton—Meeting date delayed due to high water.
Hebron—45.
New Haven—50.
Petersburg—20.
Walton—25.
Verona—20.
Total enrollment . . . . . 335

Members this year are full of pep and enthusiasm with hopes also for record year in profitable project returns and a year full of important educational events and good times.

A preliminary survey of projects to be conducted by members this year, indicates that the one fourth to one acre tobacco project is the most popular. Enrollment cards indicate that project work will be divided in the approximate proportions:

Tobacco—100.
Dairy Calf—20.
Garden—40.
Corn—10.
Pig—10.
Sheep—12.
Poultry—65.
Sewing—85.
Canning—35.
Room Improvement—8.
Total . . . . . 385

Project work will exceed the number of members, due to many members carrying more than one project.

The second series of meetings of the clubs begin this week. Plans are to hold four community club meetings before school is out, two during the summer. (One a tour to visit project work and the other a picnic) and two after school takes up next fall.

"Beads on a String" will be presented on March 29th at Burlington High School.

TWO BOYS DIE

AS RESULT OF ERLANGER CRASH

Accidental injuries claimed the lives of two young men Sunday when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a pole on Dixie Highway between Bartlett and McAlpin Avenues, Erlanger.

William Endres, Jr., 21 years old, 2607 Eden Avenue, Cincinnati, and Louis Kern, 19, 56 Sanders Drive, Elsmere, Ky., died of broken necks before they could be taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington. Both also suffered small cuts above their left eyes.

Although there were no witnesses of the crash, roadside marks indicated that the automobile, which was being driven north by Endres, turned over several times before hitting the pole with terrific impact.

Endres, a student at the Automotive Trades School, 2415 Iowa Avenue, Cincinnati, and Kern, an employee at the F. H. Lawson Company, Cincinnati, tin plate dealers, were pinned in the wreckage.

"The pole was broken and moved several feet. The automobile was torn apart by the force of the crash. It required more than 20 minutes for Jesse Courtney, Chief of Erlanger Police, and his officers to extricate the victims.

Endres, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Endres, Sr., Richardson Pike, near Devon Station, Kenton county, had been living with his aunt, Paula M. Endres at the Eden Avenue address, while studying at the trade school, neighbors said.

Kern was a son of Mr. Gertrude Kern of the Elsmere address. A brother and sister also survive him.

Dr. James P. Riffe, Kenton county coroner, returned a verdict of accidental death.

Marvin Claunch, 27, 15 Elm St., Erlanger, was treated at St. Elizabeth hospital for cuts on the left hand and head. Claunch told Covington police that when his automobile left the road near Fairview, Ky., he thrust his hand thru the glass of the door. After being treated he was released.

SPECIAL CONTRACTS

AAA TOBACCO NON-SIGNERS NO EXEMPTIONS—1935

Boone county tobacco growers have not signed AAA tobacco contracts and who can not secure an equitable base may now sign special contracts for 1935, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent, provided they came in one of the classifications listed below:

1. The farm is equipped for tobacco production and tobacco was grown thereon in one or more of the years 1929 to 1934, inclusive, or

2. The persons who are living on the farm in 1935 were engaged in the production of tobacco in the years 1929 to 1934.

Th special base contracts are available at the County Agents office in Burlington now. Present indications are there will be no tax exemptions for 1935 as the tax will be higher than last year. Practically every tobacco grower who has not signed a contract can qualify for a special base.

The date for signing applications for special base contracts will close in about two weeks. All tobacco growers who have not signed and who can not qualify for regular contracts should apply immediately.

Growers applying for a special base should bring their tenants who are growing tobacco in 1935 and also information as to the number of acres of tobacco grown on the farm in each year from 1929 to 1934 inclusive, and the number of acres grown by each tenant on that farm or any other farm during the years 1929 to 1934 inclusive. Growers to secure a special base contract must apply immediately.

A NEW WAY TO CLEAN

In another column will appear the advertisement of Wm. C. Walton who is representing KOTOFOM. It is said that this new way to clean clothing, etc., is a wonderful improvement over former methods. Mr. Walton will give a demonstration of KOTOFOM this coming Saturday at the Florence Community Sale.

SEED CATALOG TIME

About this time, as the Old Farmers' Almanac used to say, look out for the seed catalog on the living room table. About now Mr. Householder, in the comfort of the easy chairs, pours happily over those glowing pages on which are depicted flowers and vegetables grown in luxuriant qualities, and dreams of the summer's garden triumphs.

He may not realize all these dreams. There are plagues of pests to be encountered, the droughts of summer in some spots, and too much rain in others, and the weeds and the heats of August, take the stuffing out of many a fine garden. But blessings be on the head of the seed catalog man. We can forgive him if he paints the roses and the beans a little too flowers and fat. For any inducement that persuades wandering and roiling, and more time in a useful and healthful pursuit like gardening helps make a healthier man and better citizen.

LIFE OF THE PARTY

The way of the practical joker is hard on others. At Texarkana, Arkansas, a six-year-old boy was buried the other day, the outcome of a party at which some particularly hilarious person thought it would be a great idea to make him gulp a cup of whiskey—"to make him drunk and act funny." It seems the whiskey went not only to the boy's head but to his heart, and his heart, as the saying goes, could not take it. The perpetrator of the prank has doubtless ceased laughing by now as he is being sought for murder.

One often wonders where certain persons get the terrific sense of humor that causes them to raise unreasonable havoc with their associates. Even the monkeys have ways of poking fun at each other for amusement without being moronically irresponsible and destructive. The practical joker, however, can be inhuman enough to make fun at another's expense even if it kills his subject. It has often seemed such persons should be segregated, if not at work perhaps at least at play where their abnormal mirth impulses might be mutually counteracted.

And by the way, who took a six-year-old child to a drinking party?

LEGAL THREE-RING CIRCUS

With the fate of Bruno Hauptmann we need not be concerned. The jury which listened to the evidence in the famous Lindbergh kidnapping case pronounced him guilty of the crime. The sentence of death in the electric chair pronounced by Judge Trenchard is provided by the New Jersey statutes for such findings. The jury decided according to its convictions, and the court acted according to law. Our American sense of justice can ask no more than this.

But America should stand ashamed of the three-ring circus it made of the trial. Newspapers, radio and the movies vied with each other in attempting to satisfy a morbid public appetite. The American people are strong for thrills. But there are legitimate ways in which this craving can be met. It was scarcely a part of good manners to make a vaudeville show out of something as serious as the case of a man on trial for his life.

PATERNAL HAIR-CUTS

The Saturday night tub was as solid and immutable an institution in the good old days as were the laws of the Medes and Persians. Out in the shed on that dread day that preceded a dreary Sunday, the filth of the flesh was washed away and the body prepared for the sanctities of the Sabbath.

There was a sister institution to this laver of the corruptible body and that was the paternal haircut. Where the domestic income was so small as to be stretched to the point of agony to meet disbursement, the tonsorial services of a professional for five boys made an item of dismaying magnitude. Consequently many a father who would never have dared to practice the art of the butcher, the baker or the candlestick maker invaded the field of the barber with a mighty boldness thrilling to behold.

If his work was a smear, he didn't care; he didn't have to wear his own handiwork. Sometimes his work was a masterpiece of deformity. The heavens may declare the glory of God; but the disfigured skulls of his victims yelled to an amused world the shame of the amateur amputator.

Many a young man can recall how when he had reached the age when he felt that the girls were looking at him, and he became reconciled with dread the clicking scissors of his paternal progenitor. Ah, well, it's all over now.

THOSE SAND STORMS

In an article handed us last week we noted that the misty atmosphere which hung over Boone county and Northern Kentucky a few days ago was sand from the best soil of eastern Missouri and northern Texas, carried here by a mid-west storm.

Many people in this section never suspected that the mist was being caused by flying particles of sand, and it is almost unbelievable that several hundred thousand square miles of Texas and Missouri soil could be distributed over the Ohio River valley by high winds. The article also predicted that all of eastern Missouri would soon be faced with vast areas of unproductive land if these soil excavations should continue.

Here is a fertile field for the government's soil erosion work. Should the President's huge forest from Canada to Mexico, which was given much publicity several months ago, ever become a fact, it would prove a preventative in keeping Missouri and Texas at home and out of the nostrils of the good people of the Ohio River Valley.

Editorial of the Week

TOBACCO 1935

(Central-Record)

The fact that the adjustment program on tobacco this year provides that all growers who signed the production contract will be placed upon the same level according to the ordered base acreage heretofore accepted is much easier of handling and will be much more satisfactory. All those who have contracts will have a 40% reduction instead of some 50% and others 33 1-3 % as in 1934. The rented acres will be increased for those who heretofore reduced one-third and decreased for those who signed from one-half. There is no question but what the program for handling the tobacco reduction is very much more agreeable and popular with the growers than a year ago. Many who opposed the plan last year have come to the office of the County Agent and signed the contract and will cooperate in this year's method of reducing and controlling the surplus that formerly ruined the price of tobacco. The tax will be one-third of the gross receipts of the crop instead of one-fourth as it was last year. We have no doubt, however, that every effort will be made to make more liberal the terms of those who have in the past grown burley tobacco who for good reasons have no base acreage. This should be and we think will be arranged. We do not know how long this plan may prevail but it would be better for tobacco growers if it were made permanent as the history of the tobacco business shows that small poundage any year brings more money to the grower than the years when the crops were large and the poundage much. Tobacco growers have no just grounds for criticizing this program. Of course, we admit it has fallen heavily upon some who could not arrange a satisfactory base acreage. It would be an unusual program of an universal application that would not disappoint some and this tobacco set-up is no exception.

Poultry raising is on the increase in Elliott county, where several farmers are starting early broiler projects with 3,000 baby chicks. Many brooders were built last month, and 9,000 chicks are booked for March. Richard Lewis made a profit of $90 for two months thereby heading the list.

By CARTER FIELD

Washington.—In connection with the proposed international loan to China—aimed at preventing the Japanese from obtaining a strangle hold on that market—a very interesting development, with a group of American manufacturers behind it, is under way. The government knows about it, but has taken no action.

Representing manufacturers who use tungsten, an American is now in China investigating the possibility of obtaining a very large amount of this valuable metal—enough to supply all the needs of this country for a period of years. The idea would be to ship this tungsten from China to Seattle or some other Pacific port, there to hold it as a sort of pool. Supplies would be sold from the pool as needed by the manufacturers.

The main object is not to aid China, but to stabilize the price in this country of tungsten. The price has fluctuated over a tremendous range, amounting to several hundred dollars a ton for tungsten ore! This is a situation, which is naturally most embarrassing to those using it, as it makes more difficult the making of contracts which have any length of time to run, especially contracts where any sizable fraction of the cost is based upon the price of tungsten.

But if the plan succeeds it will be of enormous benefit to China. The supply of tungsten bought would be so large that it would run way up in the millions of dollars. This would provide a credit for China here for any imports she wanted from this country. It would not be barter in the sense that the word has been used, for example, in connection with the proposed exchange of half a million bales of cotton with Germany for blocked marks. But it would provide China with a large amount of exchange in this country on which she could draw. And the best of it, as the State department folks see the situation, though they are taking no part so far in the maneuver is that it would provide a natural stimulus to trade, with no attempt to force goods along new channels, and with none of the difficulties and barriers with which most of the proposed barter agreements have been afflicted.

Wouldn't Stop Imports

Nor would it even put a stop to imports of tungsten into this country, thus depriving China of a natural source of exchange. Under the proposed plan, just as much tungsten would be imported from China for the three years, say, following the arrival of the huge shipments to make up the pool, as though the pool had not been created. In a way this would be a reserve supply, which would be replenished by purchases from China as fast as it was depleted. For the object of the pool is not to buy all at once a supply for a long period, and then not to buy again until the pool is exhausted. The object is just to obtain price stabilization. If the price should shoot up to a point the managers of the pool thought unreasonable, they would sell, but do no purchasing until the price should decline. If the price should fall too low, heavy purchases would be made, certainly to the limit of the pool capacity.

In effect, advocates of the plan point out, the organization of the pool would be an advance to China of some millions of dollars, in exchange for a valuable commodity, so that no element of credit would be involved—as between China and the United States. But it would serve just as useful a purpose as if the government—as desired by Britain and others worried about the Japanese credit to China—had advanced the money. Which is very important to the treasury because only the most optimistic think if the money were lent it would ever be repaid.

Those working for the pool say there would be no difficulty in financing the original purchases, as banks would be glad to lend money on tungsten stored in a bonded warehouse.

See Trouble Ahead

A simple relief measure for Porto Rico has opened up with probability of troubles and repercussions from now on, and involving not only Porto Rico but the Philippines, Hawaii, Cuba, and Louisiana, not to mention the beet sugar states.

It all grew out of the visits to Porto Rico by Mrs. Roosevelt and by Professor Tugwell, who happens to be undersecretary of agriculture as well as a brain trust. At least, critics of the move so insist.

What happened finally was that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace signed an order permitting excess sugar cane in Porto Rico to be ground into molasses and then brought into the United States. This means, of course, that the sugar so ground was—until this order—in excess of Porto Rico's quota. It could have been sold abroad, on the world market, or it could have been plowed under.

Obviously this move disturbed the whole quota set-up. Already Hawaii had been screaming that this very quota was ruinous to her. The beet sugar people had accepted it because they could get nothing better, but were far from happy. And the Cubans thought they were pretty nearly ruined. AAA has not paid much attention to Louisiana's sugar producers. They had been benefiting. The price for their molasses had risen from 2 to 7 1/2 cents a gallon during the past year. In fact, the sugar section of AAA claims that Louisiana has profited more than any other section from the sugar program. This was due to a more or less unexpected development—the widespread use of molasses for the production of alcohol. And therein lies more trouble from the Porto Rico decision.

Hits Corn Belt

For it brings the corn belt boys up standing—and screaming. They have fought bitterly for years for all kinds of legislative devices to increase the price of corn. Many of them backed the proposal to force all motorists to use a mixture of alcohol—made from corn—with their gasoline. This was never enacted, but there has always been pressure for it, and it illustrates their interest in any proposal affecting the use of corn.

Now whiskey men agree that neutral spirits for blending with straight whiskey should be made from grain. They insist that the taste is different; that alcohol made from molasses does not produce as delectable a drink as if the alcohol had been made from grain, despite the chemical similarity.

And it so happens that the prime movers for this dispensation to Porto Rico on molasses, outside the Porto Rico interests themselves, were liquor people. Those most interested happen to be located in Philadelphia. Which presents a double-barreled argument for opponents of the concession.

Louisiana finds herself supported by the corn belt in protesting against this upset on the sugar quota, whereas just recently the corn belt was sore with the liquor people for using molasses from Louisiana. Moreover the corn belt boys are sore because if the price of molasses had kept on mounting, as the Louisiana planters had hoped it would, the liquor people would have turned back to corn anyway.

But the end is not yet. For the liquor people are not satisfied, even with the concession on Porto Rican molasses. Now they want the same concession made for the Philippines—despite the fact that the sugar interests were most potent in the fight to give the Philippines their independence in the hope of eventually getting rid of Philippine competition on sugar.

So now the Philippine agitators will join the liquor people in insisting on having Philippine molasses—in excess of her sugar quota—admitted into the United States. And the corn belt boys are preparing to make Mr. Wallace's life miserable.

Long Perturbed

Huey Long is said by some close friends to be just a little perturbed about the selection of ex-Gov. Dan Moody of Texas to prosecute alleged tax evasion cases in Louisiana. This is one reason Long has been making such a crusade against Postmaster General James A. Farley. He hopes to do just about what Senator Burton K. Wheeler did to Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty. And what Senator James Couzens of Michigan did to Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon. In short, to beat them to the punch. So that when later developments are aired the country will get the impression that Long is being "persecuted."

It is no secret that the government thinks it has the goods on Huey. There is no doubt whatever that Dan Moody was convinced, in his recent interview here with Department of Justice and treasury officials, that they had a good case.

The really interesting part of the story is why Moody was picked. It was on the recommendation of some very high New Deal advisers who knew the Texas situation intimately. They clinched their case for Moody when they told of the prosecutions that made him famous.

At that time Moody, only thirty-two years old, was attorney general of Texas. He went after a group, which was suspected of having made some fat profits out of road contracts. He did a masterly job of investigating first, and then so enmeshed the small fry that before they knew what they were doing they had dragged the higher-ups into the picture. So the astonishing picture was held up to Texas of actually putting the big fellows—the men behind—in jail.

Made Moody a Hero

All of which made Moody a hero. He was elected governor and then re-elected. In fact, his popularity lasted until he, although a Baptist and a thirty-second-degree Mason, decided to support the nominee of the Houston convention for President. This happened to be Al Smith, and Texas did not take kindly to Smith's candidacy. Nor to its popular governor supporting him. This is important at the moment for several reasons. First, because Moody knew he was running counter to public sentiment. He told friends at the Houston convention that he did not think Smith would have a chance of carrying Texas if nominated. As a delegate he did not vote for Smith, but for Jesse Jones. But Al Smith once nominated, Moody took the unpopular course and went through for the New York candidate.

So that while his judgment was sound, his determination to do what he thought was the right thing regardless of consequences was also demonstrated. Afterward he retired to private life, and has been doing pretty well since at the practice of law.

The Long case promises to put him back in the national picture. His friends are enthusiastic about his prospects. He is only forty-three now, so he can wait. But they are sure he will wind up with the scalps of both the Kingfish and Gov. O. K. Allen, as well as many of their lieutenants. Which would make him a figure all over the country.

has been radically reduced!

Instead of paying $36.50 you now pay

$9.75 FOR A LIMITED TIME ONLY

Now you can afford the convenience of this finest of all gas services. This temporary reduction in the fee for Pyrofax equipment is the third step in our economy program to bring you clean, modern cooking at a low price. The first step was low monthly terms. The second step was the sliding scale of gas prices which lowered the yearly cost of gas in the average home considerably. And now we take pleasure in announcing this third important step.

Now that all three are in effect, Pyrofax Gas Service is so economical that almost any family can afford it. This offer is good for a limited time only, so don't delay. Come in today and let us show you, in actual figures, how little it costs to cook with clean, modern Pyrofax Gas.

PETER DESCRIBES THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

LESSON TEXT—1 Peter 3:8-18.
GOLDEN TEXT—But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts; and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear. 1 Peter 3:15.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Following Jesus Every Day.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Way of Living.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living Like a Christian.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Practicing Our Christian Profession.

Having given instructions to citizens (2:13, 14), servants (2:18), wives (3:1-6), and husbands (3:7), Peter now sets forth the attitudes and motives which are required for the perfection of all the relations of human life.

1. Characteristics of the Christian Life (vv. 8-11).

These find expression in personal attitudes and manner of living.

1. Toward fellow believers (v. 8).
a. "All of one mind." This means unity of thought and feeling. Christians being united to the one Lord Jesus Christ, animated by the one Holy Spirit and governed by the one Book, the Holy Scriptures, will inevitably come into possession of like-mindedness.

b. "Having compassion one of another." This means more than sympathy in times of sorrow. It means the sharing of joys as well as sorrows.
c. "Love as brethren." Being of the one family, a common affection should dominate its members.

d. "Be pitiful." This means tenderheartedness, expressing itself in sympathy toward the helpless and needy.
e. "Be courteous." This means friendliness, Christian politeness.

2. Toward the world (vv. 9-11).
a. "Not rendering evil for evil." Positively expressed, this means doing good for evil. The natural man renders evil for evil. The believer has been called thus to manifest the spirit of Christ.

b. "Eschew evil and do good" (v. 11). This means to shun or turn away from evil. It means the bending away from one's course at the approach of evil and the positive doing of good.

c. "Seek peace, and ensue it." It is not enough for a believer to refrain from conflict. He must bend every energy in the direction of peace.

II. Incentives to Christian Living (vv. 12-14).
1. "The eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers" (v. 12). God not only takes account of their efforts to live righteously, but his ears are open to hear their cries for help.

2. "The face of the Lord is against them that do evil" (v. 13). God will surely visit in judgment those who depart from the way of right living.

3. God will protect and keep those who will bend their energies to the doing of good (v. 13).

4. Happiness in suffering (v. 14). This means the suffering which results from the pursuing of the ways of righteousness.

III. How the Christian Life Can Be Lived (vv. 15, 16).
It cannot be lived in the power of human strength. A divine dynamic is provided.

1. "Sanctify the Lord God in your hearts" (v. 15). The Revised Version says, "Sanctify Christ as Lord," or throne Jesus Christ as the Lord of life.

2. Be ready to give a reason for your hope (v. 15). A Christian should have an understanding of his faith, such as to give a reason to the inquirer. The Christian's faith rests upon the highest reason.

3. Live a conscientious life (v. 16). One's life should be so lived that the consciousness that actions are consistent before God and man is possible. Such a life will put to shame evil men who falsely accuse and spitefully use the believer.

IV. The Issue of the Christian Life (vv. 17, 18).
Christ said to the disciples that they would receive the same treatment that the world accorded him. Paul says, "All that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution" (II Tim. 3:12). If God wills that we suffer for well doing, let us rejoice, looking to Christ as our supreme example.

Greatness and Humility
I believe that the first test of a truly great man is his humility. I do not mean by humility doubt of his own power, hesitation of speaking his opinions, but a right understanding of the relation of what he can do and say to the rest of the world's doings and sayings.—Charles Spurgeon.

Helps to Better Faith
Every noble act of devotion to truth, every pure life unstained with evil, every word of pity, every instance of forgiving goodness, helps us to a better faith in that divine and eternal goodness which has no variability or shadow of turning.—Dr. J. F. Clarke.

Try It Yourself
Whatever may be said of the philosophy of Coleridge, his proof of the truth of Christianity was most simple and conclusive. It consisted in the words, "Try it for yourself."

BAKING ALMOST EXACT SCIENCE

There Is No Such Thing as Luck; Good or Bad.

By EDITH M. BARBER

MODERN recipes for cakes, biscuits, pie or roasts and other foods which are baked in the oven usually carry specific directions for the kind of oven, hot, moderate, or low which is best adapted for the preparation of each food. In looking over cook books published as late as five years ago we will often find a recipe in which careful directions are given for mixing the ingredients, but instructions for baking are not so thorough. I have often seen the one word "bake" stand alone.

The books published in the last few years go more into detail in regard to this important matter and will tell you to bake in a slow, moderate or hot oven as the case may be. Many of them go farther and give the degree of temperature which has been found best. Many of the latest models of stoves are equipped with an oven regulator which can be set at the point desired, and this will keep the temperature even throughout the baking.

We can use this degree method of baking, however, in any stove by the use of an oven thermometer. This will not actually regulate the temperature, but after the temperature has been reached it is not difficult to keep a fairly even heat by turning the flame up or down, as experience with the stove has showed us is best for the desired heat.

Authorities differ concerning just what is a slow oven, moderate or a hot oven. When I say slow oven I mean anything below 325 degrees F., for medium I use the degrees above 325 degrees F., and below 400 degrees F. From 400 degrees F. up is called a hot oven in my terminology.

I have heard women who have baked successfully for years say that it was ridiculous to bother with oven temperatures. I have heard others whose cakes and cookies are often burned and whose custards are often watery, say the same thing. The difference is that the first woman really did bother with oven temperatures. Because long experience had shown her how much heat should be turned into the oven to get the best results, she does not need special directions or thermometers or regulators, but she may find that she will like to use them, as she will find her mind relieved of responsibility if she absolutely knows her own oven is right, and that she will not have to bother looking in the oven until the time for baking has elapsed.

A slow oven is used for dishes made with the beaten egg whites which are used for the purpose of making the food rise, macaroons, angel and sponge cakes and meringues. It is used with meats and other foods which need a long, slow cooking, as meat casseroles, or baked beans.

Mrs. Stella Kelly, of Aurora, Ind., is visiting her niece Mrs. Hugh Baker.

Julian F. Bonta is visiting his brother John Bonta and Mrs. Bonta of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Custards, souffles and timbales may be baked in a slow oven or may be put in a pan of water and baked in a moderate oven. I prefer the latter way.

Pastry, biscuit and roasts demand a hot oven.
The great majority of baked dishes use a moderate oven. Muffins, butter cakes, cookies, egg dishes and some foods like scalloped potatoes which need a long cooking but which also need to brown well. When in doubt as to which kind of an oven to use, choose a moderate heat, as most foods are cooked at this range of temperature.

Cheese Souffle.

2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup scalded milk
1 teaspoon salt
Cayenne
¾ cup grated cheese
3 egg yolks
3 egg whites
Melt the butter, add the flour, and when well mixed add the milk and seasonings and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add the grated cheese and stir until melted. Beat the yolks of the eggs slightly and to them add the cooked mixture. Fold in the whites beaten stiff. Pour into a well greased baking dish and set in a pan of water. Bake forty minutes in a moderate oven, (350 degrees F.)

Baked Egg.

3 cups mashed potatoes
2 tablespoons butter
¾ cup milk
Salt
Pepper
Paprika
2 tablespoons chopped onions
5 eggs
Add the butter and milk to the hot mashed potatoes and season to taste. Beat well, add the onions and spread in a shallow baking dish. Make five hollows and in each place an egg. Sprinkle with paprika and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until eggs are firm.

Nut Bread.

8 cups whole wheat flour
1 cup white flour
1 cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
2 cups milk
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 egg
Mix the dry ingredients, add the nuts, beat the egg, add the milk to it and add to the dry ingredients. Pour into well greased bread pans. Let rise twenty minutes and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) fifty minutes to one hour. This recipe makes one good sized loaf or two small loaves.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in his first year to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for his foster daughter could not shield him from the hatred of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affairs ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to baseball games. Penelope hit into the bleachers, struck Penelope on the nose and the nose hit into the bleachers. Penelope was taken from the hospital which her mother had been in. Mrs. Gatlin refused from business, while Penelope all his money, and was about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a young young physician, was visited by Dan McNamara, chief of police. With a new attitude toward life, a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality, for which her mother was partly responsible. McNamara did not think she was a criminal and obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Even Lanny, the doctor's faithful once, who had been her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's clear explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny visited her and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter, which she smuggled out to her hands outside the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV—Nance escaped, although shot by swimming out a speed-boat manned by friends and went to Lanny's apartment. Lanny told Chief McNamara, who ordered her to bring Nance to his apartment and phoned for Doctor Burt.

CHAPTER V—One of the men in the boat on which Nance escaped was a bootlegger—had been wounded and they went to Burt's office where McNamara found them. The bootlegger he let go and he took the others to his home, ordering the injured one to care for Nance from there. From there he learned that Nance's real name was Penelope Gatlin. Detective Sergeant Flynn and Angellotti, seeking the reward offered for Nance's apprehension, went to Lanny's apartment in search of Nance. Looking over her San Quentin cell, McNamara found a blank check on a San Jose bank.

CHAPTER VI—From the San Jose bank McNamara learned that the girl he knew as Nance Belden was Penelope Gatlin, heiress to $750,000. The banker did not know Penelope's whereabouts. McNamara ordered Detective Sergeant Flynn and Angellotti, seeking the reward offered for Nance's apprehension, went to Lanny's apartment in search of Nance. Looking over her San Quentin cell, McNamara found a blank check on a San Jose bank.

CHAPTER VII—When Lanny got home one evening he found Nance sound asleep, curled up on her guest-room bed. Several days later the hard-boiled exterior of Nance Belden suddenly vanished and the girl became the refined Penelope Gatlin. Her partially restored memory led her to tell Lanny of her wealthy father, Theodore Gatlin, and of her childhood in France. Penelope, McNamara furnished her with tear and stink bombs and told her how to use them to escape if they did. She uses the bombs, and gets away. Flynn and Angellotti continued hot on Nance's trail—and McNamara.

CHAPTER VIII—Susan Engelbright, known as "Sapphire Susie," who had served a term in the blackbird, appeared and asked McNamara's protection from Flynn. She admitted that Nance had asked her to help her escape. Flynn and Angellotti were out of Nance's trail, but she had helped in her plans for escape. McNamara learned definitely that Nance (or Penelope) had sailed for France. He also discovered he was in love with Lanny, and learned that "Nance" was living in Paris as Penelope Gatlin. Doctor Burt had been treating Mrs. Rudolph Merton, and McNamara discovered that this woman was Penelope's foster-mother, remarried.

There is more than a modicum of truth in the ancient adage, "Out of sight, out of mind." Dan McNamara lived a very full life; and when Nance Belden had definitely passed beyond his ken and he knew himself safe at last from the prying of Messrs. Flynn and Angellotti into his private affairs, he forgot the girl, for pressing matters of great importance claimed his attention and he required more first-class assistance than he was receiving. He resolved, therefore, to give Flynn and Angellotti a week in which to make up their minds to which lost the trail; then to call them in.

On the sixth day, however, he received information that the doughy pair were still as busy as two pups with a feather duster. A beautiful lady called on him at his office and told him so.

"And who might you be?" he demanded.

"I'm Susan Engelbright."

"I am not aware that I have the pleasure of your acquaintance, Miss Engelbright."

"You haven't. I was sent up from Oakland."

"Oh! Alias Sapphire Susie! I've heard of you lately."

"Perhaps. I hooked three twelve-carat sapphire rings to raise money, and the papers called me Sapphire Susie after that."

"I see you got them out of hock again, Susie."

The girl nodded. "Nance Belden got them out for me."

"Part of the bargain for smuggling that letter out of San Quentin for her, I suppose."

"Never mind what it was for," Sapphire Susie smiled archly and unafraid. "I earned it and she kept her word."

"Check or cash?" McNamara was frightened. If Sapphire Susie had been given a check, then she knew Nance Belden's real name and the name of her bank. And that would be fatal.

"I don't know. I gave her the pawn tickets and she got back the rings. I don't know just how."

"When?" He was relieved.

"A week ago tomorrow."

"And you say Detective Sergeant Flynn has been giving you a bad hair hour?"

"Yes, he has."

"Well, that's his business. Nance Belden escaped from San Quentin and naturally he's interested in apprehending her. You were recognized by the guard at the main gate two weeks before Nance escaped. Miss Lanning, a friend of the Belden girl, had visited the prisoner that day, and since Miss Lanning was the only visitor Nance Belden had in San Quentin, naturally she was suspected of carrying a letter for delivery to the men who helped Nance escape. You rode down to Greenbrae with Miss Lanning, and she slipped the letter to you, of course. Flynn knows that. But why come to me with your tale of woe?"

"I've run straight since getting out of the pen. I served my time and I want to be let alone—that's why! Flynn told me that if I didn't come through and tell him where he could find Nance Belden he'd see to it that something nasty happened to me. I don't know where Nance Belden is. And I want protection from Patrick Flynn."

"You seem pretty sure of me, don't you?"

"Well, Nance told me that you were one human being. And I called on Miss Lanning last night to tell her to warn Nance that the dicks were after her, and Miss Lanning told me to see you about it. She said you'd see I got a square deal."

"She did so, now? How did Miss Lanning treat you otherwise?"

"She kissed me and gave me a hundred dollars and told me to be as good as I could. The old girl is sure a darling."

"Did you ask her for the hundred?"

"Of course not."

"The chief eyed her owlishly, for he distrusted Sapphire Susie, and wondered if she might not be working in the interests of Flynn and Angellotti."

"This is interesting," he admitted heavily. "Of course I only kept in touch with the upper office through the captain of detectives. If he set Flynn on this job he should have interviewed you a couple of weeks ago. Seems to me he has overlooked a good bet. If he'd had you under surveillance a week ago he'd have picked up Nance Belden when she came to you to deliver the rings. Flynn's a crackjack detective," he added sadly. "But this looks as if he's slipping."

"That bird don't slip very far, take it from me, Chief. He met me on the street the day before yesterday and noticed I was wearing my big ring and my earrings. 'Hello, kid,' he says, 'I see you got your sapphires on again.' I says to him, 'Fall dead, you bum,' and walked on. And the next night he came up to my room. 'Nance Belden got them sapphires out of hock for you, Susie, my dear,' he says kindly. 'I want that trail. Where is she?'"

"And you wouldn't tell him, even if you could?"

"That's a fact. I wouldn't snitch on her."

"You wouldn't expect me to interfere in the work of a detective sergeant when he appears to be doing a good job, would you, Susie? But I give you my word, Susie, that if you run straight in this city I'll see to it that you're not harassed. Of course you helped Nance Belden to escape from San Quentin, and I know it, but I can't prove it; if I could I'd put you in the birdcage this minute. And I'll not put Flynn off the case, although if he gets too rough I'll stop him."

"He's got me scared to death," Sapphire Susie declared, and commenced to weep a little; whereat McNamara her to be a good girl in the future. What a rare good sport Lanny was! And how good God had been to all concerned! In the pursuit of Nance, Flynn and Angellotti had followed such a hot trail they had forgotten Sapphire Susie was a pal of Nance's, but afterwards, when the trail grew cold, they had suddenly remembered her.

That Flynn was a marvel, and McNamara aghast to think the fellow could not be promoted instantly. In all probability he had not at first connected Nance Belden with the glory of Susie's sapphires. Undoubtedly he had jumped to the conclusion that the girl had been up to her old trick of blackmailing some wealthy and socially prominent masculine jackass. So he had looked up her record in the police files. Here he had discovered something that must have convinced him of Susie's total innocence of sapphires during the trial, certainly she had not carried them to San Quentin with her, and the obvious conclusion was that she had pawned them to raise money to pay her attorney. In the hope of discovering the identity of Susie's latest victim (who, he assumed, had redeemed them for her) Flynn had thereupon made a round of the pawnshops and located the one from which the jewels had lately been redeemed; from the pawnbroker he had secured a description of the one who had redeemed them. No pawnbroker would be likely to forget Nance Belden's nose of McNamara shuddered. If Nance should visit Sapphire Susie now, she would undoubtedly walk straight into the arms of the waiting Flynn or Angellotti.

Well, Nance Belden had stolen a dozen pairs of silk hose, but apparently Penelope Gatlin paid her debts. The chief wondered if he had loaned Nance Belden or Penelope Gatlin two hundred dollars, for of course they were two separate and distinct personalities inhabiting the same body. If Nance Belden had accepted the loan, then McNamara could kiss the money good-by. If, on the other hand, Penelope Gatlin had accepted it, then, some day, when Nance had changed places with Penelope, he would get it back. Well, he could trace her progress through the world by the drafts she would cash. Her bank in San Jose would give him that information.

He took down the telephone and called the bank. Yes, a draft had just come in. Drawn for four hundred and thirty-five dollars in favor of the French line, dated three days previously at New York. It had come across the continent by air mail. McNamara thanked the president of the bank and called up the French line's San Francisco office. After some difficulty he discovered that four hundred and thirty-five dollars was payment of one first cabin passage to Havre and that the Ile de France had sailed from New York during the past three days.

Instantly Dan McNamara shot a straight telegram to police headquarters in New York, requesting that the passenger list of the Ile de France be checked to see whether Nance Belden or Penelope Gatlin had taken passage on her. Four hours later he received a reply to the effect that Nance Belden was not aboard but that Penelope Gatlin was.

"Nothing is lost if you know where it is," McNamara decided happily, and sent a cable to the prefect of police at Havre, requesting him to pick up Penelope Gatlin on her arrival at that port, shadow her and report by cable, collect the girl's destination, the names and addresses of those who should meet her and any other information that would aid in keeping track of the girl.

The following day McNamara sent for Detective-Sergeants Flynn and Angellotti. As they ranged themselves, more or less at attention, in front of his desk, the chief leaned back in his chair and bent upon the pair a long, severe and penetrating look. They grew a little fidgety before he spoke.

"Well, boys, how are your private affairs prospering?"

Both shrugged, unwilling to be definite.

"They are unprosperous," the chief challenged, "so I have called you in to express the hope that you are now quite willing to abandon your private practice and return to work for the city and county of San Francisco. You draw salary from the taxpayers, you know. I may have been mistaken, Angellotti, but I thought I saw you out in Mission recently when you were supposed to be working on that racketeer killing over in North Beach. However, I'll overlook that on the assumption that you permitted yourself to be led astray by Flynn. Flynn, you lay off Sapphire Susie until that enterprising young woman does something you can pin on her. Then bring her in."

"She's done something and I'll pin it on her yet," Flynn growled, "and you know what it is." Flynn, being Irish, was unwilling that his chief should regard him as deficient in intelligence and enterprise.

"We understand each other thoroughly, Flynn. You've been after that Belden girl and you've made a mess of it. He opened his desk drawer and drew out two envelopes. One was addressed to Flynn and the other to Angellotti and both envelopes bore the return address of a prominent New York hotel, but were neither stamped nor postmarked. "These two envelopes came in a large envelope addressed to me," McNamara explained. "They're sealed." He handed each detective his letter and watched as they opened them and drew forth typewritten letters and two hundred and fifty dollars in bills. Flynn's letter was, undoubtedly, a carbon copy of Angellotti's.

Flynn perused his letter and handed it to the chief, who read:

"Dear Mr. Flynn:

"You poor dear, you have worked so hard and so intelligently and in such dreadfully hard luck that my heart goes out to you. You were working for the reward, of course—no doubt because you needed the money. You and Mr. Angellotti would have had to divide two hundred and fifty dollars had you recaptured me, but just to prove I'm a sport and not holding any mean little grudge, I'm sending you each two hundred and fifty dollars. Please be good and try to forget all the unpleasant incidents. You will never get me now, so do give up your attempts, like good boys."

The letter was unsigned.

"How much did you get, Angellotti?" McNamara queried softly.

"Two fifty. Chief."

"Santa Claus has been good to you two, hasn't he? Well, are you both willing to go back to your regular jobs now?"

Flynn threw the money on the chief's desk. "We swore an oath—" he began, but McNamara cut him short.

"So have I!" he reminded Flynn fiercely.

"We know every move you're made in this case," Flynn shouted.

"And I knew every move you were going to make before you made it."

Angellotti tucked his present in his pocket. "Come on, Flynn," he urged.

"I can't be called off for money," Flynn persisted stubbornly.

Dan McNamara swept the money on his desk into the drawer. "The widows and orphans of the Policemen's Benevolent and Protective association will be glad to get this. On your way—you and your oath."

Flynn sighed deeply and went out. Fifteen minutes later he came back and said humbly: "Chief, I've changed my mind."

Alas! McNamara was Irish, too. He glanced at the clock. "You're fifteen minutes late, so I'll fine you two hundred and fifty dollars for tardiness and impudence and disloyalty and house-breaking."

"I'll get you for this, McNamara!"

"I don't think so. My advice to you, Pat Flynn, would be to quit monkeying with TNT. I've known detective-sergeants to be taken for a ride."

"Threatening me, eh?"

"Not at all. I wouldn't harm a hair of your red head—and by the way, red hair in the Irish is a sign that they breed back to the Danes and Swedes. A pure-bred Irishman would know enough to lay off a girl with powerful and implacable friends. All you were after was a hundred and twenty-five dollars—half the state reward for recapturing that girl—and when she sends you double that you're not sport enough to meet her half-way."

"I took an oath," Flynn mumbled.

"You should have taken a phylis."

"Well, I did take an emetic. Chief I'll never forgive you those tear and stink bombs."

"Well, you shadowed my house and entered it unlawfully."

"Well, I found a lipstick."

"Belonged to the nurse I had looking after a sick friend of mine," the chief lied glibly.

But Flynn only grinned ferociously.

"I found stained bandages, too."

"Well, the not can't get nowhere by calling the kettle black," McNamara decided. "Clear out!"

"Give me the money and I'll lay off."

But Dan McNamara shook his head.

"I know your kind, Pat. There's no sense wasting good money on you because you won't stay bought. Clear out, I tell you."

So Flynn cleared out, carrying with him infinitely more respect for his chief than he had heretofore entertained. Well, some day he'd collect heavy interest on that two hundred and fifty dollars.

The last patient had left Stephen Burt's office for the day and the ever watchful Lanny had locked the office door.

"Tired, Stevie?" she queried anxiously, as he loaded his pipe.

"No, of course not," he replied abruptly. "What have I done to be tired?"

"Well, you had another session with that terrible Mrs. Merton."

"She doesn't weary me any more. She merely excites my sympathy. Still sleepless, of course, and still bothered about her poor devil of a husband. She's had detectives on his trail for a month. They've cost her ten dollars a day each and they haven't discovered anything to Merton's discredit."

"It's about time for Mrs. Merton to commence hearing voices of sorts," Lanny commented dryly. "Highball, Stevie!"

"Yes, thank you, Lanny," he said, and deluged Lanny with his sunny smile. "Yes, Mrs. Merton is hearing voices. Her first husband who is dead keeps whispering through space to her. He's trying to tell her how sorry he is. I understand he made a dirty will."

"He would—if he had any common sense. What a poor, beaten devil Merton is! He hasn't the courage of a mouse."

"What can he do, Lanny? His wife is unbalanced, but if he swears out a warrant charging her with insanity, she'll snap out of her lunacy. Mrs. Merton isn't sufficiently insane to be incarcerated. And she's a beautiful woman, well-to-do, respectable. Merton couldn't get to first base on an insanity warrant."

"Then why doesn't he divorce her on grounds of mental cruelty?"

"The man's chivalrous and profoundly sympathetic. Besides, he hasn't any witnesses to prove a charge of mental cruelty. And he can't run away from her, because he has a thriving business he may not abandon. I told her again today not to come to my office any more; that I could do nothing for her; that she was a nuisance—and to try some other doctor. She went out in a rage."

Lanny jumped up. "Now who do you suppose that is knocking? Your office hours are plainly printed on the door."

"Oh, Lanny, don't be so hard-bodded. Let the patient in."

"Who's there?" Lanny shouted angrily.

"Oh! So it's you, is it? I knew you were there," the voice of Dan McNamara boomed.

Lanny unlocked the door. "Lucky for you you're not a nut, Dan. Stevie and I are just planning one on."

"I'll join you, if that's the case," McNamara proffered his huge hand, that resembled nothing so much in life as a bunch of bananas. "Howdy, Medico." He planted himself in the visitors' chair.

"You have news of Nance Belden," Stephen challenged.

"Gobs of it, Doctor."

Lanny entered with a highball. "I had a letter from Nance yesterday, Dan. She's in Paris. Can you beat that?"

"I can," McNamara replied coolly. "She's got an apartment at twenty-seven Rue St. Honore, with a cook and a maid, and a chauffeur who drives her around in a Citroen car. And she's having her picture painted."

"She's written you, too, then?"

"Divil a line. I have my information from the prefect of police of Paris."

"Dan, you're marvelous!"

NOTICE TO DOG OWNERS

The 1930 Legislature passed an Act requiring the Sheriffs of the various counties to collect the Dog License Fee. The law (Sec. 17) says: "On and after January 1, 1931, it shall be unlawful for any person to own or keep any dog, unless such dog is licensed by the Sheriff or Deputy of the County in which the dog is kept." (Sec. 22) says: "It shall be unlawful for any person to harbor or permit to remain on his premises any dog not having a license. (Sec. 23) says: "Any person other than an officer violating the provisions of this act or failing or refusing to comply with any of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be adjudged to pay a fine not to exceed $100.00."

Section 20 says: "For failure to perform any duty under this act, any officer shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $10.00 and not more than $100.00."

The State Man has made several trips to this office regarding the payment of this tax; and has informed me that it must be paid. I cannot afford to get into trouble by failing to enforce the law. Come and get your license before Court Orders are issued for you.

Every dog owner who owns or harbors a dog not licensed is subject to a fine. I do not want to cause any one to have to pay a fine and cost, but I must do my duty.

After April 1st, 1935, I shall with the assistance of the County Judge and County Attorney proceed to hold Courts of Inquiry to ascertain the parties who have unlicensed dogs.

Yours very truly,

W. B. COTTON,
SHERIFF BOONE COUNTY

Tin Roof In

Use For 67 Years

Windstorm last Friday blew off half of a tin roof which for 67 years had been on the residence of Tom Fowler, of the Coleburg vicinity. Poplar sheeting, 24 to 32 inches wide, attached to the rafters with old hand forged nails, was found to be in perfect condition.—Hardin County Enterprise, Elizabethtown.

Old Silver

Mine Is Found

A sheepskin found recently in the hollow of a log of an old house on the farm of John Barkley on the Cumberland River near Hall may lead Mr. Barkley to considerable wealth. Written on the sheepskin were directions as to how to find an old silver mine.

Implicitly following instructions on the sheepskin, Mr. Barkley went to a cave on his place and, with considerable difficulty, managed to find the entrance to the mine.

Two samples of the mineral were sent to metallurgists who, after careful analysis, reported the metal was very rich in silver. Mr. Barkley is planning to immediately develop the mine and build a new entrance. Residents of the Hall neighborhood are excited over the discovery and hope that many tons of the white metallic element will be found in their section.—Commonwealth, Somerset.

Rooster Rides

On Auto Bumper

A big red rooster enjoyed a trip to town and return home Tuesday night, and incidentally attended the basket ball game.

Orville Hamilton drove his auto from his home and attended the basket ball game at the high school. When he arrived in town and parked his car the rooster was found perched on the rear bumper of the car, having ridden all the way from his home at Sycamore Corner. He left the rooster undisturbed and drove the car to the high school where he attended the basket ball game. After he game, he found the rooster still sitting contentedly on the bumper. Starting his car he proceeded at a good speed on to his home, where he arrived with the rooster still clinging on the bumper for dear life, none the worse for its first and unusual "joy-ride."—Tribune-Democrat, Mt. Olive.

Indian Skeleton

Is Found In Cave

An Indian skeleton found in a cave on the farm of R. A. White, was brought to the Record-Herald office last week by Robert Cross who made the discovery. The skeleton was buried in several feet of clay, and in digging it out a number of the bones were broken apart. The farm of Mr. White was evidently a burial ground for some tribe of Indians as on former occasions Indian skeleton and trinkets have been discovered. On one occasion a few years ago a skeleton was discovered which had laid over its chest a copper plate with a number of characters and drawings cut into it. Unfortunately the parties making the discovery cut the plate into small bits for souvenirs rendering the find valueless.—Record-Herald, Greensburg.

Our
Loan Policy

THE right kind of a bank is just as anxious to make good loans as the manufacturer, merchant or farmer is to sell his products.

This Bank welcomes every opportunity to make sound loans to its depositors whether the amounts required be large or small.

The point that many would-be-borrowers overlook, however, is that the money a bank lends is not the bank's nor the banker's—it is the depositors' money.

Hence, a bank must investigate the guarantees given by the borrower very carefully.

FREDERICK WALLACE

CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Frankfort, Ky., March 19.—Frederick A. Wallis of Paris, who has announced his candidacy for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, is a native Kentuckian whose public career took him to New York for a number of years.

He was born in Christian county in 1869 and in 1901 married Miss Nannie Williams Clay of Paris, Ky. In 1920 President Wilson appointed him Commissioner of Immigration, a position he held until the end of the Harding administration.

Wallis' career in New York after his service as Commissioner of Immigration was marked by an active interest in politics, welfare and church work. He managed John F. Hyland's successful campaign for mayor of New York City and served as deputy police commissioner under Hyland. Later he became Commissioner of Corrections for New York.

In the early part of 1929, he resigned as general agent of the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York and returned to Kentucky and has since lived on his farm in Bourbon county and actively engaged in farming. His success as an insurance man made him financially independent.

As a church and social worker in New York Wallis accomplished many things. After the war, he secured for the City of New York a $250,000 police boat at a cost of one dollar. In nine days he directed a group that sold $250,000 worth of Liberty Bonds during the war.

A member of the Presbyterian church, Wallis has been an elder of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church in New York for 20 years and Chairman of one of its important boards for 18 years. He was president of the New York State Christian Endeavor for several years and was a trustee of the International Society of Christian Endeavor. He is widely known as a lecturer.

MANY TO START

IN GUBERNATORIAL RACE—OFFICERS OF PRESENT ADMINISTRATION SEEK NOMINATION

Frankfort is a good place to find out what has happened, politically. It is the worst place in Kentucky to try to find out what will happen. Every source there is biased.

At this writing the sources there are in favor of State Highway Chairman Thomas S. Rhea, of Russellville for the Democratic nomination for governor. The governor, through the action of the court of appeals, has a free hand to remove any appointee. All he needs, as an Ethiopian soldier might say, "is yo' name an' address."

Therefore, Frankfort predicts, despite the new primary law, an "old fashioned" primary with Mr. Rhea and former United States Senator J. C. W. Beckham as the principals. The other aspirants say that the wish is father to the thought and that no such thing will happen.

Attorney General Bailey P. Wootton announced his candidacy during the week. He recently made a visit to western Kentucky as far as Greenville and came back enthused over the prospects. As his home is in Hazard he has a very good cross section of the state from which to judge sentiment.

General Wootton's formal announcement during the week declared in favor of abolishing numerous government boards.

Big Opening For Wallis
Frederick A. Wallis, of Paris, is considering a big opening, probably in Western Kentucky. He is planning meetings soon in Benton, Henderson, Corbin and Cretsburg. He has been urged by his friends in these places to stage meetings there soon. An original primary man, he has claimed from the start that if given a primary he would win. He has been all through the state many times in recent years in connection with federal or patriotic work and in line with his duties as chairman of the Democratic finance committee. Mr. Wallis declares that there is no question in his mind that a majority of the people desire a line-up behind him due to a constructive program which he will advance and because of the opportunity to unite all factions.

Mr. Wallis said recently that he is not concerned with who else runs. He intends to make his own race, he said, without regarding the others and believes he has enough votes to win over any competition. Very probably Mr. Wallis will open headquarters in both Louisville and Lexington and make a campaign far exceeding anything the state has even seen.

Richmond in the Field
State Superintendent of Public Instruction James H. Richmond is another who remains actively in the field of aspirants although not yet an announced seeker of the nomination.

Mr. Richmond said during the week that he intends to run it out. State Treasurer, Elam Huddleston opened headquarters in the Seelbach Hotel in Louisville this week, and State Inspector and Examiner Nat. B. Sewell is listening to the bees.

BOONE COUNTY

DAIRY HERD LEADS STATE—JOEL GRAY MAKES FINE RECORD

The nine cow purebred and grade Guernsey dairy herd of Joel Gray, of near Burlington, was the highest producing herd in the Shelby-Boone-Carroll county Dairy Herd Improvement Association and was the second highest dairy herd among the Improvement Association herds in the State during February according to the Dairy Department report from the College of Agriculture at the University of Kentucky.

Mr. Gray's herd with seven cows in milk and two dry averaged 710 pounds of milk and 345 pounds of fat per cow for the month. The second highest herd in the association composed of 55 cows owned by P. B. Gaines of Carrollton, averaged 532 pounds of milk and 278 pounds of butter fat per cow for the month.

Mr. Gray has been a regular member of the Boone County Dairy Herd Improvement Association since 1929 and has followed a close system of record keeping and a recommended feeding and production breeding program.

O. R. RUSS JOINS D. H. I. ASSOCIATION

Mr. O. R. Russ of near Limburg, listed his herd the past month in the Shelby-Boone-Carroll County Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

Mr. Russ is a member of the Boone County Jersey Bull Association No. 1 and has a splendid herd of purebred and grade Jersey cows. The Boone County members of the Association are W. G. Kite, O. W. Purdy, Joel Gray, Ben Nichting and O. R. Russ.

SECOND 4-H MEETINGS SHOW INCREASED ENROLLMENT

The second meetings in the nine Community clubs held the past week showed increased enrollment and more experienced adult leadership according to H. R. Forkner. Florence XI-All club boasts of the largest community enrollment of approximately sixty-five members. New Haven Boosters has the largest project group composed of twenty-six enrolled in the tobacco project under the adult leadership of Mr. J. F. Cleek.

Each project group within the community club has been organized under the supervision of an adult leader and a project group captain. The groups have been supplied with their project outlines and record books. Good reports on the starting of project work are expected at the third community club meetings which begin this week.

Miss Ruth Kelly received an appointment in the Census Department, Washington, D. C., and left for that city to take up her work there. Miss Kelly is very efficient in that type of work and undoubtedly will render excellent service in this branch of governmental work.

INCOME TAX

COLLECTED DURING MARCH EXCEEDS THAT OF LAST YEAR

Louisville, Ky., March 28—Income taxes collected in Kentucky from March 1st to March 15th, totaled $946,014.11, which exceeds collections in the same period last year $361,388.15, it is announced by Collector Seldon R. Glenn.

Income tax collections from the nation in this period increased 29 per cent over last year, totalling $191,358,909.26 as compared with $147,794,894.18 collected the first half of March in 1934.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Guy T. Helvering, said increased collections on income tax returns were general throughout the nation, only six collection districts out of the 64 showing a decrease from the amount collected last year.

He pointed out, too, that the Collectors had on hand undeposited at the close of business, March 15, approximately $55,000,000. Collectors kept their offices open until midnight March 15, therefore entire deposits could not be made for the late collections. The total income tax collections for the first 15 days of March this year, will, therefore, aggregate about $246,000,000.

CORN-HOG

CONTRACTS SIGNED — 164 CONTRACTS TO DATE

One hundred and sixty-four AAA corn-hog contracts were signed up until Saturday of last week, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. More than one hundred and seventy-five contracts are expected to be signed before the closing date, April 1. The number of contracts listed by districts are as follows:

Eurlington-Hebron	52
Petersburg-Grant	37
Hamilton	30
Union-Beaver	12
Walton-Verona	14
Florence-Constance	19

Total 164

The Committeemen in most communities have completed the appraising of yields per acre on land of contract signers. Signers receive thirty-five cents per bushel on the appraised yield per acre on all corn land taken out of production. Fifteen dollars per head is paid for 10% of the hog based reduced.

Those who are expecting to sign contracts should sign applications at the County Agent's office in Burlington before the closing date on Monday, April 1. The contract, this year is the most lenient offered to date so far as restrictions are concerned.

STATE PARKS

OF KENTUCKY—TWELVE STATE PARKS COMPRISE EIGHT THOUSAND ACRES

The Kentucky State Parks Annual, official paper of the Kentucky State Parks, was recently received by the Recorder. This publication is presented to the nature lover, the tourist, the vacationist, and those who will revel in the scenic historic, and romantic beauty of Kentucky.

The value of State-owned Parks to a community and the State is immeasurable, not only as a recreational center but for commercial purposes as well, for business and all kinds are benefited from the influx of trade. They should not cost the taxpayers a penny, and if properly managed, can be made a source of income to the State.

The State Parks and location of each are as follows:

Cumberland Falls State Park, located in Whitley and McCreary counties.

Natural Bridge State Park, in Powell and Wolfe counties.

Levi Jackson Wilderness Road State Park, in Laurel county.

Pine Mountain State Park in Bell county.

Henderson Audubon Memorial State Park in Henderson county.

Butler Memorial State Park, at Carrollton, Ky.—the only State Park in Northern Kentucky.

The Columbus-Belmont Memorial State Park in Hickman county.

Blue Licks Battlefield State Park on the oldest highway in America, the famous "Old Revolutionary Trail."

Pioneer Memorial State Park near Harrodsburg.

Old Mulkey Meeting House Memorial State Park in Monroe county.

THE BURLEY

SITUATION ACCORDING TO GOVERNMENT FIGURES

Benefit payments to Burley growers for participation in the 1934 tobacco production adjustment program made the total income for the 1934 crop approximately $14,000,000 greater than for the 1933 crop. Farm value for the 1934 crop was approximately the same as that of the 1933 crop, notwithstanding the fact that the crop was about 40 percent smaller. The marketing agreement in effect for the 1933 crop strengthened prices materially, but the adjustment program had a much more marked effect on prices received for the 1934 crop.

The average price for Burley marketed from the 1934 crop was approximately 17 cents per pound, compared to an average of 10.6 cents per pound for the 1933 crop. This is the highest average price received by Burley growers since 1929. Sales from the 1934 crop amounted to approximately 235,000,000 pounds. This is about 50 million pounds below annual world consumption, and the smallest crop since 1927.

Practically the entire Burley crop is consumed in the United States. Of this, about 55 percent is used in cigarettes. Consumption of cigarettes for the seven months ending January 31, 1935, was 13.6 percent above that of the same period last year. Exports of Burley tobacco usually account for only about 3 percent of the total crop. However, exports for the first four months of the present marketing season were 57 percent above that of the same period last year.

Due to the building up of stocks from the excess of production over consumption during previous years, stocks of Burley on hand October 1, 1934, together with the 1934 crop made a total supply of 1,072,000,000 pounds. This supply is sufficient to last nearly four years at the present rate of world consumption. During the five years from 1925 to 1929, the supply of Burley tobacco averaged approximately 2.6 times between supply and consumption to be normal, the existing supply of Burley exceeds present requirements by approximately 330,000,000 pounds, an amount equivalent to more than one year's consumption.

The supply situation is improving although the serious need for continued adjustment is shown by the stocks of Burley October 1, the beginning of the marketing season, were the largest on record. Domestic consumption and exports are increasing, and the 1935 program which will again bring production below the level of consumption will still reduce the burden of surplus.

Mrs. Luther Smith is ill with the mumps.

W.O.W. - MEETING

FROM KENTUCKY WILL MEET SOON IN EVANSVILLE

An unusually large attendance of members of the Woodmen of the World of Kentucky is expected at the biennial Head Camp meeting of the organization at Evansville, April 8-9, according to an announcement today by Odie Duncan, head consul for the state.

Woodmen of the World members it was pointed out, are always keenly interested in the progress of this state because the national association has a large investment in its municipal, county and state securities.

The gross assets of the association have grown to more than $119,000,000, making it outstanding as the largest and richest fraternal life insurance association in the world. The consistent growth of the association, which operates in 44 states of the Union, is shown by the fact that in 1934 its gross assets increased more than $4,000,000, with a net gain of 12,322 members.

The association has invested more than $108,000,000 in government, state, county and municipal bonds. Since its organization in 1890 it has paid in death losses and disability benefits more than $240,000,000. It has a membership of more than 355,000.

FLORENCE H. S.

MAKES FINE SHOWING IN THE NORTHERN DISTRICT TOURNAMENT

The Florence High School Debating Teams represented the Florence school in a most creditable manner in the Northern Ky. District Tournament held at the Ludlow High School on March 22. The district includes Kenton, Campbell, Boone, Grant and Pendleton counties. Sixteen debate teams were entered in the tournament.

The Florence teams went to the Semi-Finals where they were defeated by the Holmes High School club by a score of 189 to 180. The Negative team was composed of the following members: Miss Lillie Taylor, Miss Helen Taylor, and Mr. Edward Tallis. The Affirmative team was represented by Miss Mary Kate Scott, Miss Gene Lutes and Miss Alma Zapp. The Negative team defeated the Ludlow High School in their first debate. The Florence Affirmative team defeated the Mason High School Negative team in their second debate. Then the Florence Affirmative team lost to the Holmes High school Negative team in the Semi-Finals. In other words if the Florence Affirmative team could have defeated the Holmes High school team in their last debate they would have been permitted to participate in the state tournament held at the University of Kentucky next week. This is the best showing the school has ever made along this particular line.

In the oratorical contest Edward Tallis of the Florence school won third place. Mr. Tallis is also on the debate team, and in both events he made a good showing for the school. Edward won first place in the County Tournament last year and possesses much ability along the line of public speaking.

TWENTY

SPECIAL BASE A-A-A TOBACCO CONTRACTS SIGNED

Twenty special base A-A-A tobacco contracts were signed the past week according to John E. Criger, Secretary of the Association. The special base contracts are open to all producers who have raised tobacco as either landlords or tenants since 1929 or on whose land tobacco was grown since 1929 and who can not secure an equitable base under a regular contract.

There were 220 producers in the county who sold from fifty pounds of tobacco up and were not under contract. These producers paid the tax on tobacco sold. These producers, this year may secure a base that will be considered by the Association as being fair and equitable to regular contract signers. No exemptions will be awarded this year. To secure this base the grower must apply for a special contract by April 10th. These applications are available at the County Agent's office in Burlington.

Growers who have not signed, should file applications immediately. Those who put this matter off will likely apply too late to get a base.

PROPER DRIVING

A skilled driver knows when to step on the gas, when to put on the brakes, when to pass another car, how to follow it in a line, how to keep from skidding, how to come out of a skid, how weather conditions affect driving possibilities, the hand signals and uses them, the motor vehicle regulations and uses them, that speed alone is not the quickest way to get places, that autos are on the road for transportation purposes and not for thrills and pastime. He will therefore cause no unnecessary annoyances, delays, obstructions or hazards to traffic.

A skilled driver keeps in the proper line, keeps inside the white line, does not hog the road, makes the proper turns, practices road courtesy all the time, recognizes that a child always has the right of way, observes green as the only go signal, looks and signals before pulling out of a parking place and can think quickly and accurately in an emergency.

If all these are observed by drivers there would be far fewer accidents on the highways.

OUR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

A campaign is on in Kentucky to raise more funds to aid our crippled children. This movement should be supported by all who are able to do so.

A recent survey reveals that in the state of Kentucky there are from 12,000 to 15,000 crippled children. More than half that number, it is estimated, can be corrected; one-third can be helped and another one-third can be educated to be self-supporting. We assume there are a number of crippled children in Boone county and all who are willing no doubt are being treated and corrective measures being used.

The State Commission's efforts to meet this appalling need is definitely restricted because of an insufficient appropriation from the State and hence, funds raised by the Society are to enable the Commission to continue its free clinical examinations, free medical and surgical care and follow-up service so urgently and vitally necessary if the crippled child is to receive correction before it is too late.

LAUGHTER IS A TONIC

In the early centuries of civilization it was considered bad form to laugh. Laughter has become very common. Feels of laughter come from young people at play. Roars of laughter greet a humorous hit upon the screen. Humor has always aroused laughter and humor has become more common than it used to be. People laugh at Will Rogers because he says such funny and original things. Irvin S. Cobb has caused a great many people to laugh. It is said to be a good thing for people to laugh, that it helps digestion and helps their disposition.

What we need is not to suppress laughter, but to laugh more. This good hearty laughter is a tonic. It helps the person who laughs and helps everybody around to laugh too. Because one laughs, another laughs. This brings to mind the lines of Ella Wheeler Wilcox: "Laugh and the world laughs with you, Weep and you weep alone, The world will share your joys, But has sorrows enough of its own."

THE OLD AGE PROBLEM

It is wholly consistent with the progress of this age that suitable provisions be made for the indigent aged and those persons who are able to and sincerely want to work and can't be given jobs. Such extreme programs as suggested by the Townsend old age pensions and some extreme methods for making jobs for those who are out of work are entirely out of the question.

Most of the leading countries of Europe have already adopted policies of pensioning the aged. England provides a pension of $2.50 a

National Capital

By CARTER FIELD

Washington.—It was just a coincidence that Senator Couzens introduced his excess profits tax amendment on the heels of another blast from Father Coughlin, who happens to be one of Couzens' most prominent constituents. Couzens has always believed in high taxes on the rich. He has been attacked many times by those who said that he had his own fortune in tax exempt government bonds, and was therefore not as unselfish as it might appear in wanting the taxes on big incomes and corporation earnings.

Curiously enough, Bernard M. Baruch, so bitterly assailed by Father Coughlin, and apparently with so little information about the only thing he had right was as to the closeness between Gen. Hugh S. Johnson and Baruch—also an advocate of high taxes on the rich, and on corporations.

Baruch's motive is slightly different from that of Couzens. The financier is a fanatic on the subject of balancing the budget. He agrees more nearly with the economic and fiscal ideas of Lewis W. Douglas, former director of the budget, than with anyone else in the New Deal. Incidentally, his advice on fiscal affairs has never been taken, though several times asked, by the Roosevelt administration.

Just before inauguration, Baruch, consulted as were many others about the inaugural address, pleaded with the President to stress two points and only two—stand by the gold standard and balance the budget. The President gave a little lip service, for a few months, to the idea of balancing the budget, but he gave the hint that he would not worry about the gold standard in the words "an adequate but sound currency."

Then Went to Europe

Baruch believed in cutting governmental expenses, imposing high enough taxes so that receipts would equal total expenditures, and no "emergency budget." He was pleased when his old friend and lieutenant, Johnson, was appointed as the head of NRA, but had nothing to do with that appointment. As a matter of fact he immediately departed for Europe, so that it could not be said truthfully that Johnson was just a mouthpiece for Baruch, or just acting as his creature.

This is not just supposition. Baruch told friends the chief reason he was getting out of the country for a while was to head off just such talk. And as a matter of fact it is no secret that when he returned to the United States he was not too well pleased with the way things had gone.

Washington correspondents who have been observing the movements of Baruch for these many years are rather intrigued at the amount of misinformation Father Coughlin had acquired about the financier. The two men differ violently on one tremendously important issue—inflation.

Baruch is desperately against it. Coughlin is enthusiastically for it. Roosevelt stands somewhere between the two. Roosevelt is against printing press money. He is for devaluation of the gold content of the dollar. He would like to see some international system for currency worked out—not now, but after commodity prices have reached the level he thinks proper. And the chief merit of the system he would like to see would be that it would tend to hold commodity prices where he thinks they ought to be. So that the purchasing value of the farmer's crops and the wage earner's envelope would be fairly constant.

Coughlin is for taking a short cut to increase commodity prices by printing enough money so that the dollar would no longer be so valuable. Baruch stands firmly by the gold standard, thinking both the Roosevelt and the Coughlin plans fantastic, but Coughlin's worse than Roosevelt's, because the Coughlin plan departs just that much further from what Baruch regards as sound.

Cotton Situation

Concern about the cotton situation continues to mount in administration and New Deal circles. Of all those speaking about it publicly, however, the only high official who really gives anything like the real picture is Daniel C. Roper, secretary of Commerce.

He is one of the few who openly concede that the government has tried to maintain the price of cotton at too high a level—that if held there it is only a question of time until the rest of the world either finds an acceptable substitute, or a new cotton growing area. He is one of the few who has had the temerity to talk openly about the menace of the new development in Brazil, one known result of which already is that certain important English cotton mills have altered their looms—a most expensive operation, hence indicating permanence—so as to handle Brazilian instead of American cotton.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, while denying vigorously that any change in the cotton program is anticipated, did not attempt to predict that the amount of money the government would loan on a bale of cotton in 1935 would be as great as it has been.

The amount the government will loan will be cut. In other words, the government has slowly but surely been driven to what it now knows is the necessity of pegging the price of cotton lower than it has been.

One of the most convincing points in driving the administration to this position—not yet officially announced—is not the fear of a substitute, or of the future development of a new area, though both of these are recognized as being real enough. It is the fact that the rest of the world is not now buying anything like the normal amount of cotton from the United States.

More Trade Treaties

Coming right on the heels of the collapse of the effort to barter half a million bales of cotton in a deal with Germany—mostly for blocked marks which would have had to be expended inside Germany for exports—the falling off in American cotton exports has given a decided boost to the pressure for more reciprocal trade treaties.

Manufacturers of this country have been warned by Secretary Roper that in this drive to provide exchange in this country for foreign countries which might buy our cotton, and other products—they must stand ready to submit to foreign competition. It is not enough, he warned, to reduce duties on foreign goods, which do not compete with American factories. It is necessary to admit a very large volume of goods, which do compete with ours—or else give up all hope of selling our own goods abroad.

Underneath all this pressure is one particular necessity—to provide a foreign market for American cotton. Other things, too, of course, but cotton is one thing that is causing the most worry.

This does not mean that the government hopes to confine the present price of cotton by obtaining additional foreign buying. It now accepts as a fact that it must reduce the price as part of what is necessary to induce foreign buying; that—and provide in some way for foreign purchasing power. The last, of course, is why the government is now pressing for reciprocal trade agreements looking to American purchases of more foreign goods.

The situation has not been much discussed because it is so unpleasant. Nobody is expected to be happy about it. Not the southern cotton growers, for they must look forward to lower prices for their staple. Not the manufacturers, for they must look forward to keener competition, and to sacrificing part of the American market to their foreign competitors.

Return of prosperity, with greater purchasing power in America, will help the manufacturers. For the cotton planters, however, it would probably spell higher prices for everything they buy.

Business Salvage

Right under the smoke screen provided by Senator Huey Long and Father Coughlin, business has eased into Washington and run off with more salvage than it had thought possible two months ago—or even two weeks ago.

For instance—due to an amazing flood of propaganda—repeal of the pink slip publicity for income taxes provision seems assured.

Also—the death sentence for utility holding companies has been reprieved to life imprisonment—or at least discretion to do so will be reposed in government agencies.

Also—contractors, scheduled to be left high and dry whenever possible in the four-billion-dollar work relief expenditures, now find themselves in such satisfactory shape that the construction league, spokesman for the reconstruction industry, and Michael McDonough, of the building trades unions, join in a statement slaying the praises of the Presidential program. While another big group of contractors, the road builders, are giving a good imitation of a cat with cream on its whiskers.

And that would not be all, if a few more industries wake up to the situation and realize what they have to do to be saved. Though so far not many have shown indication of so doing.

For example, the railroads, with an army of security holders almost as large as the utilities, have not thought of making a mass attack on individual senators and representatives for what they really want—regulation of trucks and busses, but especially trucks.

They have been very discreet, stating their case in pompous arguments, and leaning over backward lest they be suspected of speaking in self-interest. If they would get their stockholders writing in to the senators and representatives in whose states and districts the security holders vote, there might be action very quickly.

How to Get Results

What the railroads should learn, and what a good many other lines of business should learn, is a very simple fact about how to get results in Washington. It is a fact that was appreciated to the utmost by the Anti-Saloon league. It is a fact which has been appreciated for the first time this season by the utilities. And a fact spectacularly demonstrated by the forces fighting now for repeal of income tax publicity.

The fact is that the average senator and representative can be affected only by backfires from his own state or district. The average senator, for example, is no more interested in a referendum by the National Chamber of Commerce on some piece of legislation than he is in a treatise on why the ancient Assyrians did not drink whisky instead of wine. Probably not so much.

But he does care, and tremendously, if half a dozen of the very manufacturers who voted in that referendum send him strong personal letters and wires—if the manufacturers in question live in that senator's state. And if they induce a lot of their friends to join the clamor, the senator seeks light as a rule, very quickly.

Tailorsport
Harrison Clpre, of Hebron, intends building an extensive henry this summer.

The Harvest Home Co's deal with W. P. Carpenter is a go—the hitch in the lease was Mr. C. understood the company was to only have the use of a week in each year and he the balance of the time, but the company is to have exclusive use for 15 years and one month for $100 a year—the company to pay $90 each a year for 15 years.

Gasburg
J. J. Rucker was looking after his land interest one day last week. Deputy Sheriff Beall was around last week distributing legal documents to those interested in the estate of G. W. Terrill, deceased.

Bellevue
Allie Parsons and family have moved into the Daniels property—also same building Tim Sandford and family. Miss Permelia Corbin, who takes no nourishment but milk, may be considered a little better. Snow is still in sight as it has been since the 26th day of Dec. Jacob Cook and wife have returned after a protracted visit among relatives and friends on Woolper.

Born—On the 19th inst., to John J. Walton and wife a boy. To say that "Doll" wears a broad smile does not express it.

John Deck and wife attended the funeral of Geo. Smith, at Aurora, last Sunday.

Union
Thomas Adams had corn stolen and tracket the robber to his den. Spencer Smith has saved thirty-nine lambs out of 40 which beats the record so far as I know.

Petersburg
Miss Bird Bailey, of Aurora, Ind., is the guest of Dr. J. M. Grant and family.

Wm. Coyle, of Pittsburg, was visiting relatives here last Thursday and Friday.

It is said Harry McWethy will build a residence on Grant Ave. Miss Cora Alden was a visitor in Aurora Wednesday.

Miss Maud Berkshire was visiting in the country last week. Wallace Grant is laid up with a sore thumb, the result of running a nail into it.

Utzinger
John Early, Hubert Walton and Jno. McWethy, three of a kind, will attend the masked ball at Burlington.

A disease has broken out among Duncan's horses. Two have died and one or two more are sick.

Friday afternoon Ivan Norris represented the local high school in extemporaneous speaking in the District Tournament at Ludlow.

REED NAMED FOR SOLICITOR GENERAL
Attorney General Cummins Monday recommended to the President nomination of Stanley Reed of Kentucky as solicitor general of the U. S.

If approved, Reed will succeed J. Crawford Biggs, of North Carolina who resigned, effective when a successor qualified. The post pays $10,000 a year.

Reed now is RFC counsels.

It generally was expected the President would send Reed's name to the senate for prompt confirmation to the $10,000 a year post. Reed, who is also a director of the commodity credit corporation and a trustee of the export-import banks, appeared with the attorney general before the supreme court in the gold cases. Recently he was named special assistant to the attorney general to help in presentation of NRA cases to come before the high court.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walton and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Williamson and son, and Mrs. W. M. Smith of Warsaw, were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Rice, of Woolper Heights, last Wednesday night.

IS RELAXATION EASY FOR YOU?

Dr. Walter B. Pitkin, the man who made "Life Begins at Forty" a household phrase, says that if you can answer the following questions with a "yes," your powers of relaxation rate high. If you rate low, he warns in the current Rotarian Magazine, it is time to take stock of yourself.

"A few having a perfect score may still be victims of tensions of one kind or another," he adds, "but in general, a high score reveals a fairly restful body and mind."

Here is the Pitkin personal-efficiency check-list:

1. Are you in reasonably good health?
2. Do you sleep well?
3. Do you adjust your diet to fit the amount and kind of energy you use?
4. Do your muscles feel relaxed?
5. Do you work easily, passing on to others as much responsibility as your job allows?
6. Do you forget your daily problems when you have locked the office door?
7. Do you get out of doors much?
8. Do you easily forego smoking and hard liquor?
9. Do you take short and frequent rest periods during working hours?
10. Do your leisure activities interest and relax you? And, unless you are a single-track mind, finding your greatest joy in your work, are your activities reasonably varied?
11. Do you put ideas and problems out of your mind promptly and easily when this is needful?
12. Do you regard worry as silly and useless?
13. Do you refuse to fight obstacles when, after studying them, you find them at least temporarily insurmountable?

Worm Engraves

Letters in Wood

G. H. Craig, of near Laurel Ridge, this county, brought into the Enterprise office Monday a piece of wood in which a worm had cut nearly perfect lettering. The wood, was taken from the inside of an oak tree 39 inches in diameter and from a height of 18 feet on the tree. The letters were n, m, o, a, l, b and w, and executed in English style.—Hardin County Enterprise, Elizabethtown.

KERA IS FERTILE

FIELD FOR RIPLEY

Believe It Or Not Ripley would find a fertile field of exploration in various state relief agencies if all of them live up to the standard of the Kentucky Emergency Relief Administration.

Allen Lloyd TURNIPSEED is a farm foreman in the KERA in Mason county, Ralph William GARLICK from Washington State has applied for a job. I. S. PINEAR is garden director for Kenton, while Seldon BUGG is a former disbarred officer in Hickman, and Mrs. Gertrude F. BUGABOO is relief worker in Daviess.—Paintsville Herald.

Bird's Nest

Made Of Wire

The first fireproof bird's nest on record has been discovered in Owensboro. Albert F. Laub was doing a re-roofing job on the cupola of the Rudd hotel when he found the nest. It was made entirely of pieces of twig or string in it. The oddity was sent to the American Rolling Mill company at Middletown, Ohio, where it was pronounced to be the first all-metal bird's nest ever seen in America.—Owensboro Messenger.

Goat Meat Made

'Em Butting Bunch

The story of Latta's anniversary brought out a lot of talk around the other restaurants last week. Others began to look up records to which they could point with pride. Gordon McKeag took the bright spot when he told this one: "Every time a visiting athletic squad eats here they are certain to win," he says. "One time a football squad was traveling through from Paducah to Owensboro where they had a big game scheduled. The coach came ahead and ordered 30 beef steak dinners to be ready by the time specified. We did not have the beef handy for so short a call but we did have some goat meat on hand to barbecue. So we fixed up 30 dinners of mutton and the Paducah lads cleaned them up and cried for more. And after they won the game the coach said his team was the buttin'est bunch of ball players he ever saw."—Sturgis News.

Quarantined, But

He Preaches, Anyway.

The pastor of a Prestonburg church is probably the first minister in America to be quarantined to his home and yet to "occupy" his pulpit.

When the Rev. Harry F. King, pastor of the M. E. church, South, here, was quarantined last week as his son, Billy, developed a case of scarlet fever, odds were that he would be forced to be absent from his congregation for the first Sunday since he came here a few months ago.

But he had an idea. And the result was that his regular Sunday morning sermon came to his congregation.

Standing before the microphone of a public address system installed in a neighboring home, the Rev. King delivered his sermon. "Church Membership, Its Meaning and Obligations." —Floyd County Times, Prestonburg.

"Ninety Years"

Y., who is a son-in-law of Mr. Adams. Lack of space forbids the publication of the poem in this issue. However, it will be included at the first available opportunity.

Dr. O. S. Crisler, of Columbia, Mo., is spending a few days with his father R. S. Crisler, who has been quite ill for a few weeks. We wish Mr. Crisler a speedy recovery.

R. B. Huey, of Burlington, has just purchased a young Jersey bull from Forrest Reeves, Pleasureville, Kentucky. While the bull that Mr. Huey has chosen to head his herd is not a proved sire, he is nevertheless a bull that is worthy of an opportunity to demonstrate his ability as a sire. In every day terms this young bull is the "next best thing" to a proved sire. He is sired by the proved sire Golden Glow's Meadow Lad whose first ten daughters in the Reeves' herd mature-equivalent yearly production records averaging 491 pounds of butterfat as compared with an average of 440 pounds of butterfat for their dams.

The dam of Mr. Huey's young bull is Financial Favorite Girl which is also the dam of 3 daughters in milk that have average mature-equivalent yearly production records of 499 pounds of butterfat. Thus the young bull is sired by a proved sire and out of a dam that has three exceptionally good daughters as evidenced by their production records. His sisters and half-sisters, in addition to being excellent producers, are pleasing in type and quality. Mr. Huey has, without a doubt, made a wise selection of a bull to head his herd.

Loan Policy

THE right kind of a bank is just as anxious to make good loans as the manufacturer, merchant or farmer is to sell his products.

This Bank welcomes every opportunity to make sound loans to its depositors whether the amounts required be large or small.

The point that many would-be-borrowers overlook, however, is that the money a bank lends is not the bank's nor the banker's—it is the depositors' money.

Hence, a bank must investigate the guarantees given by the borrower very carefully.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for his foster daughter could not shelter her childhood from the hatred of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affair ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to a baseball game. A ball hit into the back of her head, struck Penelope on the nose and the nose of her mother. Mrs. Gatlin sprang the child to Europe. Penelope all his money, and was about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II.—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a rising young psychiatrist, was presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient, a girl whose left hand bore a scar, for which her "saddle nose" was in very responsible hands. Stephen thought she was a responsible criminal and obtained Burt's expert testimony to court. Even Lanny, the former faithful office nurse, was won over to her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III.—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's clear explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny visited her and Nance persuaded her to amuse out a letter, which a confederate stole from her handbag outside the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV.—Nance escaped, although shot, by swimming out to a speed-boat manned by friends, went to Lanny's apartment. Lanny shot Chief McNamara, who ordered her to bring Nance to his apartment and phoned for Doctor Burt.

CHAPTER V.—One of the men in the boat on which Nance escaped—two of them ex-convicts, the other a bootlegger—killed the driver and they went to Burt's office, where McNamara found them. The bootlegger shot him and the other the other to his home, ordering the uninjured one to care for Nance and his pal. From them he learned that Nance's real name was Penelope Gatlin. Detective Sergeant Flynn and Angelotti, seeking the reward offered for Nance's apprehension, went to Lang's apartment in search of Nance. Looking over her cell, McNamara found a blank check on a San Jose bank.

CHAPTER VI.—From the San Jose banker McNamara learned that the girl he knew as Nance Belden was Penelope Gatlin, heiress to $150,000. The banker did not know Penelope's whereabouts. Mrs. Gatlin was now the wife of a man named Morton. McNamara ordered Detective Sergeant Flynn and Angelotti to "lay off" Lanny, whom they suspected of harboring Nance. The detectives trailed Doctor Burt when he went to McNamara's house to treat her gunshot wound but Nance and the two men who helped her escape saw them first and fled.

CHAPTER VII.—When Lanny got home one evening she found Nance sound asleep, curled up on her chest-room bed. Several days later the hard-boiled exterior of Nance Belden suddenly vanished and the girl became the refined Penelope Gatlin. Her partially restored memory led her to tell Lanny of her wealthy father, Theodore Gatlin, and of her girlhood in France. Fearing his detectives would locate Penelope, McNamara furnished her with tear and stink bombs and told her how to use them to escape if they did. She uses the bombs and gets away. Flynn and Angelotti continued hot on Nance's trail and McNamara's.

CHAPTER VIII.—Susan Engelbright, known as "Sapphire Sussie," who had served a term for blackmail, appeared and asked McNamara to protect her from Flynn. She admitted that Nance had gotten her three years in San Quentin out of hook after she had helped in her plans for escape. McNamara learned definitely that Nance (or probably Penelope) had sailed for France. He also discovered he was in love with Lanny, and learned that "Nance" was living in Paris as Penelope Gatlin. Doctor Burt had been treating Mrs. Rudolph Merton and McNamara discovered that this woman was Penelope's foster-mother, remarried.

CHAPTER IX.—Stephen warned Penelope by cable to leave Paris, signing his message "Mac." When Flynn went to Doctor Burt to get him to identify a passport photograph of Penelope Gatlin as Nance Belden, the doctor hypnotized him and impressed on his subconscious mind that he must never again mention the two names Nance Belden and Penelope Gatlin.

"What's more, Lanny, she's living with her normal personality."
"How do you know?"
"She registered as required by law under her real name of Penelope Gatlin. I've known her name since the day after her escape from San Quentin."

McNamara proceeded to relate the tale he had previously related to Stephen, who had neglected to retail it to Lanny. "Well, if this isn't a h—l of a tale, Dani," she said.

"Does it beat your news, Lanny?"
"Beats it by a mile, although while she was at my house she told me as much about herself as she could remember."

"This morning," McNamara continued, "the president of the Security Trust company telephoned me up to ask if Penelope had been cashing any checks lately. The banker gathered that the mother has a notion her daughter's dead. She doesn't like the idea of having to wait seven years to have the girl declared officially dead before she can lay claim to Penelope's estate."

"Did you find out the name of her mother?" Stephen asked.
"Oh, yes. She's married again, you understand. Naturally she didn't get any information out of the banker. He's on to her, and it was none of her business whether Penelope has been cashing checks or not."

"Get the girl's case record, Lanny," Stephen commanded. "What is her mother's name, Chief?"
"Mrs. Rudolph Merton."

"She's a patient of Steve's!" Lanny yelled. "She's such a nut the squirrels chase her."

Stephen finished writing and laid down his pen. "I told you, Lanny, that Mrs. Merton wasn't insane enough to be confined."

"Guess I've got Lanny's news beaten, after all, Stephen. This Mrs. Rudolph Merton is the girl's foster-mother."

"Hooray! Hooray! Hooray!" cried Lanny. "How do you know? Did the banker tell you?"

"No. I dug the information up myself."

"Why? How?"

"Why? I wanted to investigate the girl's fortune. So yesterday I had a copy of the will and a copy of the appraisal of the estate made at the courthouse in San Jose and sent up to me. Gatlin stated in the will that he left all of his estate to his beloved adopted daughter, Penelope Gatlin. At the time of his death his estate was worth practically half a million dollars and has since doubled in value. Nance Belden is a lost heiress."

"Not wholly lost," Stephen reminded him. "There are times when she remembers who she is and that she has money."

"She doesn't know anything about her mother," Lanny declared. "I asked her, but she could tell me nothing. And she was Penelope Gatlin when I asked her."

"There is a reason for that," Doctor Burt's scientific mind was already racing along this new trail. "Penelope has had a wretched childhood; she knew nothing but unhappiness up to the time she received the shock that threw her mental gears out of mesh. She hated her mother with a terrible hatred. Feared her, probably. Then she made up her mind to forget her mother. And the will to forget was so strong that she succeeded."

"Not only did she forget her mother but her entire past life as well. Well, she ran away and she'll never find her way back until she acquires sufficient courage to face the old issues again, surmount them and defeat them."

"But is that possible?" McNamara asked.

"Quite. She will have to have assistance and the sort of treatment I think I can give her, and she must have assurance that never again will she be subjected to the old unhappiness. By the way, I wonder if Penelope was a love child. Have you looked up her parentage, Dan?"

"I haven't. Can't you ask Mrs. Merton about the girl?"

"I suppose I could. But if lunacy ran in the family of her father or mother, I'm not going to bother with Penelope."

"If you decide to take her on, we'll have to get her back into this city," McNamara mourned, "and Flynn will pick her up."

"We'll fix her nose first," Lanny said. McNamara beamed upon her. "Her criminal photographs and Bertillon measurements are gone to glory, Lanny. What did Penelope say in her letter?"

"Not a great deal. She said, among other things, that after leaving my house she found two hundred dollars. So she returned it."

"Give me that two hundred, Lanny. Stephen, our little thief is honest."

"As one personality she would remember you gave her two hundred dollars, but as the other she couldn't remember who gave it to her," said Lanny.

"Get over to Paris as quick as you can," McNamara commanded, "or she'll be stealing the Eiffel tower."

"Stephen can't spare me," said Lanny.

"Stephen can spare you," he decided. "It's got to be," McNamara urged.

"Nance fled the town with a letter of credit for ten thousand, but she'll go through that like a weasel through a rat hole. Take a bankroll with you, Lanny, and when you get there take charge of her funds."

"And have her nose done over while you're there," Stephen urged.

"There's a hitch," said Lanny. "The girl evidently got a passport in New York—"

"Not in New York. In San Francisco," McNamara interrupted.

"Well, will a strange photograph on her passport get her back into the United States?"

"She can go to the American consul in Paris, and present proof that she's the same woman with a different nose," Stephen said.

"She'll do nothing of the sort," McNamara was very emphatic. "When her trail is lost it will be lost forever. Lanny, when you have that new nose built for the girl, have half a dozen new passport photographs of her taken, and send them and her passport to me. The seal of the United States of America is on the passport and covers a part of the photograph. I know a man that'll make me a seal that would fool the American eagle himself. We'll fit it down over the old seal and stamp the new photograph. Then I'll send it back to you—and may God have mercy on my soul, for you can blackmail me for that the longest day I live," Dan cried.

This was too much. Lanny put her arms around him and kissed him on each cheek.

"And that's a seal that'll get by, too," Dan was embarrassed. Lanny was, too—she took a hasty departure.

The two men stared after her, admiration in their eyes. "A d—d fine woman, that. None finer," said McNamara.

"Why don't you marry her?" the suggestion popped out of Doctor Burt as suddenly as it had occurred to him.

"Now, there's an idea," McNamara mumbled dazedly. "How long have you been mulling it over?"

"Subconsciously, since you entered the office. I caught a gleam in Lanny's eyes—and when she kissed you, the subconscious crystallized into the conscious."

"I'll think it over," McNamara said. "You'll not think it over, Mac. You'll make up your mind now. And I can get along without her, although the going will be pretty skiddy. But of course she'll marry you if you ask her. Lanny never professes her friendships or her loves on the half shell. And there's still time, my boy, still time."

"Not if she goes to Paris," McNamara said.

"I've heard of police chiefs securing a leave of absence for six months."

"I couldn't take a six months' honeymoon to Paris, lad. I've saved eight thousand dollars—"

"What? You a chief of police and only worth eight thousand dollars?"

"God help me, boy, I'm honest," Stephen roared his merriment. "Why, you great jackass, I know that. I wouldn't let every man have Lanny. But don't you worry about money. Lanny is a business woman. She's managed since I was a boy, and that includes my finances. I'm loaded up with good dividend paying stocks. You know, I could be a mighty good friend to the man who would be good to Lanny."

"I'll consider the proposition," the cautious Celt replied, "although I'd rather be a bachelor than a disappointed lover."

"Tell you what to do, Mac," Stephen advised. "Send her a nice photograph of yourself. If she puts it in a silver frame you may proceed with confidence."

"How will I know, my boy?"

"If it's in a silver frame on the dressing table in her bedroom, it'll be a cinch."

"How'll I get into her bedroom, you blethead?"

"I'll steal her latchkey and have a duplicate made. Then you can investigate."

McNamara rose and held out his hand. "Tis a pity, Stephen, my boy, you aren't in my detective bureau. Good night."

The annual parade of the police force was but a week distant, and during that week Dan lived entirely on orange juice and spent his nights in a Turkish bath. As a result he dropped eight pounds off his northern elevation. Very erect and martial he sat on a milk-white charger, while a photographer took several exposures of him and his command.

When the prints were delivered to him, he sent them all to Lanny with a note saying:

"Now that we are both in the same crooked conspiracy, I thought you might be interested in having the latest photograph of the biggest crook of them all."

The following day Stephen Burt sent him a key, and the following afternoon McNamara let himself into Lanny's house and discovered one of the photos on her dressing table and in a gold frame! Another print in a silver frame appeared in her drawing room.

"Holy Moses!" he soliloquized. "I'm in for it now! God help me, there's no escape!"

CHAPTER IX

Upon his return to his office McNamara found in his mail a photograph of Lanny, undressed: "To dear old Dan—from his partner in crime—Lanny." While he was gazing upon it and telling himself how little justice the portrait did the beloved subject Stephen telephoned, demanding that he come to the office.

Lanny was in tears. "I've just had another visit from Mrs. Merton, Dan," Stephen began. "It seems that after two years of inactivity, during which time she had elected to believe Penelope Gatlin dead, she has developed a crazy notion to prove it. She wants to get Penelope's fortune."

"You questioned her about her daughter?"

"Yes, but she doesn't know it," said Stephen. "I hypnotized her first and spent an hour questioning her, and it appears that this morning she visited your captain of detectives and asked him to throw out a dragnet to locate Penelope Gatlin. She brought him some snapshots of the girl—told him her real name—all about her money—the girl's habits and peculiarities—everything. When I'd discovered enough to put Lanny in tears, I awakened Mrs. Merton and sent her away happy, but with this command firmly planted in her subconscious mind—she must not think of the name Penelope Gatlin. When I awakened her I asked her if she had an adopted daughter. She replied, surprised, that she had. I then asked her the name of this adopted daughter—and a look of terror came over her face. For the life of her she couldn't think of the name and begged me not to mention it if I knew it."

"It's a pity you didn't think of doing that before she went to the detective bureau with her information," McNamara cried, and called up the Security Trust company.

"The captain of detectives has put Flynn and Angelotti on the case," he announced gleefully when he had hung up. "And Flynn has already been to the bank, making inquiries. When he presented his credentials the cashier showed him everything. They'll identify that girl as Nance Belden, trace her to Paris as readily as I did, and the French government will be notified that Penelope is an escaped convict. They will immediately deport her and Flynn will meet her at Hoboken."

"But can't you do anything about it, Dan?" Lanny pleaded.

"Nothing! Flynn and Angelotti are on the trail officially now. I'm out of the picture now and can do nothing but advise you. Send two cables—one to Nance Belden in Paris and the other to Penelope Gatlin at the same address. Say: 'Come at once—Lanny dying—cable name vessel on which leaving,' and sign it 'Steve.'"

"I'll meet her at the dock," Stephen decided. "I'm due in New York next week."

"You'll do nothing of the sort," said Dan. "I'll send that convict in my house." He shuddered and grunted in his distress. "I could handle the wop with money, but Flynn has sworn an oath! And because I've made a monkey out of him he'll keep it. He'd rather make a monkey out of me now than acquire great riches—and if I'm broke, most likely the captain of detectives will step into my shoes, and Flynn will stand a good chance of becoming captain of detectives. Oh, murderation, Lanny darling, have you a little whisky in the house? I'm faint, so I am."

"You're suffering from heart trouble, you egg," Lanny cried savagely. "Yes! A weak heart, a soft heart, a human heart."

"Send that cable," he roared.

"Yes, get busy, Lanny," Stephen urged. "The bird of time has but a little while to flutter—and the wretched fowl is on the way."

After Dan McNamara had left his office, Doctor Stephen Burt gazed with mild disapproval upon Lanny.

"Unlucky you and Dan McNamara," he said, "I dislike having the peaceful tenor of my life disturbed."

"This intrigue is myrrh and incense to me, Steve."

"I know it. You and Dan love a fight for its own sweet sake, but I do not. I have a particular aversion to grand jury indictments, and it is a possibility you and your boy friend have let me in for."

"Fiddlesticks!"

"Lanny, I'll be angry with you in a minute. Now, listen to me, and whatever you do, do not talk back. Dan McNamara has run out on us. I mean you. He's through. Dan's rattled. If he hadn't been he'd never have ordered the sending of such a fool cablegram."

"Dan McNamara knows his way about," Lanny defended. "He's more than nine years old."

"So do I, Lanny. It will be highly dangerous to send that cablegram. How is she to know it isn't a message to decoy her back to the penitentiary? If she receives it while she's Penelope Gatlin, she is extremely liable to cable for confirmation before acting on it. That would mean a delay of not less than twenty-four hours. On the other hand, if she is Nance Belden when she receives it, she will leave Paris openly and walk right into the hands of the New York police. I'm not much of a detective, but tonight I'm a better one than that McNamara idiot."

"He's not an idiot. He's one of the finest men I ever knew."

"Keep quiet," he ordered severely. "You ditch my train of thought."

He drew a sheet of paper toward him and commenced writing, while Lanny gazed at him. Presently he sat up and read:

"Grave danger stop beat it some other country traveling by motor stop upon arrival cable address stop if need funds will cable them stop leave Paris establishment going concern stop go out for walk and disappear stop unless these instructions followed you leave trail for persecutors to follow."

He looked up. "How do those instructions strike you?"

"The instructions are fine, but why commit forgery by signing Dan's name? If the original is traced—"

"I have signed it Mac, and the world is filled with Macs. When Dan has reached his office, telephone him and tell him to do something that will prove in any court he was in his office when I filed this cablegram."

Lanny related. "You might make a detective, at that."

Twenty minutes later Dan McNamara was listening to Lanny reading Stephen's cablegram over his private line. "Excellent," was his sole comment, "but print it in block letters. Even a typewriter can betray one. When Steve files this telegram have him pay for it with a hundred-dollar bill, and have him wear large black goggles and the rim of his hat pulled down all the way round. The girl who receives it will think one crook is cabling another. If she's ever asked what sort of man filed it, her description of the sender, plus my own perfect alibi, will put me in the clear."

"How are we to manage after she has eluded the Paris police?"

McNamara sighed gustily. "Flynn will be in touch with her bank, and every time she cashes a draft on her letter of credit, Flynn will have a line on her address."

NOTICE TO DOG OWNERS

The 1930 Legislature passed an Act requiring the Sheriffs of the various counties to collect the Dog License Fee. The law (Sec. 17) says: "On and after January 1, 1931, it shall be unlawful for any person to own or keep any dog, unless such dog is licensed by the Sheriff or Deputy of the County in which the dog is kept." (Sec. 22) says: "It shall be unlawful for any person to harbor or permit to remain on his premises any dog not having a license. (Sec. 33) says: "Any person other than an officer violating the provisions of this act or failing or refusing to comply with any of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be adjudged to pay a fine not to exceed $100.00."

Section 20 says: "For failure to perform any duty under this act, any officer shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $10.00 and not more than $100.00."

The State Man has made several trips to this office regarding the payment of this tax; and has informed me that it must be paid. I cannot afford to get into trouble by failing to enforce the law. Come and get your license before Court Orders are issued for you.

Every dog owner who owns or harbors a dog not licensed is subject to a fine. I do not want to cause any one to have to pay a fine and cost, but I must do my duty.

After April 1st, 1935, I shall with the assistance of the County Judge and County Attorney proceed to hold Courts of Inquiry to ascertain the parties who have unlicensed dogs.

Yours very truly,

W. L. COTTON,

PRUNING SHADE TREES

Pruning Shade Trees—As a rule, shade trees do not need severe pruning. Remove dead branches, and possibly branches that cross or rub. Endeavor to plant trees that will develop into correct size and shape for the place in which they are set.

The Lawn—If bluegrass seed was not sowed last fall, sow the last of March. Use redtop and bluegrass in bare places, but where soil is reasonably good sow bluegrass only. Use broom or rake with flexible fingers in raking the lawn, so grass will not be torn out by the roots. Rolling once or twice in early spring forces the bluegrass into the soil and smoothes the surface. Apply the nitrogen bearing fertilizer in March. To apply later feeds the crabgrass.

Roses—Do not disturb the mound of earth around hybrid tea roses until all danger of frost has passed and growth started. Pruning back to this mound removes most of the winter kill and the plants will be fairly well pruned for the coming season.

Transplanting—March is a good time to transplant trees, shrubs and flowers, especially perennials. Do not pack soil too tightly around the roots, and give plenty of water as soon as growth starts.—N. R. Elliott, College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

KY. GOVERNOR

REGISTERED A WELL FOUNDED PROTEST

Protest against levying a state tax on manufactured tobacco in Pennsylvania was recently registered by Gov. Laffoon in a communication to Gov. Earle. It was pointed out that such action might provoke retaliatory legislation that would impose taxes on the chief products of Pennsylvania.

Manufactured tobacco now bears the heaviest tax of any commodity. The federal tax on a 15-cent package of cigarettes is six cents. As a state tax is added on cigarettes it has had the effect hitherto of reducing consumption with the advance of retail prices.

Reliable data disclosed that cigarette consumption is 30 to 40 per cent lower in states where a state tax is levied. Since experience has proved that consumption of manufactured tobacco is reduced when a state tax is added to the heavy federal levy it is obvious that Governor Laffoon was acting in the interest of Kentucky when he protested.

There is nothing more detrimental to the prosperity of Kentucky than an action which reduces consumption of tobacco. As the amount of tobacco consumed is reduced the effect is to restrict the demand for contribute to a surplus which depresses prices paid growers for their tobacco.

Importance of Governor Laffoon's action was immediately sensed by the Lexington Tobacco Board of Trade and appreciation of the alertness of the chief executive was expressed in a resolution commending him for championing the tobacco industry.

183 CORN-HOG

CONTRACTS WERE SIGNED IN BOONE COUNTY FOR 1935

One hundred and eighty-three Boone County farms were signed under application for 1935 A-A-A Corn-Hog contracts up until Monday morning according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Monday was the last official date for signing applications.

Boone county growers have received and will receive approximately $36,000 for last year's reduction on corn and hogs on 218 contracts. Due to a smaller per cent reduction on hogs and optional smaller reduction on corn, growers this year will receive approximately $16,000 in benefit payments. The requirements of the contract this year are also more lenient than last year.

CAN YOU BEAT THIS?

Twenty 7½ Months Old Pigs Bring Local Farmer $535.53

F. H. Rouse, a progressive farmer of Burlington, gave us this bit of news this week and which might interest other farmers of this section.

Last August 15th, there was farrowed on his farm two litters of Chester white pigs, twenty-two in the two litters. He kept two for brood sows and the other twenty pigs "went to market" at Cincinnati last week. The twenty weighed 5,885 pounds—an average of 294 pounds each. He received $9.10 a hundred or $535.53 for the lot.

Now, Mr. Rouse wants to hear from other farmers through the columns of this paper. He believes this is a hard record to beat.

TO HOLD DECLAMATORY CONTEST

A band of five old time fiddlers and the Harmony Girls will provide plenty of music for the occasion. There will be no admission to the contest.

"STUNT SHOW" WELL ATTENDED

FORMER MINISTER SERVED 53 YEARS; NOW 80 YEARS OLD

F. L. McGlasson of Constance was here Monday and gave us an account of the celebration of the 80th birthday anniversary of a former minister of Boone county, Rev. Edwin R. Wagner, who has served the ministry for 53 years. The event was held at the Wagner home at Huffman Avenue and Smithville Road, Dayton, Ohio, on March 11th where he has been located the past seventeen years.

Rev. Wagner will be remembered by many of Boone county's older citizens. He was ordained a minister at Florence in 1881 and also served the pastorate of the St. Paul's Lutheran church in Cincinnati and a Trinity Lutheran church in Bellevue.

GRAFT SHOULD BE PUNISHED

There will be general approval of prompt action of the Department of Justice in investigating instances of fraud which have developed in various Public Works Projects, and in pressing prosecution of the guilty. It is inevitable that there will be occasional cases of dishonesty. It is gratifying that vigilance is being exercised in ferreting out such cases and bringing the accused before the courts for trial. Seven were recently indicted in connection with a Texas project.

There are those who assume that graft is more common in governmental activities than elsewhere. We doubt that. Graft and dishonesty is all too common and frequent in private industry. Court dockets are filled with instances of fraud practiced in private dealings.

Public officials are, in the main, honest. There is no greater percentage of crooks in public office than in private enterprise. There is no greater number of crooked office holders than of crooked bankers, lawyers, financiers, promoters, or salesmen of spurious stocks.

There is too widely prevalent the view that there is graft in state government. We bare express the view that there is not another state in the union so free from graft in its operation as is Kentucky. This was demonstrated when Griffiths and Associates, experienced auditors, made an exhaustive survey of the state government a detailed examination of every department and phase. Not one instance of dishonesty or corruption was revealed.

SUCCESSFUL

Was "Beads On String" Play Given By Epworth League

The play, "Beads On String," given by members of the Epworth League of the Burlington M. E. Church last Friday night at the Burlington high school auditorium was a grand success in every sense of the word.

The attendance was large and each character was exemplary in their respective parts and were greeted with much applause. So well and enthusiastic over the success of the entertainment that the members are anticipating taking the play to Hebron next week and later to Florence, Alexandria, Butler and Hamilton.

Between the acts the music was furnished by C. A. Fowler, Sam Blackburn, Boyd Snow, Harold Garrison and Herschel West.

The League metted a very nice sum from the entertainment and wish to thank the public for such loyal support. All money derived from these entertainments will go toward defraying expenses in repairing the church which is badly in need of new sills, floor and other repairs.

UTOPIA CLUB HOLDS MEETING

The Boone County Utopia Club No. 2 held their March meeting on Thursday night of last week at the court house.

We were glad to have a new member present and hope there will be many more new members at the next meeting, which will be the 10th of April.

The members of the local Baptist church were busy Sunday afternoon taking a church census of Burlington and the surrounding territory.

CIRCULAR TELLS HOW TO MEASURE FIELDS

In an aid in measuring fields on thousands of Kentucky farms under agricultural adjustment contracts, Earl G. Welch, extension engineer for the College of Agriculture, has written a circular called, "How to Solve Simple Problems in Land Measurement."

In establishing crop acreage in the AAA program, it is necessary to determine the area of fields already in crops and also to lay out fields with definite acreages. The circular was planned to help in these measurements. The usual methods employed often are not sufficiently accurate for determining the allotted acreages under production control contracts.

Farmers, members of control committees and other persons interested in farm measurements may obtain copies by writing to the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

BOONE COUNTY

WOOL GROWERS HELD MEETING HERE MONDAY

Boone county wool growers met at Burlington Court House Monday and voted to begin immediately the sign up for the 1935 clip. More than 10,500 fleeces and 58,443 pounds of wool were sold through the organization last year.

Mr. H. E. White was reelected president and Lillard Scott, secretary. The following committeemen were elected to receive the list of growers in their respective precincts:

H. E. White	Burlington
F. L. McGlasson	Constance
Charles Stevens	Peersburg
Orville Y. Kelley	Carleton
Joe W. Cleek	Beaver
O. K. Powers	Verona
C. S. Riddell	Bullittsville
Ezra Blankenbaker	Union
Lillard Scott	Beersburg
B. W. Franks	Walton
C. F. Blankenbaker	Florence

The Boone county wool pool is one of the oldest and most successful organizations of its kind in the state. Plans are to offer the clip for sale around June 1 and to deliver at the earliest possible date after that time. The next meeting of the pool will be held at Burlington next court day, Monday May 6th at 1:00 p. m.

RIGHT OF WAY COSTS ARE CUT

Indications point to a reduction of approximately $1,000,000 in expenditures by Kentucky counties for purchase of right-of-way during the current fiscal year as compared to last year. It was estimated by the Kentucky Tax Reduction Association in its April bulletin, received by the Recorder as last week.

This saving is based on definite information now being received from county officials at the office of State Inspector and Examiner Nat B. Sewell at Frankfort, it was stated.

"It does not indicate a sudden decline in road building," the bulletin stated, "but simply more careful spending of the tax money as a direct result of the County Budget Law."

GOOD WORK

IS SHOWN BY MEMBERS OF THE 4-H CLUB

Boone county 4-H club members are getting their project work started and are showing some good work according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. All nine community clubs of the county will hold their third community club meeting this week and next. A list of the meeting dates are as follows: Tuesday—Florence and Grant clubs; Wednesday—Petersburg; Thursday—Hebron and New Haven clubs; Friday—Burlington; Monday—Walton; Wednesday—Hamilton; Thursday—Verona.

All adult leaders are urged to be present at the meeting of their clubs.

AMERICAN LEGION POST MET

27,000 GETTING FREE LUNCHES FROM FERA IN STATE

Louisville, Ky., April 1—Kentucky school children totaling 27,000 are given their lunches free of charge daily in lunch rooms of schools of the state through the efforts of the Kentucky Emergency Relief Administration. These are children representing youngsters who otherwise probably would not have sufficient funds to supply their needs to prevent undernourishment.

Last month the KERA furnished 268,685 lunches to school children at an average cost of seven cents each. During 1934, $122,049.63 was spent for this purpose and represented 1,711,475 lunches. The average cost per month in 1935 is approximately $1,200.

LIVABLE

HOME DISCUSSION AT UTOPIA MEETING LAST THURSDAY

The livable home and its relation to the various members of the family was discussed by Miss Hagman at the regular meeting of the Boone County Utopia Club held at Burlington last Thursday evening.

The three S's (Simplicity, Sincerity and Suitability) were listed by Miss Hagman to the home. The livable home according to the discussion should provide comfort, efficient arrangement, sufficient storage, space, privacy, heat, water and should be combined congeniality and tolerance.

Twenty members attended the above meeting and commented on the program being both helpful and interesting. The next meeting of the club will be held April 25th at Florence.

THE FINAL EST

New York—"Jimmy" Collins has for years earned his way by taking new planes designed for Navy use to 20,000 feet, then turning their noses earthward and shoot down at 400 miles per hour with terrific force. It was his job to see just how much strain the planes could stand; he received from $1,000 to $1,500 for each test. A fortnight ago he got a job as an aviation columnist on a local tabloid, promising his wife and youngsters he would make only one more test flight. It was his last. Over Long Island field a wing tore loose and the heavy plane went in to a spin which it never emerged; its pilot crashed beyond all aid.

Five thousand miles away another plane left a week ago carrying the Governor of French Equatorial Africa and his American wife high over the steaming valley of the Congo. Soon, lashed by tropical storm, the plane's radio ceased to be heard. After a seven-days' search by plane and expedition, the wreck of the Governor's ship was found in the matted jungle, all seven passengers dead.

995 MILES

OF ROAD BUILT IN KENTUCKY THE PAST YEAR

A total of 995 miles of road of various types was brought to completion in the calendar year of 1934, and work was started on 638 miles of road that was not finished but is in process of completion, it is revealed by figures given out by Thomas Rhea, Chairman of the State Highway Commission.

As result of this large addition of highway mileage to the state road system there is now a total of 7,271.8 miles of road under maintenance by the state department of public roads.

Of the road mileage brought to completion in 1934 676 miles was built by contractors on awards made on competitive bids. The remaining 319 miles was improved by the force account method. Only lower types of construction was attempted on force account, 166.2 miles of road built by this method being of traffic bound macadam, 67.7 miles of gravel, 32 miles being surface mix and 48 miles being grade and drain construction.

The road mileage completed in 1934 consisted of 114.2 miles of reinforced concrete paving; 45 miles of rock asphalt; 11.8 miles of water bound macadam; 91.6 miles of surface mix; 377.3 of traffic bound macadam; 120 miles of gravel and 233.9 miles of grade and drain construction.

There is not included in the total of completed mileage 173.7 miles of grade and drain construction that was surfaced during the drain construction.

There is not included in the total of completed mileage 173.7 miles of grade and drain construction that was surfaced during the year, or is now being surfaced.

Within the entire road system, which now embraces 7,271.8 miles of improved highways, there is 979.5 miles of reinforced concrete.

Remainder of the mileage is as follows: 16.5 miles of bituminous concrete; 4.5 miles of brick; 422.4 miles of rock asphalt; 202.4 miles of bituminous macadam; 1,024 miles of surface treated water bound macadam; 487.9 miles of surface mix; 1,391 miles of traffic bound macadam; 423.6 miles of gravel surface treated; 924 miles of gravel; 547.6 miles of grade and drain, and 867.7 miles of traffic bound macadam surface treated.

SALES TAX

COST 1.96 PER CENT TO COLLECT FIRST EIGHT MONTHS

Frankfort, Ky., April 2—The state sales tax was collected for 1.96 per cent the first eight months the revenue measure was in operation, despite the fact that non-recurring expense of several thousand dollars was necessitated in purchasing office equipment and supplies.

Income from the 3 per cent sales tax the first eight months totalled $6,083,388.06 and expense of the sales tax department in collecting this revenue amounted to $119,630.99 it is revealed by figures given out by William R. Robinson, head of the department. Of that sum $71,286.50 was for payroll and the remainder for miscellaneous expense, including office equipment.

The low per cent of collection cost is said to compare favorably with others states in which a sales tax is levied. Sales tax collection in Mississippi cost three and half per cent, it was stated recently by the Governor of that state.

Now that the office has been furnished, and expensive calculate machines that were necessary, have been paid for, it is anticipated that the per cent of collection cost will continue to decrease, Mr. Robinson said.

EVERYONE WOULD BENEFIT

We hear much these days of the need for solving the transportation problem, in order to stabilize railroads, buses, trucks and other carriers.

It should be constantly emphasized, in addition, that whatever is done for the transportation system will not be to their benefit alone. It will be directly in the interest of dozen great industries, which depend largely on transportation to provide a market for their products.

The steel industry is a good example. It is one of the largest industries in the country. It represents an investment of billions. It is a great taxpayer. It normally employs a vast army of men. And railroads and other common carriers are the largest users of steel products. The motor industry alone, of which truck and bus production is an important part—consumes 17 per cent of the total steel tonnage in average years. When railroad buying power is at a normal level, the demand for rails, locomotive steel, structural steel and similar products keeps many of the great mills of the nation going.

The transportation problem affects every carrier—and it is steadily growing more important. Inequitable, confused regulatory policies are standing in the way of progress, not only of railroads, which have been the principal sufferer in the past, but of truck and bus systems, which are rapidly drifting into chaos due to cut-throat practices and wasteful competition. And, in the long run, the public must pay the bill, in the coin of inefficient service.

A forward-looking government transport policy, that would protect the interests of all carriers and treat all fairly, would give a great impetus to business at large. It would increase employment and purchasing power. The whole nation would feel the good effects.

MORE TAXES—HIGHER TAXES

The increasing gravity of the tax problem is well illustrated in a recent survey made by the National Industrial Conference Board.

During the past four years, according to its findings, the public debt has increased at a more rapid rate than at any time in our history, save the two war years. The debt—federal, state and local—is now in excess of $41,000,000,000.

Total tax collections, on the other hand, are at a lower level than in 1930, in spite of the numerous new taxes created by the government in the years since then. Most of the money now being spent by government does not come out of its income, but is represented by borrowings against the future. The Board says that the margin between tax collections and public expenditures is now about $6,000,000,000, of which $4,000,000,000 is reflected in rising indebtedness. The other $2,000,000,000 is made up by non-tax governmental receipts, such as earnings of general departments, assessments, fines, etc.

To give still another illustration, the cost of debt service—interest and retirement of maturing bonds—in a late year for all units of government combined, amounted to 16.5 per cent of gross expenditures, and almost 30 per cent of total tax collections.

There are the figures, and they require little comment. The gap between income and outgo is steadily widening with the inevitable result of more taxes and higher taxes—at the expense of employment, home-building and industrial expansion.

A SERVICE TO THE LIVING

A comparatively few years ago, life insurance was principally a service to the beneficiaries of the dead. Today it is essentially a service to the living.

In that former time, the bulk of the money paid out by the life insurance industry constituted death claims, and only a minor part of it went to living policy holders. Now the aspect has changed entirely. Last year, the life companies distributed the vast sum of $2,700,000,000 to policy holders and beneficiaries. Of this, $900,000,000 went to beneficiaries—while twice as much, $1,800,000,000 went to living policy holders, through annuities, surrender values, loans and matured contracts of the endowment and other types.

Life insurance is no longer regarded by the public as being merely a means for protecting dependents. It is regarded as an investment—and as the safest, most stable and most conservative investment offered to the average man. People are today putting money into life insurance as they put it into government bonds—knowing that it will be there when they need it.

New statistics show that life insurance sales during the first part of this year are well over those of last—and 1934 sales were ten per cent in excess of 1933. The American people are gradually attaining the very practical ideal of financial security through life insurance.

FRIEND OF THE DARK ANGEL

The average motorist, however modest he may be in other respects, becomes an egomaniac as soon as he takes the wheel of his car.

He believes that traffic regulations should be rigidly enforced—so far as other drivers are concerned—but that he should be an exception to the rule. John Jones should be forced to keep down to twenty or thirty miles an hour—but he, whose abilities are hardly second to those of Sir Calcom Campbell, can be trusted to drive as fast as he pleases.

The accident statistics demonstrate how tragically wrong this average motorist is. Nine out of ten accidents occurring last year were directly the fault of drivers or pedestrians. In only one out of ten was the mechanical condition of the car to blame. And in the overwhelming majority of instances the factor that led to the mishap was excessive speed. The best proof of that lies in the fact that the rate of death per accident on highways—where speeds are naturally higher than on streets—was more than 100 per cent greater than the average for all accidents combined. In city accidents, the rate of death per accident was 52 per cent worse between intersections, where motorists speed up, than at intersections where the bulk of drivers instinctively slow down.

A heavy foot on the throttle is the best friend the Dark Angel has. At the present time, campaigns are underway in all states and most cities to enforce reasonable traffic regulations. The driver who thinks he can "safely" drive as fast as he wants, wherever he wants, must be taught the error of his ways.

AGRICULTURE LOOKS FORWARD

There is growing feeling on the part of unprejudiced authorities that the Federal government's farm relief program has been a relative failure, in the light of the great hopes that were held out for it when it was inaugurated.

This feeling seems to be shared to an extent, by high government officials, who are planning changes in the program whereby the government will act less in an administrative capacity and more as an advisor to the farmer.

The upshot of this is that the farmer himself must redouble his efforts to solve his own problems, and smooth his own road. It would be a poor thing indeed if American agriculture came to depend on government as a great white father to which it could turn for aid in any crisis, real or imagined. Government should obviously give all possible aid and support to agriculture, as it does other groups—but it should take extreme care that the farmer does not become a ward of the state in the process.

Certain groups of farmers, totaling hundreds of thousands, are and have been working their way out of depression through organized cooperative action. They have banded together in great cooperative organizations, whose purpose is to make production and distribution machinery more efficient, and to increase agriculture's bargaining power. These farmers are self-reliant, awake to conditions—in brief, they are individualists, cooperating with other individualists to achieve a common aim. That typifies the kind of "farm relief" that, in the long run, will really produce desirable and permanent results.

Ye editor appreciated that April Fool joke from the Burlington R. F. D. I corresponded. Thanks.

SEEN and HEARD

around the
National Capital

By CARTER FIELD

Washington.—This is the season for editorial comments and business men's explosions to the broad general effect that the senate should stop talking and act—that it is outrageous that the senate should work under such archaic rules, permitting almost unlimited filibustering—and that congress should attend to its knitting, pack its various bags, and go home.

There is nothing new about this complaint. It is almost as old as the senate itself. The criticisms, every year, are generally preceded by equally violent blasts about the house of representatives rushing through legislation without proper consideration. These come early in each session of congress. Criticisms of the senate for talking too much come later.

Certainly it is very irritating to a man in any particular line of business to be uncertain as to the future of the rules of the game under which he must operate—whether it be a code under NRA as at present, or a tariff schedule on his product, as often happens, or a tax, as happens once every few years. He is apt to grow very impatient indeed when he reads in his newspaper every day that this important—to him—subject is being held up in the senate because a group of senators insist on talking—either about that very question or perhaps something entirely irrelevant.

If the aforesaid business man has watched the wheels go round for any length of time, moreover, he knows perfectly well that speeches change very few votes. That the senate is never stampeded by a silver-tongued orator. So he may reach the conclusion that the whole performance is a silly waste of time.

Now most of this criticism is accurate. What is overlooked in the criticism, however, is that a debate on any measure serves to center the attention of the country on that measure. That it forces into the consciousness of the senators who will vote on it the views—not of their colleagues—but of their constituents back home who will be affected by that legislation.

Filibusters Fail

The late Hoke Smith, of Georgia, in opposing a cloture rule in the senate, was fond of observing that a filibuster had never in history beaten a really good measure. Regardless of the merits of this, it is certainly true, in the opinion of nearly every man who has watched the senate over a long period of years, that few filibusters, if any, have ever succeeded that ran counter to popular sentiment as demonstrated later.

For example, it is generally accepted that at the time Woodrow Wilson sent the Versailles treaty to the senate for ratification, the country as a whole was behind the treaty and behind the League of Nations. Had it been possible to force an immediate vote, the United States would have approved the treaty, and would have been in the League of Nations and the World court immediately.

As a matter of fact, when that fight started, there were only two senators—Borah and Reed of Missouri—who really wanted to kill the treaty. Before the vote was taken there were nearly twenty killers, and only a few who did not want reservations of one kind or another. Without that long-dragged-out fight, the later judgment of the people of this country would not have been served.

This may seem far-fetched at the present moment. But due to the long dragging out of the work relief bill, which has so distressed some commentators, much has been done behind the scenes on other legislation. The utility holding company bill, for example; the old age pensions and unemployment insurance measures; and NRA continuance, which still requires, not voting, but time for crystallization of opinions as to the best thing to do.

Had the senate been operating under rules similar to those in the house, it is quite possible that the whole program would have been passed by now, in its various original forms. Even New Dealers now admit this would be little short of a tragedy.

Work Relief Troubles

President Roosevelt's work relief troubles have only begun. The nearly five-billion-dollar bill was steered safely through the rapids and shoals of congress. Amendments, which would have hamstringed it—boosting it beyond his ideas of what was possible or reducing it below what he thought would be effective, or substituting the dole or adding inflation—were all beaten. But the problem still remains.

Now the question is—how to make it work. How to give every "employable" person—the goal announced by the President—a job?

The difficulties are innumerable. For example:

Total amount: This is not considered sufficient by any expert who has studied the problem. It is no secret that the President himself does not think it large enough. He made the amount what it was, not because that was sufficient, in his judgment, but because it was as large as he dared even consider.

Earmarking and promises: The earmarking was not desired by the President, and his friends in the senate managed to make the language so elastic that, if the President desired, he could virtually disregard it. For instance, the discretion given him to modify any item, up or down, by 20 per cent of the total of the bill—not just the total of that item. But the earmarking was made, and the President has no desire to provoke further troubles with congress later on by disregarding such expressed wishes too flagrantly. The same might be said to apply to all the private promises made to individual senators as to what would be done in their states. As, for example, the agreements calmly announced by the two Vermont senators.

Slow to Borrow

Hesitation of states, counties and cities to borrow: A considerable part of the money, under the general plans as announced before the introduction of the bill by the White House, was to be loaned to states, counties, cities, "authorities," etc. The idea is that these governmental units would borrow money for specifically approved projects, and would sometime not only pay interest but repay the principal.

All the information available here is to the effect that many of these local governmental units are heavily loaded down with debt burden, and would prefer the federal government to take their troubles off their shoulders. Hence there is reported a loathness to borrow which may handicap the working of the whole plan, or at least to make the eventual debt burden of the federal government much greater than the President had estimated.

Discriminations: This is one of the worst problems of all, the point being that states, counties, cities and authorities in many instances have already borrowed enormous sums from PWA, and are not only paying interest, but expect to repay the principal. How are they going to feel it—as many suspect—the federal government is forced virtually to make donations to other states, cities, counties and authorities for the same sort of work? In the one instance the federal government will be loaning money, getting a fair rate of interest, and expecting to get the principal back. In the other the federal government, for precisely the same type of project, will be making an outright gift.

Plenty of political trouble is in sight on this!

Then there is what might be called the time lag. For the truth is and has been for some time that no definite program for the spending of the four billion odd dollars has been worked out. This is not mere supposition. It has been stated again and again by the President in talks with senators and members of the house; it has been stated by virtually every official of the administration; testifying before congressional committees. It is only partially true, but there is going to be quite a lot of delay in getting under way.

Finally, there are the difficulties involved in the proposed fee system, awarding jobs without competitive bidding. Imagination runs riot on that!

Japanese Cotton

Tremendous importations of Japanese cotton cloth, with resultant closing down of New England mills, has caused a sudden and peremptory demand on the part of New England senators and members of the house for action to stop it. Among the steps demanded are immediate boosting of the tariff duties, cutting off the Japanese imports on the charge of dumping, and stopping of all processing taxes on cotton products so that American manufacturers and workers will not be penalized.

Figures submitted to Robert Lincoln O'Brien, chairman of the tariff commission, by Senator David I. Walsh show a startling advance in cotton cloth imports from Japan. The Massachusetts senator points out that in 1933 a total of 1,700,000 square yards was imported; in 1934, 7,700,000, but that in January of this year alone importations mounted to 7,000,000 yards in February, to 12,000,000 yards, and that on the first day of March alone the imports were 5,000,000 yards. Which makes a total of 24,000,000 yards brought in from Japan in the first 60 days of this year!

"I am sure," said Senator Walsh in calling the attention of Chairman O'Brien to these facts, "you will agree with me that these figures are startling and that these imports have greatly added to the distressing situation already existing in the cotton cloth industry. Let me add that this industry is in a very desperate condition. I refer to the industry located both in the North and in the South. A leading southern manufacturer, who is a member of the textile code authority and a member of the Industrial Advisory Board of the NRA, approving code Number One (cotton textile code), has recently stated: 'All the best mills, no matter where located, are losing money. Many mills have closed, and others are reducing the pay of employees, in an effort to survive. Possibly a hundred or more have closed during the past two or three months, and more will close shortly.'

"The Rhode Island Telegram, of Providence, R. I., recently stated there were 22 mills closed in that immediate section. A textile mill in another state, employing ten thousand people, is threatened with the necessity of closing. The bishop of Fall River is calling upon members of the New England delegation, pointing out the desperate plight of the cotton cloth industry in Fall River and vicinity."

Senator Walsh then pointed out that the processing tax on cotton should be absorbed by the $4,000,000,000 relief bill, saying that no competing fabrics are subjected to processing taxes.

He also suggested that code authorities be permitted to reduce operations when necessary and conditions justify it.

has been radically reduced!

Instead of paying $36.50 you now pay

$9.75 FOR A LIMITED TIME ONLY

This lease fee of $9.75 is your only initial expense other than the cost of the appliance you select. There are no extras—all installation charges and piping are included in the cost of the appliance.

Now you can afford the convenience of this finest of all gas services. This temporary reduction in the fee for Pyrofax equipment is the third step in our economy program to bring you clean, modern cooking at a low price. The first step was low monthly terms. The second step was the sliding scale of gas prices which lowered the yearly cost of gas in the average home considerably. And now we take pleasure in announcing this third important step.

Now that all three are in effect, Pyrofax Gas Service is so economical that almost any family can afford it. This offer is good for a limited time only, so don't delay—come in today and let us show you, in actual figures, how little it costs to cook with clean, modern Pyrofax Gas.

Lesson for April 7

THE HEAVENLY FATHER

LESSON TEXT—John 14:8-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him. Psalm 103:13.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Heavenly Father.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Heavenly Father.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why We Call God Father.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Fatherhood of God.

The aim in the lessons of this quarter is to place before the pupils of the Sunday School some of the great doctrines of the Christian faith, as set forth in God's Word, with their practical application to the common relations of life.

I. Who is the Heavenly Father (Gen. 1:1).

He is the almighty God who created the universe (Ps. 90:2). He was before all things. God is the infinite and perfect Spirit in whom we live and move and have our being. He is omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent. He was not only before all things, but the cause of all things.

II. What the Heavenly Father Does. 1. He created the universe (Gen. 1:1; cf. vv. 26, 27). The universe came into being by the will and act of the personal Being called God. Man himself is a creation of God.

2. He has provided salvation for lost men (1 John 4:9). He gave his only Son, that whosoever believeth in him might live through him (John 3:16).

3. He preserves us (Ps. 103:1-14). The preserving mercy of God embraces the following gracious beneficent acts:

a. He forgives all our iniquities (v. 3). This he is able to do because of the righteous provision he made for sin in the atonement wrought out by Jesus Christ.

b. He heals all our diseases (v. 3). This healing refers to the body and the soul. He first renovates man's moral nature and then his physical nature.

c. He redeems the life from destruction (v. 4). Redemption implies the payment of all demands against the debtor.

d. He satisfies the mouth (v. 5). God satisfies all legitimate desires, so that youth is renewed like the eagle's. In redemption man's original capacities are restored to their native vigor.

e. He executes righteousness and judgment (vv. 6-12). The wrongs of life are righted and man is thus relieved of the burdens which they entail.

f. He pities his children (vv. 13, 14). The pity of an earthly father is but a faint suggestion of the sympathetic compassion of the heavenly Father.

4. He chastens his children (Heb. 12:5-11).

a. The fact (vv. 5, 6). Every one who is God's spiritual child experiences chastening, an unmistakable evidence of sonship.

b. How it should be received (v. 6).

c. The purpose of (vv. 9-11). It is to bring the child into subjection to induce reverence (v. 9). It is to produce holiness (v. 10). It is to develop fruits of righteousness (v. 11).

5. He cares for his children (Matt. 6:11, 25). The child of God, who has come to know his heavenly Father as the almighty Creator and Preserver, whose very essential being is love, will trust the Father for daily bread without anxiety or fear.

III. The Heavenly Father Revealed in Jesus Christ (John 14:8, 9).

The supreme purpose of the coming of the Son of God was to reveal God (John 1:8). Only a being of God's essential nature could reveal him. Jesus Christ became man in order that he might reveal God to man. Only the one who knows Jesus Christ knows God.

IV. How Men Come to Know God as the Father (John 3:3-6).

It is through regeneration. The new birth is absolutely essential to a knowledge of God as the Father. We are children of God by faith in Jesus Christ (Gal. 3:26).

V. Our Responsibility to the Heavenly Father (Matt. 6:24-34).

The true child who has come to know his Father

1. Will give him undivided affection (v. 24). The child of God makes the unequivocal choice between the heavenly Father and the world.

2. He will not be anxious about food and clothing, as stated above.

3. He will diligently seek the kingdom of God and his righteousness (vv. 33, 34). He will subordinate temporal things to the things of the Spirit. This is not a warning against legitimate forethought, but against anxious worry.

Fight Your Habits

The most truly religious thing that a man can do is to fight his way through habits and deficiencies, and back to pure, manlike elements in his nature, which are the ineffaceable traces of the Divine workmanship, and alone really worth fighting for.—Weiss.

Immortality

When, by nobler culture, by purer experience, by breathing the air of a higher duty, vitality at length creeps into the soul, the instincts of immortality will wake within us.

What IS a Sound Loan?

A sound loan for a commercial bank is a loan which the borrower believes, and the bank expects, will be paid within a reasonable time—a loan which if not fully repaid at the maturity of the note is substantially reduced by regular periodic installments. Loans that are regularly reduced enable a bank to accommodate patrons whose needs may be more essential. A bank must have a turn-over of money in the same way that a merchant must have a turn-over of merchandise, with this difference—bank's turn-over affects the credit facilities of the entire community.

The ability and intention to repay a loan by a planned program, and within a reasonable time, is the essence of a good loan. The giving of collateral does not repay a loan. Collateral is merely a pledge to guarantee the borrower's ability and promise to repay the loan within a reasonable time.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for his foster daughter could not shelter her childhood from the hands of the man who had never wanted her. Their affairs ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to baseball game. A ball hit into the bleachers, struck Penelope on the nose and the neurotic Mrs. Gatlin removed her from the hospital to which her former husband had hurried her. Mrs. Gatlin spirited the child to Europe. Penelope retired from business with Penelope all his money, and was about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II.—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a rising young psychiatrist, was presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" was in part responsible. McNamara did not think she was a responsible criminal but obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Even Lanny, the doctor's faithful office nurse, was won over to the cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III.—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's clear explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny, Burt's nurse, and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter, which a confederate stole from her handbag outside the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV.—Nance escaped, although shot, by swimming out to a speed-boat manned by friends and went to Lanny's apartment. Lanny told Chief McNamara, who ordered her to bring Nance to his apartment and phoned for Doctor Burt.

CHAPTER V.—One of the men in the boat on which Nance escaped—two of them ex-convicts, the other a bootlegger—had been wounded and they went to Burt's office, where McNamara found them. The bootlegger let go and he took the other to his home, ordering the uninjured one to care for him and his pal. From the man he learned that Nance's real name was Penelope Gatlin. Detective Sergeants Flynn and Angelotti, seeking the reward for Nance's apprehension, went to Lanny's apartment in search of the girl. McNamara found her in San Quentin cell. McNamara found a blank check on a San Jose bank.

CHAPTER VI.—From the San Jose banker McNamara learned that the girl he knew as Nance Belden was Penelope Gatlin, heiress to $750,000. The banker did not know Penelope's whereabouts. Mrs. Gatlin was now the wife of a man named Merton. McNamara ordered Detective Sergeants Flynn and Angelotti to "lay off" Lanny, whom they had called for Nance. The detectives trailed Doctor Burt when he went to McNamara's house to treat her smother wound but Nance and the two men who helped her escape saw them first and fled.

CHAPTER VII.—When Lanny got home one evening she found Nance sound asleep in the study on her bedroom bed. Several days later the hard-boiled exterior of Nance Belden suddenly vanished and the girl became the refined Penelope Gatlin. Her partially restored memory led her to tell Lanny of her wealthy father, Theodore Gatlin, and of her girlhood in France. Fearing his detectives would locate Penelope, McNamara furnished her with tear and stink bombs and told her how to use them to escape if they did. She used the bombs and got away. Flynn and Angelotti continued hot on Nance's trail and McNamara's.

CHAPTER VIII.—Susan Engelbright, known as "Sapphire Susie," who had served a term for blackmail, appeared and asked McNamara to protect her from Flynn. She admitted that Nance had gotten her three 12-carat sapphires out of her back and had helped her in her plans for escape. McNamara learned definitely that Nance (or Penelope) had called for Doctor Burt when he went to McNamara's house to treat her smother wound but Nance and the two men who helped her escape saw them first and fled.

CHAPTER IX.—Stephen warned Penelope by cable to leave Paris, signing his message "Mac." When Flynn went to Doctor Burt to ask him to identify a passport photograph for Nance Belden, the doctor hypnotized him and impressed on his subconscious mind that Nance must always mention the two names Nance Belden and Penelope Gatlin.

CHAPTER X.—Warned through the joint efforts of McNamara and Stephen, Nance fled Paris before Flynn could put the French police on her trail, and popped back into Lanny's home in San Francisco, where she was married and accompanied Penelope to New York, where Doctor Burt had engaged the best plastic surgeon in the country to remodel her nose. As McNamara had destroyed all her criminal records, this remaining of her lock would bury her identity as Nance Belden. Dan returned when his 60 days leave expired and reported the operation a success but that three months would elapse before Nance was out of the surgeon's hands. Stephen commissioned McNamara to look up the girl's ancestry and living conditions in childhood.

"You're no help," Lanny snapped, and hung up. Half an hour later, from the cable company's main office, Stephen dispatched the cablegram.

With Dan McNamara definitely out of the fight, Stephen felt lonely and apprehensive. He wondered why the girl had fled to Paris in the face of Dan McNamara's instructions to flee to Lower California, to enter which no passport is required. He asked Lanny.

"Oh, that's no mystery, Stevie. I brought home from the office, intending to show it to Dan, an article by a celebrated plastic surgeon of Paris. Penelope read it with great interest. She went to Paris to consult this French plastic surgeon and also to have samples of her new nose drawn by a competent artist."

"So that's how the Paris police informed Dan she was having her portrait done by an American artist, eh? I suppose it will be her luck to be in a hospital undergoing the operation when the Paris police receive word to deport her."

"I'm afraid she's balled everything up, Stephen. Flynn will have the number of her passport and Dan will have no time to fix a new passport photograph on it. They'll not trust to the photo to identify her if she tries to land. They'll check up on the passport number also."

"Will you never cease discussing this miserable business, Lanny?" Stephen burst out irritably. "If it hadn't been for you we wouldn't be in this wretched predicament."

When the captain of detectives called in Detective Sergeant P. Flynn and related to him the tale told to him by Mrs. Rudolph Merton, Flynn gave no sign of being particularly interested. Carefully and methodically he arranged in his mind the facts as stated, and when he left the presence of his superior, all he knew was that he was to strive to recover a lost heiress by name Penelope Gatlin, and that she had a nose that should make her recognizable anywhere.

After nine hours of refreshing slumber, Flynn proceeded to ponder the case of Penelope Gatlin of the saddle nose. "I seem to be getting my fill of girls with saddle noses who disappear mysteriously," he decided lazily and instantly something clicked in his brain and he knew he was on the trail of Nance Belden again. An heiress, eh? McNamara had hinted at powerful influences back of Nance Belden, and she certainly must have hired the expert help she had had in her escape from San Quentin penitentiary.

Instantly Something Clicked in His Brain and He Knew He Was on the Trail of Nance Belden Again.

"McNamara knows who she is," Flynn decided. "He's getting his chums for helping her. I bet it's the same girl."

He decided not to take Angelotti into his confidence. For two hundred and fifty dollars, Angelotti had agreed to abandon his interest in Nance Belden; whereas P. Flynn had scorned to quit. He would pick up the trail again alone, and when he had Nance Belden or Penelope Gatlin on his hook—well, she had to pay somebody to keep out of San Quentin, and that somebody should be P. Flynn.

He went to San Jose that day and interviewed the officials of the bank, who, when he flashed his shield, gave him all the information they possessed. Dan McNamara had artfully destroyed all the girl's police photographs, but if she had secured a passport, Flynn argued to himself, she had left two of her passport photographs with the passport office, and Flynn knew he could borrow one of them.

Flynn's shield was an open sesame to the man in charge of the passport office. Two minutes after his arrival he knew Nance Belden had secured a passport.

Employing identically the same means McNamara had employed, he traced Penelope Gatlin to Paris within three days. But he had now to prove that Penelope Gatlin and Nance Belden were one and the same person, so he interviewed the United States marshal, who secured for him one of the girl's passport photographs. Armed with this, Flynn crossed the bay to San Quentin.

"Is that Nance Belden?" he asked the matron.

"That is Nance Belden," was the reply.

From the ferry he went at once to the home of Mrs. Rudolph Merton. He stuck the photograph under her nose and asked gruffly: "Is that Penelope Gatlin?"

A tremor ran over Mrs. Merton's face. It seemed to Flynn that she was frightened, disturbed.

"Well?" he demanded. "You can't expect the police to find your missing daughter if you don't help. Is this her picture or isn't it?"

"I—I don't know. I have never heard of her before."

"Never heard of her? Why, she's your daughter!"

"I haven't any daughter."

"Why, you called on the captain of detectives and asked him to find your daughter. What do you mean by telling me you've never heard of her?"

"Oh, please, please don't ask me! Some thing terrible will happen. I—I—"

"You refuse to identify this photo as that of Penelope Gatlin?" Flynn was growing irritated.

Finally she had hysterics and a maid came in and asked P. Flynn to leave the house.

Flynn was profoundly irritated. He knew Penelope Gatlin was at 27 Rue St. Honoré, Paris, but he did not know that Nance Belden was! Back at central office, he compared the passport photograph with the substitute photograph Dan McNamara had pasted on Nance Belden's fake police record card—and knew it for a fake.

Suddenly it occurred to Flynn that he had had an official interview with everybody connected with this mysterious case, except Dr. Stephen Burt.

"You're a long time getting around to see me, Sergeant," Stephen charged, and indicated a large, comfortable armchair.

"I called on you once, Doctor, but you didn't know it. That was the night after Nance Belden escaped from San Quentin. Me an' my partner trailed you to the chief's house."

"I've always thought you and the excellent Angelotti didn't make the best of your opportunities," Stephen murmured. "Still, I suppose you were playing with dynamite."

"We were," said Flynn, "but no more. The chief's one of the biggest-hearted men in the world, but a picnic egg if you rub him the wrong way. So we pussy-footed."

"No fair man could deny the excellence of your pussy-footing. I know all about it. How about a wee Dock an' Doria?" Stephen suggested.

"There's an idea for you, Doctor." Stephen summoned the butler and ordered the drink. Flynn, with great deliberation, produced Penelope's photograph.

"Do you know the lady?" he queried. "I think I do, Sergeant."

"Who is she?"

"Is there any reason why I should express an opinion?"

"Not unless you choose to be good-natured. I suppose you know you're in Dutch for aiding and abetting an escaped convict."

"Well?"

"Naturally we don't want to make the going hard for a man of your standing," Flynn continued.

"My dear sergeant, you would have started the fireworks long ago if you had anything tangible to proceed upon."

Flynn slipped his highball. "You're being well paid for shielding this girl, of course. I don't blame you a bit, but—you're too big a figure in your profession to get into trouble with the police."

"Dan McNamara is my friend."

"Well, Mac is out of it. He can't protect you because he must protect himself. It might interest you to know that Nance Belden and a lost heiress, Penelope Gatlin, are the same person, and I have the Paris police watching her right now."

"Are you quite certain the girl is still at that Paris address?" asked Stephen.

"I know it."

"I know she isn't—and the Paris police do not know where she is."

"Do you?"

"No, but if I did I wouldn't tell you."

"Look here," said Flynn. "What's it worth to your young girl friend to have me lay off the case?"

"I'll give you twenty dollars in Confederate currency. You were offered real money once and refused it."

"They looked at each other searchingly, then both laughed. "I see there ain't much use pumpin' you, Doc,"

Flynn admitted. "Well, a fellow can't be ruled off for trying."

"When were you to see a doctor last?"

"At the age of twenty-two. Why?"

"How old are you?"

"Forty-two."

"Well, just to prove I'm friendly I'll give you a quick physical examination. It may save you a fee later from some other physician. Mind if I give you a quick look-see?"

"Go to it," said Flynn.

Stephen tested Flynn's heart action and lungs and took his blood pressure.

"You're up thirty-six points," he told him.

Flynn was distinctly perturbed.

"What does that mean?"

"It means that you have a fairly well developed case of hardening of the arteries. If you were to be re-examined physically, for promotion, you might be retired on pension."

"I couldn't afford that," cried Flynn.

"I've got a wife and five children."

"Nevertheless, I would suggest you apply for a six months' leave of absence and have me treat you. How's your eyesight?"

"Grand," P. Flynn mumbled.

"I doubt it, Sergeant. I'll bet you a hundred dollars you cannot look into this little mirror fifteen minutes without averting your gaze. Want to earn the hundred?"

Flynn couldn't afford that much of a bet.

"Well, then, we'll not bet, but if you can I'll give you a hundred dollars."

Stephen produced a hand mirror and held it two feet in front of Flynn and about six inches above the level of his glance. He took out his watch.

"Go!" he said. "And remember I'm watching you. If you get through this test successfully there's hope for your arteriosclerosis."

P. Flynn grinned and gazed. In three minutes the effort oppressed him. Stephen's voice reached him as from a distance.

"You are going to sleep, Sergeant."

Then, "You can't stand it, Sergeant. You're going to sleep. I tell you—to sleep."

"I'm not," Flynn protested drowsily, just as his eyes closed and his head fell forward on his breast.

Stephen's soft hands stroked the detective's brow. "Why did you call to see me?"

"To get you to identify the photograph," Flynn's voice was faint.

"Why was that necessary?"

Flynn hesitated, struggled a little, but lay back quietly again as Stephen's hands resumed their light massaging. "Are you going to oppose me, Sergeant?"

"No, Doctor."

"Will you answer questions truthfully?"

"Yes, Doctor." The tones were dead and lifeless, for Flynn slept a hypnotic sleep.

"Why was it necessary that I should identify the photograph?"

"I've got to know before I act, Doctor. The matron at San Quentin says it's Nance Belden, but the photograph is on the passport of Penelope Gatlin."

"Why do you want this girl?"

"She's made a fool out of me—and she can pay well to be let alone."

"You're not interested in seeing her returned to prison?"

"Not a d—n bit, Doctor. Why should I?"

"That name, Penelope Gatlin, is bad luck," Stephen warned. "Never repeat it to a human soul. If you do it may mean your death. And your oldest child will be kidnapped, tortured and killed."

"Oh, God, no!" Flynn cried out in agony.

"You must forget Penelope Gatlin and Nance Belden. Will you?"

"Yes, Doctor."

"Make up your mind now that you will never mention those two names again as long as you live. You promise?"

"Yes, Doctor."

"Now, what is the name of the girl whose photograph you showed me?"

A curious slight spasm of distaste flashed across Flynn's face. He shuddered. "I don't know," he replied.

"What is the name of the girl who escaped from San Quentin?"

"I don't know."

Stephen struck Flynn a smart slap on the top of the head. "Wake up," he commanded.

Flynn came awake instantly and looked extremely foolish. "Well, you didn't stand the test," Stephen assured him. "You were falling asleep, so I awakened you."

"Am I pretty bad, Doc?"

"You're this bad, that if you do not take treatment you will be in a bad way. I'll give you a prescription. Come and see me again."

"Thank you, Doc. You're mighty kind. Good Lord, Doc, am I going crazy? I don't remember why I called on you."

"You asked me to identify this passport photograph," and Stephen held out the little photo to Flynn, who thrust it away.

"That's bad luck, Doc. Never mind. It's a matter of no importance."

He picked up his hat, bade Stephen good night and left.

CHAPTER X

When the cablegram sent to Penelope Gatlin had been delivered for at least three days Dan McNamara telephoned Lanny to ask if the girl had answered. Upon being told she had not, he was so cast down that Lanny felt sorry for him. So, like all women who feel sorry for a man, she decided to feed him, and invited him for dinner that night. She said Stephen would be there.

"What's no inducement," McNamara rumbled. "but I'll come anyhow. Thanks."

McNamara's thoughts kept shuttling back to Penelope Gatlin all that busy day. Finally he telephoned Flynn to report to him.

"I'll about that Merton case I sent up to the chief of detectives recently?" he asked, when Flynn appeared. (McNamara hadn't sent the case up at all, but he knew Flynn did not know this.)

"Oh, yes," said Flynn. "I did some work on that but didn't get anywhere. I called on the Merton woman and tried to get her to identify the girl's photograph, but she wouldn't or couldn't."

"Did you get a line on the girl?"

"Sure. Traced her to an address in Paris."

"Under what name is she registered with the Paris police?"

"Chief, I can't just recall it."

"It was Penelope Gatlin, wasn't it?" Flynn finched a little. "I don't know."

"You're as bad as Mrs. Merton. What's the matter with you?"

"I don't know, Chief. I think we might as well drop the case."

"Very well, then, forget it, Pat. I was mildly curious, that's all. He dismissed Flynn. "By Jupiter, that fellow's getting too deep for me!" he soliloquized. And he telephoned the captain of detectives. "What about that case of the lost Merton heiress?" he demanded.

"We've dropped it on Flynn's advice," McNamara grunted and hung up.

Lanny, wearing a kitchen apron, ceased cooking dinner long enough to let him in that night. Stephen had not yet arrived, so McNamara went out into the kitchen with Lanny, while he related the news regarding the common nuisance.

Lanny gazed upon him very benignly. "You're a good man, Dan McNamara. How come you've never married?"

"If I had, my mother would have lived with us," he declared. "How come you've never married?"

Lanny sighed. "Nobody ever asked me."

McNamara sighed gustily. "My poor mother's very old and in bad health," he said.

"A man like you should have sons—fine, big, strapping, manly sons."

"How old are you, Lanny?"

"Forty-two."

"I'm forty-six myself. He sighed again. "You're a fine woman, Lanny" —devil a finer. We might manage it."

"Manage what?"

"To put up with mother for the little time she has to live. God bless her."

"I never could stand a left-handed proposal, Dan." Lanny shook her head and gazed at him solemnly.

"Then here's my right hand on it, Lanny," and he laid his great right paw in hers. "If it's sons you'd have, you old darlin', 'tis little time we have to waste."

A faint flush came to Lanny's slightly faded cheeks. "What could Stevie do?"

"It's been my observation, Lanny, that a woman without something to occupy her mind is in a poor way. You could continue to look after the doctor's office."

"You've a good theory, Dan, but it lacks one ingredient."

"Name the lack and I'll get it."

"You're not in love with me."

"The h—! I'm not! You're like all the women—forever putting dogs in windows. I'm not used to passing words lightly on such a subject. Give me a yes or no answer."

"You great, lovable idiot!" Lanny yelled. Advancing swiftly upon the chief, she kissed his pompadour. "I'll risk your mother, Dan," she said softly. "All my life I've been looking for a man with a heart in his chest—and the day you first came into the office, with your big, swaggering way and your blarney and your air of owning the world, I—I wondered if you were married. I'm no longer young, Dan. I have peculiar ways and I'm bossy, too."

NOTICE TO DOG OWNERS

The 1930 Legislature passed an Act requiring the Sheriffs of the various counties to collect the Dog License Fee. The law (Sec. 7) says: "On and after January 1, 1931, it shall be unlawful for any person to own or keep any dog, unless such dog is licensed by the Sheriff or Deputy of the County in which the dog is kept" (Sec. 22) says: "It shall be unlawful for any person to harbor or permit to remain on his premises any dog not having a license. (Sec. 33) says: "Any person other than an officer violating the provisions of this act or failing or refusing to comply with any of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be adjudged to pay a fine not to exceed $100.00."

Section 20 says: "For failure to perform any duty under this act, any officer shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $10.00 and not more than $100.00."

The State Man has made several trips to this office regarding the payment of this tax; and has informed me that it must be paid. I cannot afford to get into trouble by failing to enforce the law. Come and get your license before Court Orders are issued for you.

CIRCUIT COURT

CONVENES FOR THE APRIL TERM, WARNICA, BANK ROBBER, PLEADS GUILTY

Judge J. G. Vallandigham, of Owenton, began the April term of the Boone Circuit Court Monday. He empaneled the Grand Jury composed of the following: Sam Sleet, Russell Sparks, Shelly Aylor, H. C. Norman, Harry Prable, W. T. Carpenter, Frank Biddle, F. M. Rouse, W. R. Garnett, Albert Hitzfield, W. T. McGlasson, E. M. Poston.

The petit juries are as follows: No. 1—R. F. Snyder, Lawrence Chambers, Stanley Clure, R. J. Gullett, Russell Garrison, Wm. Casseldine, Leland Snyder, Chas. L. Kelly, Floyd Marsh, J. B. Arvin, Herbert Snyder, Ed. Easton.

No. 2—J. E. Gaines, Chas. Bachelor, James Aylor, Geo. Hill, Garfield Hamilton, Earl Smith, Chester Hill, B. F. Hossman, Roland Glenn, C. H. Feldhaus, Clarence Struve, Ed. Moreland.

Howard Weierman was convicted for stealing chickens and his punishment was fixed at three years in the Penitentiary. Leo Warnica, who was indicted at the special term of court for the robbery of the Peoples Deposit Bank, Burlington, Ky., last January entered his plea of guilty and his punishment was fixed at confinement in the Penitentiary for life. Ora Miller was tried and given a life sentence for his participation in that robbery at the last term of court. George Hall who also participated in that robbery was killed when he resisted arrest by the police of Gary, Indiana. The robbery was committed January 3rd, 1935, about 3 p. m. The conviction of Warnica brings the case to an end in so far as the state is concerned, as two of the men who were implicated have been tried and convicted and the third man killed while resisting arrest. Bank robberies usually are not as quickly ended as this one by the conviction of all those who were connected with the crime which shows that all the officers did their whole duty in bringing these criminals to justice.

Frank Reynolds was fined $25.00 and costs for a breach of the peace. John Ryan was fined $25.00 for being drunk in a public place. Grace and Vivian Ryan were fined $10.00 and costs, each for a breach of the peace. It is expected that all business in the court will be completed and court adjourned the last of this week. Officers present are Commonwealth Atty. Ward Yager, County Atty. B. H. Riley, Clerk A. D. Yelton, Sheriff W. B. Cotton and Deputies F. M. Walton and Lucille Cotton and Jailer Elmer Kirkpatrick.

Attorneys present are Judge J. M. Lassing, Judge N. E. Riddell, O. M. Rogers, Irvin Bramlage, Jas. Rogers, W. H. Rucker, John L. Vest, Walter Vest, C. W. Riley, Richard Carroll and John W. Crigler. Miss Leila Wilhoit, Official Stenographer of Lexington, was at her desk.

TOBACCO

BOARD OF DIRECTORS MEETS 700 A A A CARDS CERTIFIED

The Boone County A A A Tobacco Board of Directors met at Burlington, Monday and certified to seven hundred A A A 1934 tobacco marketing cards. The certified cards will be forwarded to Washington immediately for the second 1934 adjustment payment.

The second adjustment payment will bring Boone county contract signers approximately $50,000. The payments are due June 1 and are based on the per cent reduction taken by growers. Those who reduced 33 1-3 per cent will receive 15 per cent of the sale value of the 1934 crop. Those who reduced 50 per cent will receive 35 per cent of the sale of the 1934 crop.

Fifty marketing cards were held up, due to failure for complete compliance or due to negligence on the part of producers to properly sign and certify their marketing card for 1934 sales. These growers will receive their payments at a later date.

Kirb Ryle, a well-known farmer of Rabbit Hash community, passed away last Friday at 11 a. m., of pneumonia. He was buried in the Bellevue cemetery Monday after a very appropriate funeral service conducted at Bellevue Baptist church which was conducted by Rev. Raymond Smith, pastor.

NEW FARM LOANS

WILL BEAR INTEREST RATE OF 5% EFFECTIVE APRIL 1

Effective April 1, 1935, new loans made by The Federal Land Bank of Louisville will bear an interest rate of 4 1/2 per cent per year, according to announcement of Col. Frank D. Rash, President. "This rate is the lowest at which loans ever have been made by The Federal Land Bank of Louisville," said Col. Rash.

"For about two years past loans made through national farm loan associations at 5 per cent have carried a temporary interest reduction to 4 1/2 per cent until July, 1938, at which date the 5 per cent rate automatically is resumed. This temporary lowering of the rate was provided by the Emergency Farm Mortgage Act of 1933. On new loans however, beginning April 1, the 4 1/2 per cent rate will prevail throughout the life of the loans which are on an amortized basis ranging from 20 to 35 years, as in the past."

This interest rate reduction on new land bank loans will not effect the 5 per cent interest rate carried by Land Bank Commissioner's loans, Col. Rash said. These loans are made on either first or second mortgage security in amounts up to 75 per cent of the appraised normal value of the farm property, with a maximum of $7,500 on any one Commissioner's loan.

"This lowered rate on new loans," stated Col. Rash, "illustrates how under the cooperative plan upon which The Federal Bank of Louisville is organized any savings in the cost of money is readily passed along to farmer-borrowers. Our Land Bank loans will continue to be made for long periods of years, repayable in small semi-annual installments, and in all respects will be identical with previous land bank loans except bearing lower interest rates."

Mr. and Mrs. John Conner, of Williamstown, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cotton and family. Mr. Conner returned to his position Monday, but Mrs. Conner remained for a few days to assist her father in the sheriff's office.

APRIL 15

CLOSING DATE FOR SPECIAL BASE CONTRACTS

Boone county tobacco growers who have not signed special base contract applications and expect to do so are cautioned that April 15th is the closing date.

Plans are, there will be no exemptions on tobacco not grown under contract this year. Special base contracts are open to all growers who grow tobacco or had tobacco grown on their farms since 1929. These contracts are expected to take care of all growers who would be eligible for exemptions.

The county committees will meet on about April 15th to make final allotments on special base contracts. A certain number of pounds has been allotted the county. When these are used up, no more are available. Growers who do not apply for special bases will likely have to pay a higher tax this fall.

Applications for special base contracts and assistance in filling out applications for contracts are available at the County Agent's office in Burlington.

FORMER PASTOR

WHO SERVED 53 YEARS HAS UNUSUAL CREED

Last week comment was made in regard to the 80th birthday of Rev. Edwin R. Wagner who served as a pastor in Boone county for several years. Only a brief statement was made at the time owing to the lack of space in that issue. It was stated that Rev. Wagner had served in the ministry for 53 years which is a wonderful thing in itself. His many old time friends in his county will wish him well as he has reached the four score stage in life and will congratulate him in spirit if not in person for the great good he has done.

However, the present editor who did not know him is more interested in the unusual creed which he has adhered to through his entire life. We feel that it is so full of philosophy and good sense that we are giving it in part for the benefit of his old friends as well as for those of the present generation who do not know him.

(1) On earth there is nothing great but man; and greatest motive in man is Christian mind. (2) It takes 70 years for most of us to learn that small part of the Lord's prayer—"Thy will be done." (3) I am young enough to appear so that you will never speak about my apparel, and old enough to know that time has written 80 years on my face. (4) I am young enough to seek and make new friends and old enough to appreciate old friends most of all. (5) I am young enough to love a rose and old enough to know that it is just as beautiful in your garden as if it were mine. (6) I am young enough to love unbroken china but old enough not to scold, should my wife break a cup every day. (7) I am young enough to love, and old enough to know that he who does not love is no true lover. (8) I am young enough to make mistakes and old enough to forgive them in others.

One of Rev. Wagner's accomplishments in his 80 years of life is the record of never having missed any scheduled services for 27 years, including the time he spent in Bellevue.

BUFFALO CLUB

MET WITH BOONE COUNTY SCHOOLMEN

The Buffalo Club met with the School men of Boone County at Burlington school Wednesday April 3 1935. The women of the community prepared a bountiful repast for the occasion and the Buffaloes were loud in their praise of the splendid dinner which they were privileged to enjoy.

After all had dined to satisfaction, they retired to the auditorium for business and pleasure. After enjoying a period of club songs and stunts led by their very capable leader Mr. Joe Austin of Ft. Thomas, they went into the business of the evening. When business had been disposed of several interesting addresses were made by members of the Club. Mr. W. B. Ward, of Silver Grove made a very interesting talk in answer to some questions that had been discussed at a previous meeting. Mr. Ward defended the old classic curriculum, showing that Latin, Geometry could be made interesting and beneficial to students. Mr. Anderson of Ft. Thomas replied to Mr. Ward presenting the other side of the argument.

Mr. Joe Austin of the Ft. Thomas School made the closing address, in which he brought out many practical things for the school men to think about in connection with their school work.

The following school systems were represented at this meeting: Boone County Schools, Kenton Co. Schools, Campbell County Schools, Ft. Thomas City Schools, Bellevue City Schools, Dayton City Schools, Ludlow City Schools, Pendleton Co. Schools, Silver Grove Independent School, Erlanger City Schools.

QUOTA OF

C. M. T. C. CANDIDATES INCREASED. BOONE COUNTY BOYS TAKE NOTICE

Major General Albert J. Bowley, commanding Fifth Corps Area, at Columbus, Ohio, announced today that the quota of C. M. T. C. candidates to be trained in this corps area had been increased from 1650 to 3450 candidates. This increase will mean a corresponding increase in the procurement quotas allotted the 355 units in the corps area. Applications required to take care of this additional increase will be accepted from qualified young men between the ages of 17 and 24, residing in Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia.

Plans for accommodating these additional trainees are now being considered, General Bowley said, and no effort will be spared in making these camps enjoyable to the enrollees as well as interesting and profitable in their training programs.

The Military Training Camps Association, a purely civilian organization, through its county representatives, will furnish application blanks and literature concerning these camps. Application blanks may also be obtained from the C. M. T. C. Officer, Headquarters Fifth Corps Area, Fort Hayes, Columbus, Ohio.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS

Many of our subscribers have received notices of the amount they owe for their subscriptions the past week. We have tried to be as lenient as possible in extending credit, because of the financial condition of our people. We recognize, however, that a debt which continues to pile up year after year, soon becomes a liability which many people cannot pay. We therefore deemed it best to try to clear our list up.

From now on the Recorder is operating its list on a different basis. We shall send post cards to each subscriber the month his subscription to the paper expires. If a subscriber receives one of our notices, that does not mean that we are saying his credit is bad. It is simply saying that the subscription has run out, and we are trying to remind the subscriber of the fact, and thus prevent any subscriber running up a large subscription bill. We believe that everyone can pay $1.50 easier than they can pay a bill of $3.00, $4.50, $6.00 or $7.50.

The depression has been hard on every business house and individual and the Recorder is not an exception. We cannot operate a good county paper and send it to you each week on thin air. We have got to have your subscription price in order to pay the high cost of paper, printing ink, electric power, labor and mailing costs, to say nothing of many incidental propositions. A county paper is an expensive thing to operate, and it has become impossible for us to continue to extend unlimited credit to hundreds of subscribers. We believe that every one of our subscribers will see this point of view from our side and will try to help us in clearing up back subscription debts and keeping the subscriptions up to date.

Yours very truly

HOUSECLEANING DAYS

The average man can not quite comprehend the fierce assault with which his wife attacks the labors of house-cleaning. Does she enjoy this encounter with the "dust clouds"? Some may even claim that all this activity simply stirs up the germs, where previously they had been sleeping quietly.

But anyway this solemn and semi-annual ceremony is not the earthquake it was in former days, before modern devices had been invented, when Father, driven from the desolate house, was supposed to eat dinner disconsolately in the wood shed.

When you see those clouds of dust being beaten out of the rugs, be thankful you are not breathing in all that dirt. If your clothes have to be washed every few days the housewife is not too fussy in insisting that the home be scrubbed twice a year.

ARE YOU IN A HURRY, SON?

A tourist from the West, traveling through New England, recently, and who, as is not unusual with occidental pilgrims was in haste to get on, paused at a filling station and after a wait of a moment or two blew several impatient blasts upon his horn. By and by and very leisurely but good humoredly appeared an old gentleman, who, after a casual and kindly survey of the tourists, addressed himself to the young "shoofar" in a sort of suggestive tone of voice on this wise: "In a hurry, son?" And then as he applied himself to the work of supplying the needs in the way of gas and oil, he talked good naturedly as he worked.

"You ain't agoin' to see the beauty of these hills, and enjoy your trip to the fullest if you hurry along. Stop and dangle your feet in some of the cold mountain streams. Park your car and climb up where you can look over the scenery. Stop at some of the homes for a glass of water or a glass of milk—you'll find it will put peace in your hearts. You young people are always in a hurry—you'll see and enjoy more of life of you take it easy along the way—and you'll get more out of it even if you don't go so far."

Fine advice, say we all.

POLITICAL PROMISES

The voting public has none too much confidence in the pre-election promises made by candidates for office and there is quite a good reason why in this day the voter takes this view of the ordinary candidate. Of course, we should have in this State the recall provision in our laws.

Candidates should be held to the strictest account of their pledges to the people. It is plain dishonesty to contract with the voters to do certain things if vested with power of office and willfully repudiate or fail to meet the obligation. If an individual makes a promise and does not meet it without a good cause he is held in contempt by those he deceives. A public officer ought to be more responsible in his arrangements than the individual, and no less excuse is the candidate who in good faith obligates himself to do certain things in ignorance of his ability to meet the contract. In either event, he merits the deepest resentment on the part of those who are deceived and they ought to have both the opportunity and privilege of demonstrating their indignation by discharging the official for his failure to meet his responsibility when vested with power and authority.

Editorial of the Week

A LESSON IN TOLERANCE
(Hillsboro News-Herald)

Recently there died in Uniontown, Pa., a Jew who in his will taught a good lesson in tolerance. He made bequests to the Jewish Synagogue, the Catholic Church, the Presbyterian Church and the Episcopal Church in his home city, giving to each, the same amount of money. He also made bequests to the Y. M. C. A. and the Uniontown Hospital.

This man was not a believer in the Christian religion but he gave money to carry on the work of four organizations founded on the Christian religion. Why should a Jew make such gifts? As a resident of Uniontown he had seen the good work being done by each of them for the people of the community. He appreciated that these organizations were striving for the same goal as the Jewish Synagogue; that each was urging its members to live upright, honest and useful lives; that there was no real difference in the fundamentals underlying each organization. While this man did not believe that Jesus Christ was divine he knew that men who lived according to the teachings of Christ would serve their fellowmen.

The only time we ever heard of this man was in the account in a newspaper telling of the bequests in his will, but we are certain he was intelligent, kindly, charitable, public spirited and loved his fellowman. In his gifts he has built an imperishable monument to his memory. Surely the people of Uniontown will be more tolerant. That community should be free from religious bigotry. His bequests should do much to make them live together in harmony. Jews, Catholics and Protestants should be broader in their views and more kindly in their thoughts.

No matter how valuable a contribution this tolerant man may have made to his community and his country in his life, he has made a greater contribution by the example he left in his will. If all persons only had his breadth of vision and wisdom how much pleasanter place this old world would be. This orthodox Jew was a better Christian than many who profess to be followers of Jesus Christ. We should all profit from his example.

SEEN and HEARD

around the

National Capital

By CARTER FIELD

Washington.—During the next few months President Roosevelt will seem to be moving a little toward the right, on every issue of any consequence except the public utilities. Actually there will be very little change, but the appearance will seem very important, and there will be loud cries from the radicals.

In fact, the left fringe of the brain trust is already disturbed. So much so that it is feeding out propaganda intended to have a direct effect on Roosevelt personally. It is certainly not intended for anyone else, for the last thing these particular radicals want to do is to hurt him. The trouble with them is that they have not analyzed the higher politics of the situation. They are worried about an eddy instead of the main course of the river. And their conversation is so free, at all times, that even if the President was concerned about their attitude he would not dare tell them. For in that case they would not be able to rest until they had told their favorite column conductors, just to show they were still in the "inner circle" and knew what was going on.

The present situation starts, not with the President, but inside the Republican camp. Yes—strange as it may seem—there is still such a thing. The Republicans, not all of them but some of their strategists, are simply delighted with the Huey Long-Father Coughlin situation. What they want more than anything else in the world is to see a third party—a very radical third party—with a Presidential ticket in the field next year.

Their theory is, of course, that this radical party will garner a few electoral votes—Wisconsin, the Dakotas, possibly Montana, and maybe Washington and Nebraska; that it will poll a very large vote in some of the big eastern states such as Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois—enough votes in this last group to make sure that the Republican candidate would walk off with the electoral votes. They are not worrying about Connecticut—which stood by Hoover, although the majority was very small, nor Rhode Island, which has suffered so in its textile industry that Republicans feel it is "in the bag."

See California Safe

Nor are they worried about California, whose big electoral vote is now so essential. The Golden Gate state's rejection of Upton Sinclair, and its outraged protests about the reciprocal trade treaties, makes them sure of it. Altogether, they think, their only problem is to get the right candidate and the right platform!

Of course, in the Roosevelt view, that is just where they fall down hard. Who, Roosevelt's friends inquire, cynically, would the candidate be? And what could the platform say?

But it has never been part of any Roosevelt strategy to understate an opponent, nor to leave any stone unturned just because it did not seem necessary to move it. As witness the efforts in last fall's election.

So Roosevelt is maneuvering into his favorite middle ground position, between the Tories and the radicals. And to make this more secure, he is going to seem a little conservative for a while. He confidently expects to scare the Republicans to death by this course, for the natural reaction will be just what they have been planning, with one important exception.

Roosevelt plans to have the radicals grow in strength, while he grows in strength with voters who are normally Republican! But who are frightened at the radical menace.

Meanwhile the radical fringe of his own supporters, trying to figure his course out, have come to the conclusion that the trouble is that Louis McHenry Howe has been sick. So they say M. H. McIntyre, the secretary who makes all the President's appointments, will not let anyone except conservatives see him!

"Scotch" Tied Up

Millions of gallons of fine—and perhaps not so good—Scotch whisky, are lying in government warehouses, under the eagle eye of Uncle Sam's customs officers, and with little apparent prospect of being marketed through ordinary channels.

This stock offers a fine chance for bargains, if one could only appreciate the quality of the liquor in some fashion. But how to do it? How to tell what is really good liquor, so to speak, and what would have no appeal whatever?

For the trouble is that this whisky is what the trade calls "unknown brands." It is perhaps the best argument in favor of heavy advertising for brands and labels that has ever been presented. For, while this whisky is lying unsold and unwanted in the warehouses, running up storage charges and threatening to add freight shipment charges home, the regular brands are moving about as expected.

Normally, such a stock of any commodity hanging over the market, would play hob with everybody in that particular trade. But the owners of this whisky cannot dump it on the market at whatever the market price happens to be, for there is no market price for an unknown brand.

The man who drinks Scotch whisky normally prefers a certain brand. He may like half a dozen brands. But when he is buying whisky he buys what he thinks is one of his favorites. He is not interested in some brand that he never heard of before, except at a great sacrifice in the price. And with an import duty of $5 a gallon, plus an excise duty of $2 a gallon, plus stamp and other taxes, it is not possible to offer these unknown brands at what looks like a real bargain. The tax collectors are not offering to share the loss. They insist on their $7 to $9 tax on each gallon regardless of quality or marketability.

Tried for Clean-up

This big undigested stock of Scotch, much of which is in New York, Boston and Baltimore, is the result of two attempts at speculation when the prohibition ban was first lifted. In the first rush, a great many foreigners saw a good chance to make a clean-up. They knew that Americans had been buying—from bootleggers—all possible sorts of liquor with apparently very little concern as to brands or varieties. And at very high prices. So they thought they could buy up a lot of whisky cheap in Scotland, ship it to this country on consignment, and take their profits.

Meanwhile an equal number of speculatively inclined persons in this country, who had never been in the liquor distributing business and knew little, if anything, about its ramifications, took out importers' permits, and applied for large quotas. Then they proceeded to buy large quantities of liquor, sometimes in bottles and sometimes having it bottled. All went nicely until the liquor arrived in the ports of entry.

Then came the problem of selling it. And there were no offers. The drinkers, who, during prohibition, had taken anything that was wet, inside a good-looking package, were imbued with the idea that they wanted particular brands. The ordinary liquor trade knew how to handle the well-advertised brands, and had no idea of trying up a lot of money in brands that might not move, and at any rate would have to be pushed. The real murder, of course, lies in the fact that so large a percentage of the total cost of a bottle of imported whisky is tax, and therefore not susceptible of being shaved. A severe cut on the part of the price exclusive of tax would not appear to the customer such a big reduction! It would not deter him from taking his favorite brand.

Unpleasant Surprises

President Roosevelt has had a number of unpleasant surprises in his attempt to swat the utilities—particularly on the Wheeler-Rayburn holding company bill.

It is no secret that one of the surprises has made one of the bill's "authors"—Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana—just a little sorry that he sponsored it. Then the local yelps! For instance, Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power company, who expressed the opinion that the bill would "hurt Georgia more than New York."

Perhaps the Senator Wheeler case is the most interesting of the surprises. As soon as the utility crowd realized what was happening they got very busy, indeed, in Montana. The situation is something like this: The utility interests, alone, are not very important in numbers or influence in Montana, but they are allied with, if not controlled by, the same interests that control Anaconda copper.

Now Anaconda is very influential, indeed, in Montana. In fact, they say that Anaconda generally gets precisely what it wants, even on election day. And it so happens that, as these gentlemen want not only that their utility interests should do well, but their copper interests also, they have seen to it that their utility interests buy all their copper for wires, etc., from Montana copper mines.

Now it happens further that the ramifications of the holding company interests involved stretch to many far distant states. So that on the whole it is a very beneficial thing—to the Montana copper miners—that this holding company situation is as it is.

If the proposed legislation should break up the holding companies, and all the operating companies should be independent, presumably, it has been carefully pointed out to mine workers of Senator Wheeler's state that the operating companies not in Montana would buy their copper in the cheapest market. It is also pointed out with much force that the cheapest copper to be obtained, despite the tariff, is not Montana mined metal, but imported, whether from Africa or Chile.

Brings Many Profits

All of which has brought a remarkable deluge of protests against the holding company bill from Montana, the copper miners joining the shareholders and bondholders. Montana is not a large state in population, though the third largest in the union in area, but enough people became excited about the situation to run an average of about 500 letters of protest a day to the senior Montana senator's office. And not enough letters of approval to be worth considering!

Massachusetts roughly has about seven times as many people as Montana. Presumably it would have an even larger proportionate number of heavy holders of investment securities. But even the Bay state has been giving its senators only a small number in excess of those poured in on the Montana senators.

The number being received by Senator Marcus A. Coolidge of Massachusetts has been running about 600 a day. Whereupon the senator announced that he was for strict regulation, but against the death sentence!

What IS a Sound Loan?

A sound loan for a commercial bank is a loan which the borrower believes, and the bank expects, will be paid within a reasonable time—a loan which if not fully repaid at the maturity of the note is substantially reduced by regular periodic installments. Loans that are regularly reduced enable a bank to accommodate patrons whose needs may be more essential. A bank must have a turn-over of money in the same way that a merchant must have a turn-over of merchandise, with this difference—bank's turn-over affects the credit facilities of the entire community.

The ability and intention to repay a loan by a planned program, and within a reasonable time, is the essence of a good loan. The giving of collateral does not repay a loan. Collateral is merely a pledge to guarantee the borrower's ability and promise to repay the loan within a reasonable time.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for his foster daughter could not shelter her childhood from the ban of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affairs ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to baseball game. A ball hit into the bleachers, struck Penelope on the nose and the neurotic Mrs. Gatlin removed her from the hospital to which her former husband had hurried her. Mrs. Gatlin spirited the child to Europe. Penelope all his money, and was about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II.—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a young psychiatrist, was presented by Dan McNamara, Chief of Police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" was in part responsible. McNamara did not think she was a responsible criminal and obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Even then, the doctor's faithful nurse, who was won over to her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III.—Nance's criminal record astonished Doctor Burt's clear explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny visited her and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter, which a confidential stole from her hands outside the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV.—Nance escaped, although shot, by swimming out to a speed-boat, manned by friends and went to Lanny's apartment. Lanny told Chief McNamara, who ordered her to bring Nance to his apartment and phoned for Doctor Burt.

CHAPTER V.—One of the men in the boat on which Nance escaped—two of them—Nance and the other a bootlegger—had been wounded and they went to Burt's office, where McNamara found them. Nance told him he let go and he took the others to his home, ordering the uninjured one to care for the wounded. From then he learned that Nance's real name was Penelope Gatlin. Detective Sergeant Flynn and the girl, seeking the reward offered for Nance's apprehension, went to Lanny's apartment in search of Nance. Lanny told them San Quentin cell. McNamara found a blank check on a San Jose bank.

CHAPTER VI.—From the San Jose banker McNamara learned that the girl he knew as Nance was the girl he knew as Penelope. The banker did not know Penelope's whereabouts. McNamara ordered Detective Sergeant Flynn and Angelotti to "lay off" Lanny, whom they suspected of harboring Nance. The detectives trailed Doctor Burt when he went to McNamara's house to treat her gunshot wound but Nance and the two men who helped her escape saw them first and fled.

CHAPTER VII.—When Lanny got home one evening he found Nance sound asleep, curled up on her guest-room bed. Several days later the hard-boiled exterior of Nance Belden suddenly vanished and the girl became the refined Penelope Gatlin. Her partially restored memory led her to tell Lanny of her wealthy father, Theodore Gatlin, and of her girlhood in France. Penelope's father had been a doctor. Penelope, McNamara furnished her with a car and a trunk and told her how to use them. She used the car to get away from the police, and gets away. Flynn and Angelotti continued hot on Nance's trail and McNamara.

CHAPTER VIII.—Susan Engelbright, known as "Sapphire Susie," who had served a term for blackmail, appeared and asked McNamara's protection from Flynn. She admitted that Nance had gotten her three 12-carat sapphires out of her pocket after she had helped her in her plans for escape. McNamara learned definitely that Nance (or Penelope) had sailed for France. He also discovered he was in love with Lanny, and learned that Nance was living in Paris as Penelope Gatlin. Doctor Burt had been treating Mrs. Rudolph Mortons and McNamara discovered that this woman was Penelope's foster-mother, remarried.

CHAPTER IX.—Stephen warned Penelope by cable to leave Paris, signing his message "Mac." When Flynn went to Doctor Burt to ask him to identify a passport photograph of Penelope Gatlin as Nance Belden, the doctor hypnotized him and impressed on his subconscious mind that he must never again mention the two names Nance Belden and Penelope Gatlin.

CHAPTER X.—Warned through the joint efforts of McNamara and Stephen, Nance fled Paris before Flynn could put the French police on her trail, and popped back into Lanny's home in San Francisco. Dan and Lanny were married and accompanied Penelope to New York, where Doctor Burt had engaged the best plastic surgeon in the country to remodel her nose. As McNamara had returned when his 50 days leave expired and reported the operation a success but that three months would elapse before Nance was out of the surgeon's hands. Stephen commissioned McNamara to look up the girl's ancestry and living conditions in childhood.

McNamara drew her face down and kissed it. "What a blessing I'm used to that, Lanny, and have learned to be kind to the aged. Here, quit pulling my hair, woman."

The door bell began ringing. "What's wrong with you, Lanny?" Stephen demanded when Lanny admitted him. "I rang half a dozen times."

"Do you go to wait once in a while," she snapped back at him. "Mac," he declared, "you have a proprietary air about you."

"And well I may," McNamara replied. "I've just popped the question to Lanny and we've agreed to jump over the broomstick together."

"I've been expecting this, Dan. She hasn't been worth a canceled postage stamp to me since she met you."

"But I'm not going to leave you, Stevie darling. Oh, I couldn't leave my boy!"

Stephen held out his arms and Lanny ran into them. And then Stephen warned Dan that if he wasn't good to Lanny he would hypnotize him, as he had hypnotized P. Flynn, and sell him the idea he was a pet poodle, so Lanny could kick him around at will.

"You what?" McNamara yelled. "You put the cometh on Flynn?"

"Certainly." And Stephen told him the story.

"Three hundred years ago, in Salem, Massachusetts," said Dan McNamara, "you would have been burned for a witch."

The door bell rang insistently. "Now, who can that be?" Lanny exploded. Dan rolled out of the kitchen and down the hall. Then Stephen and Lanny heard the door slammed violently; there was a scuffle, and something crashed to the floor.

He came into the kitchen a moment later, leading by her handcuffed wrist none other than Penelope Gatlin. "She wouldn't kiss me first," he announced, "so I put the cuffs on her—the little vixen."

"Oh, Lanny, you darling! And Stevie, you sweetheart!" Penelope cried, and extended her manacled arms. Lanny dodged in under them and folded the girl to her heart. "You next, Stevie," Penelope ordered, and obediently Stephen lowered his head and the looped arms came around his neck and drew his face down. "And now, Dan," the girl cooed, and turned her face upward.

McNamara laughingly uncinched her. "Why didn't you cable us?" Stephen demanded, a trifle severely.

"I adore surprises, that's why."

"Why did you come back?" McNamara demanded.

"The proper place to hide oneself is in the spot one is supposed to have fled from. Lanny, don't let them stand around staring at me and asking me questions," moaned Penelope. "I'm hungry and so tired. Can I have my same little bed tonight?"

"You can have anything and everything you want, my dear."

"I want Stephen," came the answer, faintly tired, and the girl went to him and leaned her sleek black head against his breast. "I've missed you so, Stephen."

Stephen held her close with his left arm, and his right hand came up and cautiously fingered her poor nose.

"God's on our side, Lanny," he told his eyes. "Tomorrow I want you to arrange for a room in St. Dunstan's hospital. We'll get Boyd to operate."

"Please, Stephen, do I have to go away any more?" asked Nance.

"No, not any more, my dear."

"And you'll fix my nose? I wanted to have it done in Paris, but when you sent me that cablegram I couldn't, of course. Can I have just the nose I want, Stephen?"

"Yes, little wanderer. And when that's done you shall have the kind of home you want. You've been lost in the woods, poor babe, but I'll lead you out into the loveliest sunshiny meadow imaginable."

McNamara had, throughout this scene, felt a lump in his throat. He glanced at Lanny and saw the tears of sympathy in her brave, kindly eyes, so to avert a scene he growled huskily:

"When do we eat?"

For the first time since Penelope Gatlin, alias Nance Belden, had come under his notice, Stephen Burt had a reasonable opportunity to examine the girl, when, following dinner at Lanny's house, Penelope, Lanny, Dan McNamara and Stephen retired to the drawing room. Despite the strain of her record-breaking journey from Europe, Penelope was not so tired that she wished to retire early. She joined in the general conversation, and Stephen noticed that she seemed inclined to be argumentative, but her arguments indicated no cogent thought; frequently she employed the patois of the underworld; her language was racy and idiomatic. He noticed that her laugh was sudden, loud—the laugh of a vulgarian. She was nervous; her hands twined and intertwined continuously, she moved about the room a great deal, and finally came to rest on Stephen's knees. She looked into his eyes searchingly for a long time and then said accusingly:

"You don't care for me."

"Why do you think that, Penelope?"

"Because nobody could love a girl with a nose like mine."

"Did you bring back the sketches that Parisian artist made of you?"

She bounced off his lap and hurried upstairs, to return presently with a portfolio filled with sketches. There was one crayon drawing of her as she was. A half dozen additional sketches were copies of the first, with the exception of the nose. The artist had fitted into her features a nose of his own design, and viewed in profile some of his creations lent to the girl's face an aspect of singular beauty and sweetness.

"I like this one best," Stephen decided. "The patrician nose does you justice. Going to come over tomorrow and give you the most searching physical examination you've ever had," he decided. He drew her over to him and kissed her on the cheek, paternally.

"You're a nice, sweet, lovable girl, Penelope," he assured her as if she were a little girl, "and the shape of your nose isn't taken into consideration by the sort of people whose love and approval you desire. And you can get along very well without the love and approval of any other sort. Dan and Lanny and I all love you and we want you to love us. We're your only real friends and you wouldn't do anything to hurt us, would you?"

"I'd rather die, Stephen."

"Fine. You're tired now, so suppose you run upstairs to bed, and tomorrow, when you wake up, you'll be refreshed and happy and we'll be able to discuss the making over of this poor nose. Kiss us all good night."

Penelope dutifully obeyed, and as she was starting up the stairs Stephen said: "And don't forget to say your prayers."

She grimaced disdainfully. "You must think I'm a not-saying my prayers. I've been prayed to death."

"By whom?"

"I don't know, but by somebody. It makes me ill."

"That was the subconscious revulsion to her adopted mother coming out," Stephen told McNamara. "Mrs. Merton has a strong religious mania. That girl's a mighty healthy specimen," he continued. "I noticed, when I was dressing the wound in her shoulder, that her skin is soft and silky, not rough and dry, as in the case of psychopathic personalities. Everything about her seems to indicate sound ancestry, and I'm more than ever convinced that her mental disturbance is not organic. However, that's a lead we can run down after we've fixed her nose."

"We'll not fix it in this city, my boy."

"Why not?"

"Because when that girl is well she'll probably elect to live her life here, and I don't want a soul in this city, with the exception of ourselves, to know that once she had a saddle nose and a dual personality."

"We can trust the ethical integrity of the man I purpose."

"I'll trust nobody but myself—and then not too much. Where is the best plastic surgeon in this country?"

"In New York City."

"Lanny, I'll ask the police commission for a sixty day leave of absence. We'll be married at once and take this child to New York with us, put her in a hospital there and have the job done. While it's being done we'll have our honeymoon."

"There is a crowd—on a honeymoon," Stephen warned.

"It's nothing of the sort," Lanny defended. "Stevie, you mind your own business. Dan and I know our way about."

"Indeed? Well, just because you're so contemptuous, I'm going to tell you something. If I hadn't promoted this engagement, you and Dan would not now be engaged. Dan had you up on a pedestal—which is where you never belonged—and you're so naturally manly you never even learned the rudiments of the come-on as practiced by the dullest, so I talked the matter up!"

"You didn't talk it up to me."

"No, but I listened sympathetically when you raved about what a grand man Dan McNamara was, and my neck is still stiff from nodding agreement."

"I told Dan you were crazy about him and worked up his courage."

"You're a liar," McNamara charged, feebly and without malice.

"Dan McNamara is a man who doesn't have to have help with his courage or thinking," Lanny declared proudly. "And you do, Stephen Burt. You're adept at lording it over your befuddled patients, but Rebecca P. Lanning is a horse of another color."

"I think I'll go home," Stephen retorted, and went.

He was back in the morning with the impedimenta of his profession. Penelope greeted him gravely. "Good morning, Doctor Burt."

He started. The strident note of Nance Belden was gone from her voice. She spoke now in the low, level tone of the girl of breeding. Then she sat down, and they conversed for half an hour on topics of general interest, but during that time she did not move once from her seat. Her vocabulary was free of underworld expressions, her diction perfect, her sentences grammatical.

"You have had a good night's rest, Miss Gatlin," he ventured.

She nodded, smiling a little. "I am not at all nervous this morning, Doctor Burt. When I am very tired, or excited about something, I am always horribly nervous."

"And you get dreadfully depressed, do you not?"

She nodded. "So depressed that, at times I want to die."

"Well, we might as well start your physical examination. I'm going to try to ascertain why you can't be cheerful always. There's a reason, of course for your nervousness and depression so I want to examine you very meticulously and see if you trouble can be charged up to some physical condition. Let me feel your pulse."

It was eighty-three, full and strong. Stephen's examination of the girl was as complete as modern medical science could make it, and when the last laboratory report came in three days later he called Lanny in to discuss the girl.

"With the exception of a subnormal chest expansion, Lanny, that girl is without doubt the healthiest young woman I have ever examined. Her sole physical defect is her nose. But for that I think she'd be a husky little athlete right now. She told me she always wanted to excel in tennis, golf and dancing—well, of course she'd want to excel in something. She couldn't compete in good looks. I'll write up my report on her and you can hand a copy of it to the man who is to do the operation. I've wired him that I was sending on a patient, and he has agreed to care for her. I see by this morning's paper that Mac has been given a leave of absence."

Lanny nodded.

"When are you and Dan to be married?"

"Tomorrow. We're flying to Reno to avoid the three-day notice of intention to marry demanded by the California law."

"Penelope flying with you?"

"Naturally. She's my bridesmaid!"

"Who's going to give the bride away?"

"Nobody. Dan and I are too old to stand for a long-drawn-out marriage ceremony."

"Well, I suppose I'm stuck for a wedding present. How much money have I got in the bank?"

"Approximately twenty thousand. I'm going to buy you some Argentine bonds today. There's no reason why those bonds shouldn't be selling at—"

"Lanny, you're mercenary. I don't care for a dissertation on bonds. Draw yourself a check for ten thousand and spend it all in riotous living. Give old Dan a real blow out—"

"Stevie, you're mad!"

"Quiet, please. Love from the boss, Lanny, and no back talk from you. And for heaven's sake do get a half-way intelligent nurse to take your place while you're away."

"I've engaged Miss Ordway."

"Horrible. Her face would stop a parade. She's efficient, but terrible to look at."

The tears were welling in Lanny's eyes. "Oh, Stevie, I want you to be safe—while I'm away," she choked.

"No hoity-toity—young thing—with her sweet smile—and winning ways—and you such a softy—oh, Stevie, Stevie, I can't bear to leave you. If I do, something dreadful will happen to you."

And Lanny laid her head on her desk and sobbed quite heartily.

However, Stephen knew what was good for Lanny. "You make me ill," he said coldly. "You carry on like a girl of sixteen."

Instantly Lanny was furious. "You don't appreciate me," she charged.

"Be still. Where's the check book? On an occasion such as the present I suppose I should sign the check myself."

"It wouldn't do any good if you did, darling. You've never registered your signature at your bank and you have no authority to sign checks on your own bank account. How funny!" and Lanny commenced to laugh. "How lucky I thought of that before leaving!"

Thereupon Stephen put both arms around her and kissed her three times and told her she was as the shadow of a rock in a weary land; that she was very dear to him; that whatever she did was O. K. with him and he'd miss having his daily fight with her; and finally so softened her that she consented to let him fly to Reno and give the bride away. It developed that she had always wanted him to do this but loathed putting him to so much trouble.

At the expiration of his leave McNamara returned to duty, but Lanny remained with Penelope in New York. Performed by a master, the operation had proved successful thus far. The actual work of the operation had been the least of it; the subsequent care of the bone and skin graft, and the surgeon's artistry in reshaping the nose were what required time and patience. Lanny reported that the patient would not be discharged for at least three months more.

"How did Penelope approach the operation?" Stephen queried of McNamara.

"Happily. Not a whit nervous. Lanny had complete control over her." He grinned. "I passed as her Uncle Dan and the wife as Aunt Lanny. Lanny saw to it that the girl didn't do any talking while the doctor was present."

"You're a good fellow, Dan."

"Well," McNamara admitted humorously, "it wasn't much of a honeymoon, I'll admit. However, we've set our hands to the job and we couldn't turn back, God help us."

"Well, you have this consolation, my friend. Your job is over, and mine will commence when Lanny returns with the girl."

"I've think you can pull her through, lad?"

"I'm sure I can, Dan. A psychoneurosis generally is impossible to cure unless you know its causative factors and can remove them. If you can do that, it's as simple as removing a wart. Dan, have you looked up the girl's ancestry?"

"I have not."

"Then do so immediately. We might run into a situation that will shed a bright, effulgent beam of light on my job."

"The attorney that handled Gatlin's affairs ought to be a good man to start with, Stephen. I'll motor to San Jose tomorrow and look him up. The bank will know who he is."

BUSY TERM

OF COURT ENDS—MUCH BUSINESS IS TRANSACTED

With the words "It is ordered that court adjourn," Judge Vallandigham brought to a close the regular April term. Much important business was transacted and more jury cases tried than at any term during the past year. Among the criminal cases tried were:

Commonwealth vs. G. W. Shepherd for misdemeanor, fine of $50 paid.

Commonwealth vs. Jos. Miller for chicken stealing—he was out on bond for $1,000, failed to answer and his bond was forfeited.

Commonwealth vs. Hines Hoperton, felony, trial and jury hung.

Commonwealth vs. Arthur Smith, child desertion—tried and given 2 years—put on probation upon paying $100 toward support of his two children and required to pay $10 a month.

Commonwealth vs. Jno. W. Griffin on trial for murder, defended by Chas. Riley, who made his maiden appearance as a defender, and succeeded in having his client acquitted, the jury finding him not guilty.

Commonwealth vs. Clarence Beyer, charged with grand larceny—defendant died since last term of court. Indictment filed away.

Several other important criminal cases were disposed of as noted in last week's issue.

The grand jury reported finally after having been in session three days and were discharged. They should be commended for their speed in investigating all charges brought to their notice.

In civil matters the cases disposed of were:

Effie Lee Edwards v. Ralph Edwards.

Aileen K. Strader vs. Harold Strader.

Thelma Sullivan vs. Roy Sullivan. Cooper Atha vs. M. A. Atha. The plaintiff was granted a divorce in each of the above cases.

Real estate was ordered sold in the following cases:

New York Life Ins. Co. vs. Robt. Elkins. Florence Deposits Bank vs. Harmon Jones. Dixie State Bank vs. Leslie Code, &c. Florence Bank vs. J. O. Carpenter &c. Walton Bldg. and Loan vs. John Deuel, &c. Dixie State Bank vs. C. W. Ashcraft &c.

Two cases were tried for damages growing out of automobile wrecks:

In Justice Phillips vs. K. A. Thornton ptf. received judgment for $1,000—Vest & Vest for plaintiff Rogers & Rogers for deft. In C. W. Rector vs. W. P. Brown deft., failed to answer. Jury assessed damages for plaintiff at $2500 Ward Yager and B. H. Riley for plaintiff.

In case of Central Acceptance Corporation suit on note for $350 Deft., set up counter claim for $5,800—the jury found in favor of defendant for $700, and judgment was entered accordingly. D. E. Castelman for plaintiff and B. H. Riley and Vest & Vest for defendant.

In case of Kate J. Madden Admr. vs. The Safety Motor Coach Corp., &c., wherein a judgment for $12,625 was rendered in favor of plaintiff as reported in last issue, a motion for new trial was argued at length by Ward Yager for ptf., and Robt. Hubbard, of Louisville for defendants. Motion overruled and appeal granted.

Many motions were made and disposed of in cases pending but not ready for trial.

MT. ORAB MAN

CRITICALLY INJURED IN FLORENCE

On the way to visit his brother, Omar, at Williamstown, Ky., Friday night, C. O. Boyer, 56 years old, Mount Orab, Ohio, was injured critically when his automobile, failing to negotiate a bend on the Dixie Highway, crashed into a tree at Florence, Ky.

Boyer was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, in the ambulance of Philip Talmaferro, Erlanger. He had suffered a fractured skull and multiple cuts on the head. His condition was said to be serious.

The automobile of Boyer, a baker, was demolished.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Kirkwood, Mr. Moore, Miss Laubisch, Mrs. Lallie Eddins teachers in the local school attended K. E. A. in Louisville the last part of the week. School was dismissed Thursday and Friday so they could attend.

FLORENCE BOY WILL APPEAR IN ERLANGER PRODUCTION

Mr. George Miller, Jr., the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Miller, Florence, Ky., is one of the leading men with the Garret Players of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. Young Mr. Miller has become quite popular with Cincinnati audiences this winter for his clever portrayals of older men. Northern Kentucky audiences will have the opportunity to see him at Erlanger, Ky., on April 22, when the players present "The Whole Town's Talking," a three-act comedy.

Mr. Miller is a graduate of Holmes High School, Covington. He attended Eastern College and is now a teacher at the Carlisle Junior High School in Covington. He plays under the name of Blayne Miller.

The Garret Players are comprised of the advanced students in Drama and Music. They have given several outstanding productions this winter in and around Cincinnati. Mr. Owen Phillips is their director.

CHECKS RECEIVED

$7171.00 CORN-HOG CHECKS RECEIVED BY BOONE COUNTY FARMERS

Boone County AAA Corn-Hog contract signers the past week received 224 1934 third AAA hog payment checks totaling $7171.00 according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Approximately thirty third payment checks are yet to be received.

The above checks represent $2.00 per head on the 19 1/2 market hog allotment less 27 1/2 cents per head on 5 1/2 per cent of the $5.00 per head paid. The deduction represents the 1934 administrative expense which is considerably below the estimate given producers last spring a year ago.

Growers seemed well pleased with their 1934 payments. Approximately fifty delayed payments are expected to be received at an early date.
